Vietnamese General Stages Bloodless State Overthrow

General Phat Ousts Khanh; No Shooting

SAIGON (AP) — Four battalions of troops moved into Saigon early Sunday in a bloodless coup d'etat.

The troops, spearheaded by armored units, were led by Brig. Gen. Lan Van Phat who was ousted last week by Premier Khanh.

Khanh's whereabouts could not be learned.

The troops were supported by dissident Buddhist elements.

Phat, pausing at the gates to the city, told newsmen:

LITTLE OPERATION

"This is nothing to worry about, just a little operation against some politicians."

The U.S. State Department in Washington said it had nothing to either confirm or deny the action.

The rebel troops invaded Khanh's office and arrested several duty officers but found no trace of the premier.

The rebels also occupied communications centers in Saigon. They disarmed police posts at the point of cannons.

No shooting was reported anywhere in the city.

Phat appeared to be in complete command of the situation.

With him were the commanders of the Vietnamese Army IV Corps, other officers who had been fired by Khanh.

Rebel headquarters were at the home of the former mayor of Saigon, also fired by Khanh.

The whole operation appeared to be patterned after the bloodless coup last Jan. 30 when Khanh took power.

A crowd of people who had attended a mass at Saigon's Roman Catholic Cathedral, across the street from the communications center, ran in panic with the approach of the paratroopers.

There was no sign of any air activity over the city despite promises by the commander of the air corps two weeks ago that his aircraft would quickly stamp out any coup against the government.

The city appeared generally calm despite the troop activity.

Tanks and troops began to arrive at the gates of the city shortly after sunrise. The situation was confused and it was not immediately clear whether or not Phat would take charge of the government.

Officials Shovel First Dirt For $14-Million Lock, Dam

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

COLUMBIA — Nine shovels wielded by state, federal and local officials, including Gov. John J. McKeithen, Saturday bit into the first dirt to be moved for the $14-million Columbia lock and dam, which will be in operation in 1968.

Earlier, McKeithen, speaking on a wind-swept platform on a bluff overlooking the Ouachita River, said, "We build that mighty ships can flow upon this river and enrich the lives of every man and woman and child. We build that life can not only go on . . . but that it can be better."

McKeithen said that this project is also linked with the past and the future. "We build for the past. Our obligation to go on is a pact that we dare not break with those who gave so much in so many places that we might stand here today," he said.

BUILD FOR FUTURE

He continued, "And we build for tomorrow, that generations to come know by our works that our age was not bent on destruction alone."

The lock and dam will be built [illegible] cutoff between two bends [illegible] river. When the structure [illegible] plete, according to the [illegible] my Corps of Engineers, she[illegible]nel will be excavated to divert the river to the lock and dam and thus remove a sweeping bend from the river length.

The lock and dam system is one of four to be constructed on the Ouachita by 1970 at a cost of near $80-million. It will give the river a nine-foot channel and thus encourage more river traffic, opening towns such as Columbia, Jonesville and Monroe to the Mississippi River and the Gulf of Mexico.

Participating in the groundbreaking ceremony were McKeithen, Sen. Allen J. Ellender, Rep. Otto E. Passman, Col. J. A. Betts, district engineer, U.S. Corps of Engineers; Gen. E. I. Davis, division engineer, U.S. Corps of Engineers; James G. Sherman, Columbia Mayor; Louis Floyd, chairman of the Caldwell Resource Development Association; W. Edwin Cox, president of the Ouachita River Valley Association and Leon Gary, director of the Louisiana Department of Public Works.

In an address, Passman noted that the overall cost-ratio of river projects such as this was about four to one; that is, for every one dollar spent on the undertaking, four dollars would be made from it.

"I'm of the opinion that this will help north and central Louisiana and Arkansas," he said. "There are certain federal expenditures that those of us in Congress can point to with pride, and this happens to be one of those projects," he said.

Ellender, likening the efforts to obtain funds and federal approval of the Ouachita project to a baseball game, said, "We now have a comfortable lead." But he warned, "The batting order of our opponents has been reinforced. You will recall that during the past session of the Congress efforts were made to impose user charges on our waterways and other forms of undesirable regulation.

He said these bills would adversely affect the Ouachita project. Ellender, chairman of the Public Works Subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he would continue to push the Ouachita project, but that he also had to consider other rivers projects, such as the Red and Mississippi.

A large part of the population of the Columbia region was on hand for the ceremony, held on the west bank of the river. To get to the site, the crowd was treated to a short boat ride on the river.

A luncheon was held earlier in the Columbia High School cafeteria. Senators, representatives and local officials from a large section of north Louisiana attended the occasion.

Skipping through office-holders attending, here are a few: Mayor Clyde Fant of Shreveport, Eighth District Representative nominee on the Democratic ticket, Speedy O. Long; Rep. James Smith of Farmerville; Col. Thomas Burbank, state superintendent of Public Safety, State Sen. Charles Brown of Tallulah; State Sen. J. C. Gilbert of Sicily Island; Rep. W. J. Richardson of Caldwell Parish; Cameron C. Minard, Caldwell district attorney.

Large Okra

A Monroe family grows okra so large that two pods are enough to serve seven persons.

Mrs. Ed Nolen, 412 Lula Dr., Monroe, said one pod, still growing, is 18 inches long, and is nine inches in circumference. Mrs. Nolen said that the okra is good for frying, but isn't so sure how it would taste boiled.

Smart Puppy

Gene, a puppy belonging to the Bob Terrells of West Monroe, seems to get smarter with each passing day.

His most recent example of brainwork:

Terrell had been having trouble keeping Gene out of his neighbors' yards, so finally the other day he gave the young explorer a good switching. It was a real seat-warmer too, Mrs. Terrell relates.

But Gene had the perfect solution. He made a beeline to his water dish and sat in it.

Fire Wipes Out Family Of Five

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — Fire ravaged a house in a quiet residential area early Saturday wiping out a family of five.

Winston-Salem Fire Chief L. C. Williams said the mother, father and three children had no chance to escape.

"They couldn't have gotten out of there if they wanted to," said Williams. "The outside doors were at the other end of the house and they couldn't have gotten out the windows because they were too small."

He said officials were sifting the ashes of the ruined six-room ranch house in an effort to determine how the fire started.

TEARS UP GEORGIA

Dora Not Dead Yet; May Regain Power

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Dora whipped herself into a tropical storm over the farmlands of central Georgia Saturday and threatened to become a hurricane once again as she plowed toward the life-giving Atlantic Ocean.

After disintegrating into little more than a band of squalls during a two-day rainy trek across northern Florida, Alabama and Georgia, Dora picked up strength and her top winds revved up to 65 miles an hour.

Jacksonville, Fla., and Brunswick, battered for almost 24 hours by Dora earlier this week, took a new lashing.

Some people who were trying to clean the muck and debris from their homes near Jacksonville were forced to flee again when little Black Creek rose over its banks.

Meanwhile, hurricane Ethel was giving the mid-Atlantic resort island of Bermuda a lashing with winds of 70 m.p.h.

However, the Weather Bureau said Ethel would probably move a little to the west of the British crown colony, sparing it top winds of 100 m.p.h.

Winds of 50 m.p.h. struck Brunswick, a resort community in the middle of the Georgia coast that took a million-dollar beating from Dora Wednesday night.

Five inches of rain fell on the south Georgia town of Waycross within a few hours, forcing at least 14 families to evacuate when canals flooded.

Trees and powerlines fell in downtown Jacksonville, and windows were smashed by winds that gusted at least 50 m.p.h.

Dora's new course sent gale warnings up from Cape Fear, N.C., to Cape May, N.J. The Weather Bureau said Dora probably would move out to sea over Charleston, S.C., Saturday night and regain hurricane strength with winds of 75 m.p.h. a d up.

At 5 p.m., Dora was centered about 75 miles west of here, dumping tons of rain on southeastern Georgia and northeastern Florida and lashing a 325-mile-wide area with gales.

Turks Suffer Deprivation; Food Needed

U.N. Chief Says Town Conditions Are Scandalous

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The U. N. peace commander said Saturday food conditions were scandalous in the blockaded Turkish Cypriot village of Kokkina, which Turkey wants to supply by ship convoy.

Lt. Gen. K.S. Thimayya of India reported the situation to Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios and then told newsmen the president was prepared to "allow adequate amounts of supplies to be sent to Kokkina."

MUST PAY DUTIES

The Greek Cypriot government has said it would regard Turkish supply convoys as an invasion and Thimayya said Makarios told him any supplies from Turkey must enter through normal port channels.

This implied paying import duties to which Turkey has already objected, and would certainly delay the supplies.

Thimayya said the blockade imposed by Makarios' government had reduced the Turkish Cypriot refugees to "degrading subhuman standards of life." He said if the Turks do not get food within four days they will starve.

Thimayya went to Kokkina, on the northwest coast, by helicopter with the International Red Cross representative on Cyprus, Max Stalder of Switzerland.

Stalder said "there must be a crash program. They must have food."

The Turkish charge D'Affaires in Nicosia, Faruk Sahinbas, accompanied Thimayya and Stalder to Kokkina. He said Red Cross or U.N. food shipments would take too long to organize to relieve the condition of the refugees.

"I believe the best thing is for Turkey to send food as quickly as possible," he said. Turkey had announced it intends to break a Greek Cypriot blockade at Kokkina by sending supplies by ship next Tuesday.

The Turks maintain the Makarios' government is systematically starving large groups of Turkish Cypriots on Cyprus. Makarios denied this, accusing Turkey of "false propaganda in order to embarrass" his government.

He followed this up by warning of grave consequences should the Turks try to send in supplies to Kokkina. Turkey, in announcing that it intended to break the blockade, said it would view any interference in landing supplies as an attack.

Thimayya's report clashed sharply with a U.N. report from New York that stated adequate food supplies were being delivered to Kokkina. The general said there had been a mistake in U.N. calculations.

The Makarios' regime had promised to send regular food supplies to the Kokkina Turks but Thimayya said villagers reported only two convoys since the blockade began 34 days ago.

Mild Weather Stays In Area

Partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures will continue to dominate the weather picture today for the Twin Cities and vicinity. Monday's outlook will be the same.

FAA at Selman Field reported no rain Saturday. Highest temperature recorded in Monroe Saturday was 85 with a cool low of 60.

SAME Temperatures will remain fairly constant today with a predicted high between 84 and 88 degrees. The thermometer is predicted to register low readings of 60 to 65 tonight.

Winds today will be light and breezy, 10 to 18 miles per hour.

COMMITTEEMAN Dr. Jesse McClendon of the 6th district exchanges heated comments with Leander H. Perez Sr. of Plaquemines Parish, left, after Perez suggested that an elector from the sixth district be replaced by a Negro. State Loyalist Democrats Put 10 Electors On Ballot

By SAM HANNA
Political Editor

BATON ROUGE — Loyalist Democrats gained the backing of anti-Johnson forces Saturday as the State Democratic Central Committee placed 10 electors on the November 3rd ballot pledged to the Johnson-Humphrey ticket.

But 31 members of the 105-man committee signed a pledge to support Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater after losing a fight to substitute two Negroes as Democratic electors.

North Louisiana delegates voted solidly behind Leander H. Perez's amendment to put two Negroes on the ballot as a packed gallery waving Goldwater placards thundered its approval.

PROPOSAL LOSES

But the proposal was rejected, 58-44.

"Many of us who supported this amendment feel that the party nominees should be on the ballot, because we are going to beat them at the polls in November," said Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe.

Howard later offered the Goldwater pledge signed by the entire Fifth District delegation with the exception of W. E. Bond of Jackson Parish. He was absent.

(See Story Page 2A)

But National Committeeman J. Marshall Brown, President Johnson's state campaign manager, claimed victory also, explaining, "We did exactly what we came here to do."

That was getting the 10 electors pledged to the Democratic nominees on the ballot under the Rooster emblem, which is the traditional Democratic emblem in Louisiana.

Brown offered the resolution naming the electors, including W. C. Feazel, Monroe, for the Fifth District.

But Perez sprang to the floor with his amendment to substitute A. P. Tureaud Sr., NAACP attorney of New Orleans, for Mayor Victor Schiro in the First District and the Rev. Arthur Jelks Sr., Baton Rouge NAACP leader, for Rep. Eugene McGehee in the Sixth District.

Perez said he offered the amendment because the Democratic platform contended that the party would "continue its efforts toward equal opportunity for all Americans regardless of their creed or color."

But Dr. J. H. McClendon of Tangipahoa Parish grabbed the microphone in a furious denouncement of the Perez proposal, saying, "It's all right for him to make a change in his own district, but I don't want him coming into mine."

Before the committee killed the amendment, McClendon stood at Perez's desk, shaking his finger in the judge's face as Perez smiled back from a cloud of cigar smoke.

"I resent very much Judge Perez coming into the Sixth District and naming a Negro," McClendon said. "A vast majority of the people in Tangipahoa will vote for the Republican nominee."

As soon as the committee killed Perez's amendment then approved the Brown resolution by acclamation, Brown moved quickly to adjourn, but Arthur Watson of Natchitoches protested.

"There's been a number of resolutions filed for sometime," Watson explained. "I told this to Mr. Brown when he called and sorta apologized for supporting Johnson."

Brown's pro-Johnson forces lost the scuffle, 49-53, as the meeting continued.

The committee approved a routine resolution by Watson to permit parish committees to name the poll commissioners, but the fireworks erupted again as Perez took the floor on a point of personal privilege to denounce Sen. J. D. DeBlieux, a Baton Rouge attorney supporting the party nominees.

Perez said he was unhappy because Brown named DeBlieux to replace him at the Democratic national convention.

"The mere fact that an attempt was made to put DeBlieux in my shoes was a self refutation," Perez said. "He is a loyalist Democrat. Leander Perez is a Jeffersonian Democrat."

He charged that a thesis written by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, President Johnson's running mate, "made the constitution a scrap of paper."

Howard joined Perez in lambasting Johnson and Humphrey before declaring, "This is the last chance that we have to preserve old fashioned American principle. You remember, Mr. DeBlieux, that when freedom is gone your children will want to know where was my daddy."

"All I have to say is I'm an American," DeBlieux replied. "I love this country and Louisiana. I now move that we adjourn."

The motion carried, 56-46, over protests by anti-Johnson committeemen who had additional attacks to make on the party nominees.

Gov. John J. McKeithen left Baton Rouge about the time the committee began its two-hour session, but while McKeithen was gone Howard used the governor's office for a caucus.

Mrs. Blanche Long, National Committeewoman, also missed the meeting, which was witnessed by Congressman Gillis W. Long, sitting with Victor Bussie, president of the Louisiana AFL-CIO.

Bussie, who lives in Baton Rouge, was named as the Fourth District elector, along with Schiro, First District; Thomas F. Donely, Second; John B. Levy, Third; Feazel, Fifth; McGehee, Sixth; Edward M. Carmouche, Seventh; Harold B. McSween, Eighth; Brown and Mrs. Long, electors at large.

Tall Arizona Lass Wins Beauty Crown

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Vonda Kay Van Dyke, a 21-year-old Arizona beauty with brown hair and brown eyes, was named Miss America of 1965 Saturday night.

A lively coed with a ready smile, she had been chosen only hours earlier as Miss Congeniality by the other contestants. "Goldwater here we go," she exclaimed at that time, referring to the presidential nominee from her state, Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Vonda stands 5-feet-6, weighs 124 pounds and measures 36-24-36.

She is a senior at Arizona State University and wants to go into the teaching field. A native of Muskegon, Mich., she lives with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Van Dyke, in Phoenix.

Runnersup in the contest, in order, were:

Miss Arkansas, Karen Carlson, 20, Shreveport, La.

Miss West Virginia, Ella Kessel, 21, Ripley.

Miss Texas, Sharon McCauley, 19, Athens.

Miss Minnesota, Barbara Hasselberg, 21, Bloomington.

Winners of these special scholarships were announced.

Most talented classical or semiclassical singer, Miss Colorado, Kathleen Knight, 19, of Denver.

Most talented musician, Miss Idaho, Judith Stuebbe, 21, of Moscow, and Miss Utah, Lois Bailey, 18, of Salt Lake City.

Most talented in all other fields, Miss Louisiana, Cherie Martin, 19, of Pineville; Miss Michigan, Sara Noble, 18, of Lansing, and Miss Virginia, Carolyn Eddy, 21, of Norfolk.

Accident Near Ferriday Fatal For Passenger

FERRIDAY (Special) — John Gus Renfrow, 20, of Pineville, was killed instantly early Saturday morning when a car in which he was a passenger ran off the road and overturned on U. S. Hwy. 84 four miles west of here.

The driver Robert Neal Smith, 18, of Vidalia was taken to a Ferriday hospital where stitches were taken for a scalp wound received as a result of the accident. He was treated and released.

According to state trooper Marion Barnette of Ferriday, investigating officer, the car left the road and traveled 705 feet and then ended up in a bar pit of water. Smith was traveling west on the highway when the accident occurred.

Funeral for Renfrow will be at 4 p.m. today at the Wallace Ridge Baptist Church near Jonesville with the Rev. J. O. McNair officiating, assisted by the Rev. L. C. Coates.

Burial will be at Heard Cemetery near Manifest under the direction of Comer Funeral Home of Ferriday.

Renfrow was a former resident of Jonesville and was employed by a Plaquemine well contractor. He was a member of Lee Heights Baptist Church of Pineville.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Dester Williams Renfrow of Pineville; two sisters, Mrs. Shelby Jean Boothe of Ft. Worth, Tex., and Miss Virgie Renfrow of Pineville; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Polly Williams of Pollock and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ida Renfrow of Harrisonburg.

Pallbearers are Faye Renfrow, Sam Renfrow, B. G. Renfrow, Charles Renfrow, Donald Renfrow, Ray Renfrow, Walter Renfrow and Kenneth McKay.

AFTER WIFE BEATEN

Shotgun Blast Kills Area Man

By BILL DAKIN
World Staff Writer

A 47-year-old rural West Monroe man, E. R. Dingler, was shot and killed Saturday afternoon during a family argument at his home. Dingler's 37-year-old wife, Jacqueline, told Ouachita Parish sheriff's deputies she killed her husband with a shotgun after he had repeatedly beaten her.

Dingler was apparently killed by a blast in the stomach from a single-barreled shotgun, parish coroner Dr. J. W. Cummins said.

Mrs. Dingler, in Glenwood Hospital for treatment of facial injuries, told sheriff's deputies that her husband had been out of town the past week working for a local construction company. She said he returned home Friday night, and during an argument, beat her with the butt of a high powered rifle.

She told investigating officials her husband left home Saturday morning and came back about 1:15 p.m., after which another argument arose. She said he then knocked her out the back door onto a porch.

She told officials she came back into the house and walked into a bedroom where the shotgun was standing. She picked the gun up, deputies related, and shot Dingler in the stomach as he approached her.

Two of the Dingler children were in the house during the fracas and verified the woman's statement. Four of their children were in the yard.

According to the sheriff's department, a neighbor was told about the shooting by one of the children and he in turn called the sheriff's department.

Deputies said Dingler was lying face up on the living room floor when they arrived. Mrs. Dingler had been taken to the hospital by neighbors.

Sheriff's officials said all information and evidence will be turned over to the district attorney.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete under the direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Monroe.

A veteran of World War II, he was a lifelong resident of West Monroe.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Dingler; four daughters, Mrs. Martha Weaver, Sally Dingler, April Dingler and Jacqueline Dingler, all of West Monroe; three sons, John Dingler, William Dingler and Bobby Dingler, all of West Monroe; two brothers, George and William Dingler, both of West Monroe; and one sister, Mrs. May Barnes of Sterlington.

Faubus Implies Backing Johnson

JONESBRO, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus said Saturday that President Johnson will visit Arkansas later this month.

"I will be with President Johnson on his first visit to the state, which I believe is Sept. 25," Faubus told a meeting of a county Democratic committee.

Faubus also gave an apparent endorsement of the Johnson-Humphrey ticket — for the first time publicly — when he told the meeting:

"I join in support of the Democratic nominees and the Democratic ticket."

New Milestone In History Of Ouachita River Marked

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

COLUMBIA — A big milestone in the history of the development of the Ouachita River was marked Saturday a few miles north of here.

With the ground - breaking ceremony of the new lock and dam, came the realization to many that the Ouachita once again will someday hum with big river traffic.

Gen. E. I. Davis, Vicksburg, division engineer of the U. S. Corps of Engineers, in charge of the actual construction, told those present at the ceremony that to realize the full potential of the river project, river ports and similar projects should be pushed toward construction beginning now.

Already, Caldwell Parish is moving ahead with such a port.

In a fact sheet issued on the Ouachita River nine-foot channel project, scheduled for completion in 1970, the Corps of Engineers says:

"The present six and one-half depth navigation project on the Ouachita-Black Rivers in Louisiana and Arkansas is maintained by a six system of six obsolete dams with lock chambers 55 feet by 268 feet and dredging as necessary where shoaling occurs.

Noting that the act authorizing a minimum nine-foot-channel for the two rivers went into effect in 1960, the Engineers report that is will be accomplished by building four new lock and dam structures to replace the existing structures, "dredging the channel deeper in some places as required and cutting off a number of sharp bends in the channel to make navigation safer and faster.

The structures will be located at Jonesville; at Columbia; at Felsenthal, Ark., and at Calion, Ark.

The entire project will cost near $80-million. The construction of the Columbia lock and dam will raise the normal low water pool elevation above the structure to 52 feet above sea level and create a slack water pool 107 miles long.

This elevation will eliminate the need for the present lock and dam No. 3 above Columbia, lock and dam No. 4 near Monroe, and lock and dam No. 5 near Sterlington.

On the downstream side of the Columbia dam, the normal low water elevation will be 34 feet above main sea level. This will result from the impoundment created by the Jonesville lock and dam 92 miles downstream.

According to the engineers, the Columbia dam, and the other dams in the project, will be of the most modern and efficient design presently in use.

With millions of dollars being pumped into the lower Mississippi River Valley, an area which takes in such rivers as the Ouachita, high federal and state officials have repeatedly urged local officials and civic leaders to take the lead in preparing for the full uses of water once more.

Many local leaders have already replied in like tone, and are making ready with ports such as the one at Columbia.

Pope Paul Back In Vatican City To Open Council

VATICAN CITY, (AP) — Pope Paul VI ended his summer vacation Saturday and returned to the Vatican for the start Monday of what he himself has called the decisive session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The pontiff was driven from his Castel Gandolfo residence in Rome's Alban Hills on a 45-minute trip to the Vatican.

Rome itself was filling with the almost 2,500 council fathers — cardinals, archbishops, bishops and others — who will continue Roman Catholicism's program of modernization and Christian unity efforts at the council's third session.

Among those en route were Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski of Communist Poland and 28 Polish bishops. Four Czech bishops arrived Friday.

Missing, however, was Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague, released last October after 14 years of jail and confinement.

The 75-year-old prelate said by telephone to Vienna that the Communist regime in Czechoslovakia would not allow him to accept an invitation from Pope Paul to attend the council.

The Czech archbishop has not been allowed to resume his pastoral duties. He lives at a Catholic old-age home in a Czech village.

KEEP IT UNDER YOUR BREATH

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The chairman of a large Johannesburg company sent this memo to his senior executives: "All executives who have been drinking vodka at lunchtime are requested hereafter to drink whisky. We would prefer our clients to regard our staff as inebriated, rather than stupid."

The memo stemmed from a change in Johannesburg business executives' midday drinking habits. Many have switched from whisky to vodka because they say the latter's telltale odor is less pronounced.

DEMOS SIGN PLEDGE

31 On Committee Support Goldwater

Thirty - one members of the State Democratic Central Committee signed a pledge Saturday offered by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe to support U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater for President.

Committeeman H. C. Sevier of Tallulah, absent from the Baton Rouge meeting, signed the pledge by proxy.

Besides Howard, Fifth District committeemen signing the Goldwater pledge were as follows:

Lawrence Gibbs, Ouachita; Capt. Jack Wylie, East Carroll; Ted Husser, Catahoula; M. B. Gwin, Concordia; Burton Wade, Tensas; Robert L. Fuller, Lincoln; T. T. Fields, Union; John T. O'Brien, Franklin; E. G. Brown, Richland; Joe T. Kelly, West Carroll; Duke Shackelford, Morehouse; and H. C. Sevier, Madison, who signed by proxy.

Other committeemen signing it included:

J. C. Campbell, Caddo; Leon M. Worley Jr., Caddo; Arthur Watson, Natchitoches; Phil St. Amant, East Baton Rouge; David R. Carroll, Caddo; Don Hinton, Webster; Leander Perez of Plaquemines; John Garrett, Claiborne; Dr. G. E. Barham, Calcasieu; James G. Boyer, Calcasieu; W. S. Kingrey, Allen; Glen Drewett, LaSalle; Stephen Dart, West Feliciana; Andrew P. Gay, Iberville; Edward J. Merrick, Coupee; W. J. Lawson Jr., East Feliciana; Bennie G. Farmer, Washington; and Thomas Landry, St. Tammany.

Humphrey Says Goldwater Would Reverse Nation

DENVER (UPI)—Democratic vice presidential nominee Hubert Humphrey characterized Sen. Barry Goldwater Saturday night as a political no-man to whom the voters "must say no . . . one hundred million times no."

Humphrey made the statement at Denver Stapleton Airfield when he arrived on his western campaign swing, and repeated it in remarks prepared for a party fund-raising rally in Denver City Auditorium.

Humphrey stepped off his chartered American Airlines Electra from Rapid City, S. D., into brilliant fall sunshine and to the cheers of a partisan crowd estimated at 1,000 persons. He climbed up on a flatbed truck and lit into the opposition.

President Johnson, he said, was a "man in the driver's seat with his foot on the accelerator", while Goldwater would put the nation into reverse.

Humphrey called on westerners to "rip out the weeds of injustice from the tracts of racism and reaction" at afternoon talks before a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism society, and a gathering at the Colorado Labor Council.

In an hour-long question and answer session at the Sigma Delta Chi meeting, Humphrey accused Goldwater of proposing to cut taxes and increase expenditures at the same time.

"He is proposing a 25 per cent tax cut over a five-year period — that's a $90 billion loss over five years," Humphrey said. "He has also called for fantastic increases in defense spending, however — for example, $10 billion to replace the B52 with a manned bomber; $20 billion for a new missile system to protect the cities, $7.5 billion additional for the space program."

Humphrey got the wildest reception of the day at the AFL-CIO political action meeting he attended after the journalism society speech. He was cheered for several minutes by about 300 labor leaders and members.

Saturday night's rally here was the scheduled windup of a fast-faced day of campaigning for the Minnesota senator in Denver and his home state of South Dakota.

He completed a two-day visit Saturday morning to the Huron, S. D., area where he grew up. He visited his 89-year-old mother and also hammed it up for photographers in the Humphrey family drug store at Huron.

EX-ANGOLA INMATE

'Old Wooden Ear' Admits To Killing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — William E. "Old Wooden Ear" Sadler, who founded a tabloid newspaper in 1940 at Louisiana State Penitentiary and campaigned against prison brutality, has admitted killing a Salt Lake City housewife 34 years ago, police said.

The 61-year-old Sadler was charged with the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Dexter Moormeister in Salt Lake City Feb. 21, 1930. He told officers in San Antonio, Tex., where he underwent a lie detector test, that the slaying was a paid job and that he ran over Mrs. Moormeister with her car on a gravel road.

Salt Lake City detective chief Dewey Fillis said results "indicate conclusively that Sadler was telling the truth" about the killing.

The gray-haired former New Orleans resident is being held by Pearsall, Tex., authorities who arrested him on a bad check charge. Pearsall is 50 miles southwest of San Antonio.

Officers said an informer who was in jail with Sadler wrote Salt Lake City authorities and told them Sadler admitted killing Mrs. Moormeister.

Skeptical because a number of persons have admitted the slaying in the past, Utah officials asked Texas officers to get a signed statement from Sadler. He signed the statement and made an oral statement which was tape recorded.

Sadler said he was promised $5,000 to kill Mrs. Moormeister, but claimed he actually got only $500.

Police said Sadler implicated several other persons whom officers declined to identify.

Sadler's career of crime ranges from writing bad checks to confidence games and his prison record dates back to 1922.

When he was sentenced to Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola for playing a confidence game, Sadler founded the weekly newspaper which was then known as "The Angola Argus."

He became famous for his caustic editorials on prison brutality and his various crusades to improve prison conditions. After several stints at Angola, he got a job on the old New Orleans Item. His expose, "Hell on Angola," helped in the drive to modernize and transform prison methods.

Sadler tagged himself "Old Wooden Ear" after his hearing was affected by a blow from a prison guard while working in the penitentiary's sugar cane field.

In 1952, he was sent back to Angola on a bad check charge, but in his final editorial when former Gov. Robert F. Kennon pardoned him, Sadler promised to turn "square John." He then headed back to the free world with a $35-a-week job with the Opelousas Daily World.

But he soon disappeared, was arrested with another man in Savannah, Ga., and returned to Louisiana where the charges later were dropped. Sadler then was sent to Memphis to serve time for failing to return a car he rented eight years before, and subsequently served two-and-a-half years in a federal penitentiary for sending worthless checks through the mails.

WILLIAM E. SADLER, 61, is shown in his Pearsall, Tex., jail cell recently as he talked of the 1930 slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Moormeister of Salt Lake City. Sadler was brought from Pearsall to San Antonio Friday for a lie detector test after admitting the crime. He was later charged with murder. (AP Wirephoto)

Transportation Courses Start Here This Week

Two transportation courses, including a new course in Interstate Commerce Law and Practice, will be offered to interested Twin Cities students starting this week, sponsored by the Delta Nu Alpha transportation fraternity and the Ouachita Valley Vocational School.

A course in Traffic and Transportation Management will begin Monday at 7 p.m. in the conference room of the main building at the Vocational School, 611 Cryer St., West Monroe. The instructor will be Guy Elliott Jr., of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation.

The new course in Interstate Commerce Law is scheduled to start Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Nursing Building at the Vocational School. Harry Dixon, local traffic and transportation consultant, will teach the course.

J. S. Clark, assistant director of the school, said there are still openings in both these classes. The courses will teach theory and the practical application of everyday shipping, transportation and distribution problems.

Those wishing to attend may register at the first meeting or contact Clark at the Vocational School, FA 3-3491.

Small Business Loan Specialist Visit Scheduled

E. J. Molony, branch manager of the Small Business Administration Office in New Orleans, announced that Laon Specialist Doyce N. London of that office will be in Monroe on Wednesday, September 16, in Room 304, U.S. Post Office and Federal Court Building from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., to confer with anyone interested in the services of this government agency.

"This is a continuance of the policy of the Small Business Administration to make its services more convenient to the small businessmen and the banks in the Monroe area," Molony said.

Molony said, also, "It would be helpful if inquirers would bring with them at the time of the interview a recent balance sheet and profit and loss statements for the past three years.

It is planned that a representative of SBA will visit Monroe monthly," Molony said.

EASTBOURNE, England — (UPI) — David John Epps was in jail here for making too deep an impression. The 22-year-old Epps is charged with trying to strangle a female acquaintance. Said Epps in his defense: "I only gripped her round the throat. I did it to impress her because she would

Assassination Report Almost Ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren said Saturday it is "a good bet" that his investigating commission will send to President Johnson next week its 700-page report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Other sources estimated the White House may issue the findings on the Sept. 27 weekend, but some predicted the tasks of final editing, printing and binding could take a little longer.

Warren told reporters, after a week of night-and-day labor by the seven investigators, that the completion of editing and revising is now "a matter of days" but that public distribution is up to the White House.

"I hope it will be very soon," Warren said. "We're just driving to get it all done. . .Our job is completed when we report to the President."

Persons having business in the well-guarded headquarters of the presidential commission are being handed a hard-bound blue volume, nearly 1¾ inches thick, bearing the presidential seal in gold and the title:

"The President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy — Report."

But it is just a printer's dummy. All the pages are blank. When they are filled in they will disclose "some surprises", according to well posted sources, but no substantial evidence to dispute the earliest findings of federal agents — that:

—Lee Harvey Oswald, unstable Marxist and steady marksman, shot John F. Kennedy dead in Dallas, Tex.,— last Nov. 22 without coconspirators or helpers, here or overseas.

—Jack Ruby, convicted murderer of Oswald, acted in outraged grief at what he conceived to be an agent of retribution, and thus unthinkingly killed all hope of an Oswald confession.

The commissioners are described as deeply conscious of the historical significance and international impact of their findings. They have written an exhaustive analysis, it was reported, of speculation and rumors about a right-wing plot in the United States or a Communist conspiracy abroad.

Much of the delay in completion of the report since the original target date — June 30 — is said to have resulted from painstaking efforts to make sure that each such report is traced down and the rebuttals amply documented.

Warren told reporters the commissioners have worked daily as late as midnight during the past week, and many staff members have been laboring until 3 or 4 a.m.

The task now is primarily editing proofs from the Government Printing Office, Warren said, including the checking of "thousands of footnotes, references to the appendices."

But another commission member hinted that the word "editing could be broadly interpreted. "We're still writing," he said.

The report will include, early in the text, a summary of the commission' findings, perhaps 20 to 25 pages long; then hundreds of pages of narrative and analytical text, with some illustrations; and finally, some condensed appendices.

In addition, there will be 20 or more volumes — each one only slightly thinner than the report itself — containing the transcripts of testimony of hundreds of witnesses questioned in closed hearings, as well as depositions, investigation reports, and exhibits.

Vast quantities of type already have been set, and printer's proofs have been completed on the bulk of the report. Commission sources said that when the editing is finally finished, the actual printing may require only a day and a half, but the entire process of manufacturing finished books in sufficient quantity might take a week.

Copies of the report will be bound in paper as well as hard covers, and will be available for public sale by the Government Printing Offices.

IN GOP CIRCLES

Goldwater Foes Eye Governors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Republican leaders who have stood apart or joined reluctantly in Sen. Barry Goldwater's presidential campaign are going after governorships in 1965 and 1966 in an effort to regain party control.

While they aren't saying so publicly, prominent GOP figures who opposed Goldwater's nomination are almost all convinced that the Arizona senator will be defeated in November by President Johnson.

Even if he is, Goldwater will remain in control of the GOP national machinery which he and his conservative associates have taken over lock, stock and barrel. The moderates thus will face the problem of how to regain the party command they held at the presidential level until Goldwater swept all before him at San Francisco.

In informal conferences the moderates have agreed that it would be an almost impossible task to try to overturn conservative control of the national committee, members of which were elected for four-year terms at the July nominating convention.

But they see the possibility, through the election of Republican governors who share their views, of making their weight felt in the direction of party affairs in the next four years and in the choice of a nominee in 1968.

In line with this thinking, Sen. Clifford P. Case has held open the possibility that he might make the race for governor of New Jersey next year.

Although it is two years ahead, Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel is reported considering the idea of seeking the governorship in California.

The moderates have an ally in New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. But if Rockefeller should decide not to seek another term in 1966, Sen. Jacob K. Javits can be counted upon to undertake the race there.

Alaska, Hawaii and Virginia also have governor contests in 1965. Alaska and Hawaii offer some hopes for the moderates of turning up with GOP candidates who follow their party line. Virginia seems certain to go Democratic again.

In 1966 there are gubernatorial races in 33 states, in which Republicans now hold 13 offices. Only a few of these GOP state executives supported Goldwater for the nomination, while several openly opposed him.

Some of these governors can run for re-election and some, like Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania who went down to the wire against Goldwater at the convention, are barred by state law from seeking further tenure.

DISCUSSING COUNTRIES throughout the world where servicemen and families are informed of emergencies and family problems by the local Red Cross office are, left to right, Mrs. A. S. Huffman, Mrs. C. L. Gilbert, Homer Tillery and Clark Boyce. The Red Cross is one of 13 agencies for which funds will be raised in the 1965 United Givers Fund campaign. Boyce has been named as Large Business Division chairman, and Tillery, Small Business Division chairman, for the Monroe area UGF drive. Another divisional leader for the Monroe area campaign is J. H. (Slim) Scogin Jr., Advance Gifts chairman. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

BY MONROE CHAIRMAN

UGF Divisional Leaders Named

Three divisional leaders have been named to positions in the 1965 United Givers Fund campaign.

The appointments, announced Saturday by J. C. (Mose) Loftin, Chairman of the Monroe area, include J. H. (Slim) Scogin Jr., Chairman, Advance Gifts; Clark Boyce, Large Business Division; and Homer Tillery, Small Business Division.

President of the Monroe City School Board, Scogin holds numerous positions of leadership in various civic and charitable organizations. He is a past President of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce and has served on organization's Executive Committee.

Scogin is also Director of the Northeast College Boosters' Club, a Director of the Ouachita Valley River Association and a former Director of the Salvation Army, a United Givers Fund agency. He has served as a Director of the United Givers for a number of years and has been active in United Givers drives since their beginning in 1956, and last year served as Chairman of the Monroe area drive.

Boyce, a member of the United Givers Board of Directors, was Chairman of the transportation team in the 1962 United Givers Fund drive and worked in the Commercial Section last year. He is President of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club and is Secretary of the vestry of Grace Episcopal Church.

Tillery, Manager of Sears, Roebuck and Company, comes to the 1965 United Givers Fund drive with many years of campaign experience from Georgia, where he was a Sears store manager. He is a member of the Monroe Rotary Club, board member of the Salvation Army, on the Executive Committee of the United Givers Fund, member of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, and the Louisiana Retailers Association.

Loftin explained that the Advance Gifts Division is one of the most important groups in the campaign. Workers in this division will begin solicitation shortly after Labor Day, calling on the leading firm in Monroe. Advance Gifts workers will solicit companies for their corporate gifts only.

Around September 21, workers in the Large Business Division will begin making arrangements for solicitation of all employees in Monroe firms employing 10 or more persons. These firms are grouped into five major sections, according to the type of business, including industrial, commercial, construction trades, governmental-education. These are more than 600 firms, governmental offices, and schools to be contacted through this division.

The workers in the Small Business Division will begin solicitation on September 30, the date of the general campaign kickoff. This group of volunteers will be organized into 24 teams of five to six workers each and will call on businesses employing less than 10 persons. No house - to - house solicitation is conducted by United Givers. This division is organized on a geographic basis and is the largest of the campaign in terms of manpower required and number of accounts to be contacted.

More than 900 volunteers will be working in the 1965 United Givers campaign when all campaign spots are filled, General Campaign Chairman Ralph Caldwell explained. Recruiting will continue until the middle of September, he said.

The overall 1965 campaign goal for the parish - wide campaign was set by the United Givers Fund board last month at $270,262. The campaign seeks contributions from all employed persons in the parish for 13 local health, welfare, and character - building agencies.

Sam Jones Will Share Rostrum With Goldwater

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Former Governor Sam Jones will share the rostrum with Senator Barry Goldwater when the presidential candidate makes an appearance in New Orleans on Sept. 17, according to Charlton Lyons, Sr., state campaign chairman.

The senior statesman is the second high-ranking Democratic official announced to participate in the program. Lt. Governor C. C. "Taddy" Aycock has accepted the invitation to introduce Senator Goldwater.

Governor Jones, also a prominent civic leader, will make a short address. "I am honored and delighted," he said, "to have an opportunity to tell the people of Louisiana how their best interests can be served by Barry Goldwater." He added that his remarks would cover the vital issues facing the state of Louisiana and the nation.

A resident of Lake Charles, Governor Jones served from 1940 to 1944.

The Goldwater party will touch down in Shreveport for a prop-stop. His campaign jet will make the short trip to New Orleans for the evening program.

'DISMAYED, DISGUSTED'

Monroe City Judge Raps LBJ Regime

Monroe City Judge W. M. Harper Saturday issued a statement in which he denounced the Johnson administration and listed his reasons for finding it "utterly impossible to vote for Johnson."

The veteran jurist, dean of municipal judges in Louisiana, said he was sure he would be "joined by millions of other good Americans, white and black alike, who feeling themselves betrayed, ... uniformly pray for a change come November third."

Judge Harper, a lifelong Democrat, further said he was "dismayed and disgusted" with the present administration.

He joins a number of other civic leaders in northeast Louisiana who have expressed opposition to the current national administration.

Judge Harper's statement read:

"When the mantle of presidential authority fell upon the shoulders of the present White House incumbent, hope sprang anew in the hearts of all southerners that this brother of southern soil and sinew would set about to heal the ever-mounting tensions and unrest of racial discord, he then having, as if by divine touch, had the Sword of Success thrust into his hands.

"But this son of the south had lust for power and un unquenchable thirst for public acclaim which had earned for him the scorn and discredit not only of great hordes of whites and blacks of the South, but as well of North, East and West. He and his subalterns scorn the existence of a white backlash and dismiss with disdain a black backlash that threatens to swarm the fishing banks on election day.

"It seems vainless repetition to redo a picture already vividly portrayed on American canvas of the Bakers, Billy Sol Estes, stereo gift, insurance rebate, fourteen millions in fourteen years, stadium contract kickback, the holocaust of city crimes, pillage and violence of recent months (ordered abated now until after the election), scuttling of the Monroe Doctrine, an unrestrained Castro who levels missiles at us within 90 miles of our shores, a bungling international diplomacy and its resultant murders of our sons abroad, the Texas voting scandals in which the dead arose from their graves to vote LBJ into the U.S. Senate, an ever-growing trend to socialism and left-wingism, and on and on ad infinitum, because all have seen and heard the sordid story for themselves.

"But one appalling facet gone without serious notice has been the president's voluntary promise on assuming the robes of office to trod the path of economic rectitude and austerity in all things governmental which won resounding applause nationwide, but alas only too soon the president made an abrupt about-face to begin an orgy of wholesale squander of our tax dollars with an abandon to sober even the ancient mariner.

"All of this in face of a national debt crowding $330-billions, which, according to tables supplied by Congressman Otto Passman, would require better than a hundred years to liquidate on an amortized annual basis of fifteen billions with a perpetually balanced budget a necessary must. But what do we behold? Our abstemious leader with Midas dexterity raids an already pillaged public treasury, scattering tax dollars hither and yon with a November democratic victory the sole objective.

"And witness, if you will, in wake of avowals of penny-pinching frugality, the never before heard of pre-election hikes in salaries of ALL who labor for Federal, land, sea and air alike, and in countless cases to extents varying from $7,500 to $10,000 per annum per capita, under the silly premise that such outlandish hikes were necessary to attract and hold men of talent in governmental service, when in truth and in fact ALL have so rocked in the lap of luxury and been suckled by the Goddess of Fortune that none would fail to resist to the utmost any who deigned oppose them anterior to these election handouts.

"And observe the most recent incursion of our destitute treasury to the tune of a near billion dollars in a glaringly phony, poverty - labeled, vote - grabbing election day slush fund that by comparison pales into insignificance all prior pork barrel grabs. And too frequent now to attract public interest, Johnson's barbecue jaunts to LBJ Ranch at public expense. One item alone, according to press releases, involving use of an Army jet plane costing $2,500 an hour to operate, so sit down and figure for yourselves the costs of this single unit in tax dollars for a round-trip spree to roast pig ribs and guzzle in an atmosphere of ranching affluence and Johnsonian luxury.

"Public exposure of this ruinous cost moved Johnson to make his Detroit debut in a less costly airborne job costing, say the press, ONLY $525 an hour to gullible Democrats. Which prompts me to wonder who footed the bill for Lady Bird's recent political jet entourage of the West, and who will pay for her impending special choo-choo sweep through the Southland designed to woo back with her fading southern charm the votes of the lost cause.

"These and manifold other complaints add up to voice the reason why I, a lifelong Democrat, find it utterly impossible to vote for Johnson, in which I am surely to be joined by millions of other good Americans, white and black alike, who feeling themselves betrayed, are dismayed and disgusted and uniformly pray for a change come November third."

TRAVELING SCHOLARS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A "traveling scholar plan" has gained good acceptance during its first year, says the new chairman of the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

The chairman, Ohio State University vice president and dean of faculties Dr. John C. Weaver, said 41 graduate students took part. Eleven major Midwest universities are participating in the program, which allows a graduate student to go to another campus for a quarter or two to take advantage of a particularly good course or facility.

Goldwater Wants Report On Situation In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater demanded Saturday that President Johnson tell the nation what is going on in South Viet Nam without "waiting for a politically opportune moment to turn the spotlight on it."

Refueling a smouldering campaign controversy, the Republican residential nominee charged again that the Democrats timed the October 1962 Cuban missile crisis for political advantage.

And he implied Johnson is doing the same thing now with the situation in Southeast Asia.

"This administration appears to be playing politics with international crisis and potential disaster," Goldwater said in a statement.

The Arizona senator added:

"If there is a crisis growing in Viet Nam, now is the time to tell the people about it. If there is a solution brewing there, now is the time to tell the American people about it.

"This is not the time to be fighting a war in the dark, to be facing an uncertain future in the dark, to be waiting for a politically opportune moment to turn the spotlight on it."

Goldwater thus kept up the bareknuckled punching at Johnson that marked the first week of his campaign for the White House. He heads south Tuesday for another round.

His statement was issued at Republican national headquarters while the nominee relaxed and conferred with top aides.

The senator has claimed 250,000 people have seen him on the campaign trail.

"When 250,000 turn out to see a Republican candidate, that means something," he said.

In Seattle on Wednesday, Goldwater charged that the Democrats, under the late President John F. Kennedy, timed the Cuban crisis to "take action at a time that would have maximum political impact."

"Americans must be prepared," he said at that time, "under such an administration, to be faced by crisis of some sort just before an election. What will it be this time?"

Next morning, he said "it could develop any place. I wouldn't be surprised if it happened in Cuba again."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Goldwater was showing a "basic lack of understanding" about the responsibilities of an American president.

And Sen. Pierre Salinger, D-Calif., who was Kennedy's press secretary, said Goldwater's charge on the Cuban crisis was the "wildest distortion . . . the facts of history have been bent beyond any recognition."

Goldwater said Administration spokesmen deny it, but the Democrats are "not beyond manipulating a foreign policy crisis in order to influence an election.

He said Rusk and Salinger ignore it but "this was done prior to the last congressional election when the Administration waited for dangerous days and weeks before taking action, or even speaking out, in regard to the Soviet missiles in Cuba."

Turning to Southeast Asia, Goldwater said, "this Administration has been letting the situation slip away in Viet Nam for four years now. It has never taken the American people into its confidence regarding the situation."

Goldwater said "two significant items of news" about Viet Nam have been brought to light.

One, he said, is that Ambassador Maxwell Taylor "is pessimistic about the military situation." He said the other is that U.S. forces are surveying beaches there in case an invasion becomes necessary.

Goldwater did not say where he got this information.

But he said if the United States puts new pressure on the Communist economy and supply lines "it is another instance of this Administration belatedly following advice that we have been giving for months."

The GOP National Committee announced Goldwater's nationwide television campaign will open Friday night when a taped Goldwater appearance will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p.m., EDT, over more than 200 CBS stations.

DOWN THE HATCH

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— Californians over the age of 15 annually consume 253 cans of beer, 15½ fifths of wine and 13½ fifths of distilled spirits, according to Dr. Malcolm Merrill, state health director.

Since some don't drink at all, many drink much more than the average, he added.

16-YEARS OLD

Youth Tells Police About Rape, Killing

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A muscular teen-ager told police Saturday he drowned two infants after he stabbed, beat and raped their attractive brunette mother.

Friends said dark-haired Charles Roy Hefley, believed to be 16, talked with them at a drive-in after the assault as if nothing had happened.

The victims were David Adams, 1, and Dickie Adams, 2½.

Their mother, Mrs. Carolyn Adams, 20, was in a critical condition from 14 stab wounds and a severe beating with a pipe.

Detectives Leroy Sherrill and H.W. Sinclair quoted her as saying "I crawled all night" after the attack beside a rural road. But she traveled only a few yards, where she was found at midmorning Friday, nude and barely conscious.

Officers began questioning the youth after Mrs. Adams pressed the hand of a detective as he recited names and came to Hefley's, a neighbor. She was semiconscious and unable to talk.

Hefley told newsmen that he told Mrs. Adams his name after he attacked her.

The youth first said he dropped David into the Trinity River and laid Dickie on the bank. Detective Cato Hightower said Hefley later related that he tossed both into the river. He led officers to the site and pointed out some of Mrs. Adams' scattered clothing.

At a late hour, Mrs. Adams was being assured that her children were safe because doctors feared further shock.

Hefley was charged Saturday with murder of the babies and rape of the mother. Dist. Atty. Doug Crouch said he will try Hefley as an adult after Dec. 1, when he reaches 17, the youngest age that he can be tried on any charge other than juvenile delinquency under Texas law.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Grady Hight said there is some evidence Hefley is 17. The death penalty cannot be sought if the person is under 17 when a crime takes place.

Police said Mrs. Adams, Hefley and others gave this account.

Mrs. Adams, estranged three months from her husband, had completed evening classes at Technical High School Thursday and picked up her children at her parents' home about 10:30 p.m.

As she got in the car, Hefley approached, thrust a knife at her, and took over the automobile.

He drove to a lonely spot, where he beat Mrs. Adams with a pipe, raped her, stabbed her with a paring knife and almost severed one foot.

Then Hefley dropped the children in the river.

West German Victim Of Plot By Russians

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany has formally protested to the Soviet Union against a mysterious poison attack on an official of the West German Embassy at Moscow, the Bonn Foreign Office announced Saturday.

The spokesman said that Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder summond Soviet Ambassador Andrei Smirnov Friday to demand a "thorough investigation" of the poison gas attack in which embassy technician Horst Schwirkmann was seriously injured.

Schwirkmann was attacked while attending church service at the Zagorsk Monastery, about 40 miles from Moscow, last Sept. 6, according to the spokesman.

First disclosure on the strange incident had come earlier Saturday night when Chancellor Ludwig Erhard was quoted as having told Parliamentary leaders that it was assumed to be the work of Soviet Intelligence agents.

The foreign office report did not make any reference to Soviet Intelligence. It gave this description:

Schwirkmann, who had joined several other members of the West German embassy staff in the trip to Zagorsk, "suddenly felt a blow on the upper thigh of his left leg."

The technician then noted that his slacks were soaked with a liquid. A few hours later, he felt strong pain and was taken to the U.S. Embassy physician who established that the injuries were caused by a poisonous chemical.

Schwirkmann's condition worsened rapidly, and the American physician suggested that he be transferred to a German hospital.

Schwirkmann was taken to Germany where several doctors agreed that the poison had been mustard gas, a lethal chemical used in combat in World War One, the foreign office said. He is still in critical condition.

Medical needs of the diplomatic and foreign press corps in Moscow are looked after by doctors at the British and American embassies.

Fall Semester Registration At Tech To Begin

RUSTON (Special) — Registration for the fall semester at Louisiana Tech is scheduled for Monday and Tuesday beginning at 9:30 a.m. Four buildings will be utilized to avoid congestion.

Packets of registration material can be picked up in the front foyer of Keeny Hall for graduate and undergraduate students who were enrolled at Tech last spring or the past summer session. Former students who applied for readmission prior to Sept. 11 and new students who sent in their applications prior to Sept. 11 may also pick their packets up at Kenny Hall. All other students should report to the registrar's office in Keeny Hall.

The student center or Howard Auditorium will be available for student's use in filling out the cards.

After the cards are finished the students will report to their faculty advisors in the education building to schedule classes. Class cards will also be obtained in the education building.

Students should then go to the student center to have class cards checked and pay fees.

Registration assistants will enroll from 8 until 8:45 a.m. Monday, followed by senior advisors at 8:45 to 9:30 a.m. All other students will register in alphabetical order.

Classes begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday.

NLSC Appoints Dr. Bruner To Chairman Post

Dr. Ruth Bruner has been named chairman of the Department of Office Administration at Northeast Louisiana State College, announced Dean Dwight D. Vines, dean of the School of Business Administration.

She joined the NLSC faculty earlier this summer after 18 years as professor of secretarial science at Northwestern State College, Natchitoches.

Prominent in state business education circles, she is past president of the Louisiana Business Education Association and is currently serving as state membership chairman of the Southern Business Education Association.

Three Receive Minor Injuries In 2 Accidents

Three persons received apparently minor injuries in two separate traffic accidents in Monroe Saturday, according to police reports.

Police said Clifton H. Smith Sr. of Winnsboro and Peggy W. Ketchell of 817 N. 4th St., West Monroe received minor injuries when the car Smith was driving apparently crashed into the rear of the car driven by Mrs. Ketchell, while she was stopped for a traffic signal at the corner of Oliver Road and Louisville.

Smith was arrested and booked on charges of reckless driving, driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, driving with ineffective brakes, and driving with an invalid driver's license.

In another accident Saturday a 26-year-old Negro woman was slightly injured when the car she was driving collided with another driven by William J. Veazey of 1425 Forsythe Ave., according to police reports. Police said the accident happened when the car driven by Veazey apparently ran the stop sign at the corner of 6th and Oak Streets. The woman was reportedly taken to a local hospital for emergency treatment.

Arkansas Paper To Back Demos

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Gazette announced its support for the Johnson-Humphrey ticket in an editorial prepared for Sunday editions.

For 145 years the newspaper has never supported a Republican candidate for president. The Gazette said its main reason for supporting Johnson was because "he is equipped to make the awesome decisions that devolve upon the president in the latter half of the 20th century."

GOVERNOR JOHN J. McKeithen is shown seated above as he signs papers approving the purchase of 10,300 acres of land in Catahoula parish to be dedicated to wildlife restoration and outdoor recreation purposes. This tract joins and will be made a part of the 50,000 acre Saline wildlife management area in LaSalle parish which was bought by the state earlier this year. Shown with Gov. McKeithen during the signing of the act of sale are, left to right, R. E. Gallicott of Baton Rouge, seller of the land; Ray Whatley of Alexandria, chairman of the Wildlife and Fisheries commission; J. E. Kyle, Jr. of Berwick, member of the commission; J. D. Hair, Jr. of Baton Rouge, commission director; H. B. Fairchild of Sunshine, member of the commission.

IN CATAHOULA PARISH

McKeithen Okays Purchase Of Land

Governor John J. McKeithen has approved the purchase of 10,300 acres of land in Catahoula parish which is to be dedicated to wildlife restoration and outdoor recreation purposes. The purchase price was $29 per acre.

J. D. Hair, Jr., director of the Wild Life and Fisheries commission, in commenting on the transaction, said: "This is a milestone in the proper management of Louisiana's wildlife resources and will guarantee forever that this huge area will be preserved as a home for wildlife and a place for future generations to fish and hunt and enjoy the great outdoors."

"This purchase of land gives the Wild Life and Fisheries commission and people of Louisiana a direct link to Larto Lake, considered one of the finest freshwater sport fishing lakes in the country," Hair added.

In addition to the excellent fishing areas the tract will afford hunting opportunities to thousands of sportsmen each year. Deer, squirrel, rabbits, and waterfowl should be plentiful for the many generations ahead.

The Wild Life and Fisheries commission, custodian of the property, has already instituted a wildlife management program on the 50,000 acre adjacent tract and will begin immediately to make long range plans for the new acreage.

A free six-months option has been held on the tract and members of the commission unanimously agreed to pick up this option at its regular public meeting on August 25.

New Masur Museum To Open Today

By PAUL WANK

The Masur Museum of Art at 1400 S. Grand opens its doors for the first time to the public today at 2 p.m.

The Art Center Group, curators of the museum, have secured a very fine exhibit for the grand opening. The showing, entitled, "New Images of San Francisco," is a traveling show sponsored by the San Francisco Art Institute. Each work in the exhibit is of some image or feeling by a San Francisco artist about his city, perhaps the most exciting city in the United States.

There are some 31 works in this exhibit by as many artists. I wish I had space to discuss each one; however, I have picked the best and most exciting to discuss.

The most interesting one to me is Robert Collins' "Queen of Cities, Aerial View." It is a collage made up of, believe it or not, a woman's corset. However, the skill of the artist triumps and the mundane corset disappears and becomes a map of the city.

Robert Harvey's painting of "Pigeons in Union Square" is interesting for the artist's controlled use of color. At first glance this painting appears to be without color but closer inspection shows that the artist has very carefully layered one thin layer of color on top of another to produce this beautiful painting.

Normally when I think of a fog-bound city, I see dark grey shapes, by Henri Marie-Rose with his painting "Fog Bound" has given the same impression with a major difference — he has used warm colors and given us the feeling of a fog-bound city waiting for the sun to burn off the fog.

A very small watercolor by Joseph Brooks entitled, "Lincoln Park," shows what image an artist can convey with just three or four brush strokes. This watercolor is not only interesting because of that feat but because the artist has captured a mood, an instant in time in a very small space.

Sometimes collages succeed because of their gimicky nature but not so this one by Katherine Barieau. She has taken the physical characteristics of her papers and made them become something else. The type on a scrap of newspaper no longer remains type but becomes windows in a building. When an artist can do this, a collage is more than a gimmick, it is a work of art.

There are many different images to excite the eye. There is something for all. This exhibit allows you to see how 31 different people see the same thing. It is very exciting and everyone in the area should make an attempt to see it. The museum will be open daily except Monday from 2 until 5 p.m. The current exhibit will remain at the museum until Oct. 5.

Whatever RFK's Allure, It's Working

EDITOR'S NOTE — Robert F. Kennedy started his campaign for the U.S. Senate in New York last week. At times it seemed more like a movie idol's tour than a politician on the hustings. Here a reporter who accompanied Kennedy tells about this remarkable beginning.

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it the allure of the name, "Kennedy?"

Is it curiousity to see in person the man about whom so much has been said, pro and con?

Is it sympathy for the brother of an assassinated president, making him the repository today for all the grief and shock of last November?

Whatever the answer — and nobody could say with certainty — Robert F. Kennedy was a political hurricane in upstate New York last week. Sweeping across predominantly Republican territory, he stirred waves of emotion, scenes of frenzy, an astonishing human storm.

Women smeared his face with lipstick. They ran beside his car to grab and kiss his hand. In Plattsburgh, a man gripped him around the neck and pounded his back, yelling, "Bobby! Bobby!" He was showered with flowers, confetti and rice as his open convertible passed.

Three times, while standing in the car to shake hands, he was almost pulled over backwards. After that, one aide grabbed his belt and another a leg to keep him upright. A woman, pawing at him, scratched his chin. He was mauled, pummeled and crushed in the crowds.

This happened over and over again.

Kennedy is campaigning for the seat in the U.S. Senate now held by Republican Kenneth B. Keating, who is seeking reelection. Last Tuesday, he began a three-day tour of upstate New York. Some of the cities there are Democratic and some swing between the parties in elections. But Kennedy went into counties where the GOP bulge in registration is 3-and 4-1.

Nobody knew what to expect.

There was the "carpetbagger" charge, based on the fact that Kennedy was born in Massachusetts, and has been living in Virginia.

And there was the fact that Keating is popular and respected, with a long record in Washington.

Kennedy flew to Binghamton in the Caroline — the plane that John F. Kennedy used in the presidential campaign of 1960.

It was like the 1960 campaign all over again, but with one difference: John F. Kennedy was almost invariably gay and highspirited between stops, whereas vestiges of the stricken, haunted expression still come over Robert Kennedy's face and he stares out the window in long silences.

During the three days, he made 51 speeches in 15 cities and 21 smaller communities.

On Thursday, the last day of the tour, he fell four hours behind his announced times of arrival.

He reached Plattsburgh, next-to-last stop in the itinerary, exactly at midnight. To his own surprise, several thousand people were still waiting, packed tight behind the fences at the airport.

Other thousands jammed the approaches of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Bridge over Saranac River. Kennedy dedicated it in a brief and solemn ceremony, recalling the words of his brother's inaugural address, "The torch is passed."

Back in his car as he left the bridge, he turned to an aide and asked, "Do I have to make another speech?" his voice was thin.

"One more here, Bob," the aide said. "There are a lot of people waiting in town. You can make a political speech there. I'd suggest. . . ."

Kennedy didn't take the suggestion. In the crowd, he saw a placard, "Robert Kennedy represents irresponsible government."

Taking that as his cue, he cited the actions of the Kennedy - Johnson administration, closing each shouted sentence with the words, "is that irresponsible government?"

The crowd roared and the placard disappeared.

Brother Of City Resident Dies

Forrest R. Smith, 65, of Holmesville, Ohio, died early Saturday in a Holmesville hospital. Mr. Smith was a brother of French L. Smith, Sr., of 2014 Frances Place, Monroe.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

A native of Tyler County, W. Va., Mr. Smith was an oil and gas producer. He was a 32nd Degree Mason and a member of the Christian Church.

In addition to his brother in Monroe, he is survived by his widow, three children, one other brother, Fred A. Smith of Wooster, Ohio; and one sister, Mrs. Margaret E. Smith, Akron, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. French Smith are leaving today for Holmesville.

Senior Citizens Set To Campaign For Medical Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Council of Senior Citizens Saturday summoned 50 of its key leaders from all over the country to report here next week to fight for the administration's medicare bill.

Blue Carstenson, council executive director, said he expected a show-down House vote on the legislation on Thursday. The bill would provide hospital and nursing home care for the aged under the Social Security program.

Carstenson said the 50 council leaders coming here had been culled for their "leadership qualities" from the organization's 2 million members.

He said most were in their sixties and seventies and that one woman, Mrs. Anna Strojny, of Chicago, was confined to a wheel chair. Mrs. Strojny is president of the Polish-American Senior Citizens Council of Chicago.

Carstenson said the council oldsters would button-hole congressmen to convince them to vote for the medicare proposal.

A LESSON WELL LEARNED

Next U.S. Patrol To Tonkin Will Take Protective Mate

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the U.S. Navy sends another patrol into Tonkin Gulf — as it has said it will do — a two-destroyer team instead of the previous one-ship patrol is expected to be used.

Both the United States and North Viet Nam, the latter under Red Chinese tutelage, learned lessons from the sea skirmishes of Tonkin Gulf last month.

The destroyer Maddox was patroling off the North Viet Nam coast alone on Aug. 2 when three Communist patrol boats sped in from over the horizon and made a not-too-well-organized torpedo attack. The Maddox maneuvered away from the torpedo tracks and beat off the attacking boats with gunfire. But it was close.

On orders from President Johnson, the destroyer Turner Joy quickly joined the Maddox for the rest of the patrol. Two days later, the Red patrol boats came out again and launched an attack at night, a more favorable time for the attackers. But the two destroyers, working together, routed the Reds once more, again without suffering casualties or damage.

In retrospect, some naval tacticians say that it was and is unwise for a single destroyer to operate in waters in which patrol boat attack is a definite possibility.

Even though fast for a big ship, a destroyer cannot outrun the high-performance PT boat. She must rely on maneuverability and fire from her guns. And to bring her main armament fully to bear she must turn and circle sharply, which exposes the single ship's flank to the enemy boats.

But, the tacticians say, two destroyers working in synchronized maneuvers can cover each other as they fire on the attacking boats.

For this, among other reasons, the Navy is understood to have decided to send in no more one-destroyer patrols into waters where another attack could come.

The Reds made tactical errors themselves, experts believe after assessing some of the reports.

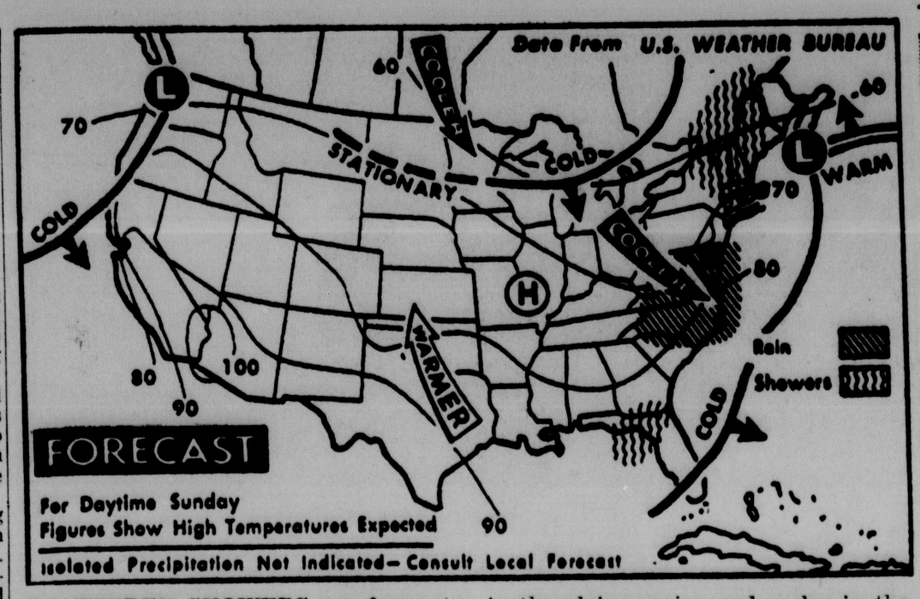
For one thing, the three torpedo boats used in the first attack on the Maddox weren't enough. More were available in nearby ports. This was demonstrated in the second attack, when more boats made another vain attempt to sink the U.S. ships.

A second error pointed to is the failure to make a simultaneous three-boat attack in the first incident. Two Red boats ran in first to launch torpedoes while the third boat trailed, waiting until the first two had launched their torpedoes from starboard of the maddox. A more effective plan would have been for the third boat to take up position from the port side of the target and launch simultaneously with the other two.

What happened was that the Maddox was able to drive off the first two boats and then turn her exclusive attention to the lone third boat.

Both the patrol boats and the training for crews come from the Red Chinese Navy.

The U.S. Navy does not know whether all of the crewmen aboard the patrol boats in the two attacks were North Vietnamese or whether Red Chinese advisers might have been among them.



SCATTERED SHOWERS are forecast today for portions of the New England area and eastern Gulf coast region. Rain is expected in the middle Atlantic states. Temperatures will be warmer in the plains region and cooler in the middle Atlantic coast states. Little temperature change is expected elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map)

WHO'S THE GOOD GUY?

Cold War Gets Curiouser

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Writer

In the wonderland of cold war politics, as Alice would say, things are getting curiouser and curiouser.

Bizarre spectacles which would have been unthinkable a short time back are taken for granted these days. Coups, swift changes in government, can shift a nation's cold war position overnight.

Yesterday's detractor becomes today's bad guy. Yesterday's eternal verity becomes today's heresy. The citizenry must read its newspapers carefully to steer its way through the mazes of confusion.

It is not peculiar to one or the other world camp. If the Western side manages to bewilder its citizens from time to time, the Communist side regularly induces consternation.

The prime example of allies acting like enemies is the interminable propaganda war between the Chinese and Soviet Communists, now throwing at one another epithets — like colonialist and imperialist — they used only against the West when they were in their publicly proclaimed period of "eternal and unbreakable friendship."

But the Americans, British and French all have had their own turnabouts.

In Asia, Africa and Latin America, U.S. policy is bedevilled by monumental dilemmas. The United States proclaims devotion to representative government and self-determination, but often finds itself with no choice but to support the latest military dictatorship, or risk Communist political invasion.

The British suffer through an agonizing conflict between a world policy involving liquidation of colonialism and their ties with their former colonies. The French, who lost Indochina largely because of Red Chinese support of the North Vietnamese revolution, now recognize Peking and, to the dismay of their U.S. allies, support the notion of neutralization of Viet Nam as a solution to chronic crisis in Southeast Asia.

The Russians, nagged by what they call "ultrarevolutionary" Communists around the world, have gone through policy flips and flops all over the map, now supporting and now condemning this or that government, depending upon who is in charge of it.

The Communists are enmeshed in an astonishing conflict over West Germany. Peking and Moscow have both denounced the Bonn government as a menacing, revengeseeking, militaristic-minded regime. Then they trade accusations as to which of them is being more friendly to the West German government.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev probably offended his faithful East German Communist follower, Walter Ulbricht, by agreeing to travel to Bonn for friendly visit to Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Lynda Johnson Helps Kentucky Open Campaign

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Democrats opened their fall campaign Saturday and Lynda Bird Johnson said she envies Kentuckians' being able to vote at 18.

"This is one of those lucky states where you can vote a little earlier," said President's Johnson's oldest daughter who, at 20, is a year away from voting age in her home state of Texas.

"I hope you vote the way I would if I could," she said.

A pair of speeches by the President's tall and dimpled daughter capped a busy visit here. She greeted a crowd of about 500 gathered for a chili luncheon at the home of former Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt.

She went from Louisville to Nashville, Tenn., for another Democratic rally.

Miss Johnson led the singing of "Happy Birthday" to Mrs. Edward T. Breathitt, wife of Kentucky's governor, during a private luncheon, then directed singing of "Hello, Lyndon" a bit later.

And she took an unscheduled walk through the Kentucky State Fair, in progress near Freedom Hall, where a rally and hootenanny was held. She went riding on an 84-foot double ferris wheel.

Rules On Speeding Violations Revised

All speeding violations on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus here this year will be handled through Monroe City Court, Robert Tate, chief campus security officer, announced Saturday.

In the past, speeding violations have been handled by the college.

Other violations will continue to be handled by Northeast.

Tate urges all prospective new students at Northeast to become acquainted with campus traffic regulations. Registration will be held at the College Wednesday and Thursday and classes will begin Friday morning.

Any motor vehicle operated by a person connected with the college — faculty, staff or student — must be registered within 48 hours after the vehicle is brought to the campus. The operator of the vehicle will be assigned a parking zone.

Tate emphasized that any person with more than one car to be used on campus should register both.

Parking zone restrictions will be in effect from 7:00 until 3:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7:30 until 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays.

The speed limit on Chauvin Avenue, Renwick Circle, Mitchell Avenue, Hippolite Street, LaSalle Street and Bayou Drive is 15 miles per hour and on College Avenue 25 m.p.h.

Fines for parking violations will be $1. Anyone receiving more than three parking tickets may be dismissed from college or have his driving privileges on campus suspended.

Penalties for moving violations — failure to give pedestrians right of way, digging out, driving wrong way on one-way street, faulty muffler, faulty lights, failure to stop at stop signs and failure to stop on signal of security officer — will be suspension of campus driving privileges for 30 days or more for first violation suspension of campus driving privileges for 60 days or more for second violation; and suspension of campus driving privileges for remainder of school year or dismissal from college for third violation.

Tate noted that speeding violators are subject to the same penalities, plus any handed out in city court.

The campus security chief reminds all students that pedestrians have the right-of-way on the campus at all times.

Miller Becomes Mate's Defender During 1st Week

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Barry Goldwater's running mate has taken on the double assignment of serving as sword and shield for the Republican presidential candidate

In his first full week of campaigning, Rep. William E. Miller alternated between slashing attacks on all things Democratic and defending Goldwater from what he said were distortions of the senator's record.

Miller lived up fully to the expectation that he would be a tough, hard-hitting campaigner.

From Portland, Me., to Chicago in the past week, he has kept up a machinegun-fire of criticism on President Johnson, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Adlai Stevenson, George Meany, Walter Reuther and many other Democrats and their partisans.

To the dismay of a hard-working staff, Miller more often than not cast aside a carefully prepared text and spoke extemporaneously.

Even without a written text, his speeches are clear, well organized and encompass practically the whole range of political oratory, from light-hearted jokes and sarcasm to appeals to Americans to "join us in this crusade."

After a week of testing, he knows what comments are the most popular.

One of the most popular with every crowd is Miller's recitation of the changes, as he sees them, since the Democrats took over from the Republicans in 1960.

"Russian missiles in Cuba . . . the Bay of Pigs fiasco . . . the wall in Berlin . . . the Communist government in Laos . . . American boys being shot at and killed in Viet Nam . . . fiscal irresponsibility, deficits and the biggest national debt in our history . . . violence in our streets and corruption in the highest counsels of our government."

Miller always brings the Republican house down when he follows that up by stating in his most ringing tones:

"And Lyndon Johnson has the colossal gauhl to stand up and say 'Let us continue'."

Miller has singled out three key areas in which to discuss the Goldwater record. They are civil rights, Social Security, and presidential control of nuclear weapons.

Democrats, and some Republicans, have argued that Goldwater has a poor record on civil rights, advocates a voluntary Social Security and has favored could lead it into bankruptcy, and favors giving NATO field commanders authority to use nuclear weapons.

Two Boy Scouts Are Advanced To Eagle Rank

Two Monroe Boy Scouts were advanced to the rank of Eagle in Troop 32 Court of Honor ceremonies Saturday night at Camp Kiroli near West Monroe.

The new Eagles are Tommy White, son of Scoutmaster and Mrs. Orrie M. White Jr., 403 Eason Pl., and Leroy Barnidge Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Barnidge, 620 Lakshore.

Ouachita Valley Council President W. W. Stevens of Monroe made the presentations.

Merit badges went to the following scouts: Charles McCleery, Doug Breckenridge, Steve White, Joe Southwell, Leroy Barnidge, Johnny Luffey and Fred Bealle.

A family pot luck supper, attended by over 100 scouts and guests, preceded the awards.

Driver Booked On 3 Charges In West Monroe

West Monroe police Saturday booked a 22-year-old Negro man, Aaron Glass, Jr., of 207 Parker St. in West Monroe, on charges of speeding, running a stop sign and resisting arrest. Police said Glass was arrested in the 200 block of Jackson Street in Monroe, after being pursued from West Monroe.

An 18-year-old Negro passenger in the car driven by Glass, Phillip Eugene Toston of Rt. 2, West Monroe, was also arrested and booked on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

In other action Saturday West Monroe officers arrested a 27-year-old man, Jimmy Styles of 1100 Arkansas Road on charges of disturbing the peace and carrying a concealed weapon.

Monroe police booked a 49-year-old Negro man, Isaac Dial of Bosco, on charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, and driving with an invalid driver's license.

New Winn Bank Has Open House

WINNFIELD (Special) — Bob Pettit, the St. Louis Hawks' "Mr. Basketball," was a special guest at the open house celebration held Saturday by the new Winn State Bank and Trust Co. at the bank's temporary location at Main and Abel Streets.

Local visitors and many from a dozen or more area and out-of-state cities numbered 450.

According to Parker Thompson, president of the bank, business operations will begin Tuesday at 9 a.m.

Other officers of the bank are John A. Bridges of Arcadia, vice president, manager and cashier; V. Matt Milan, chairman of the board; Charlie G. James, assistant chasier; Cooper Little, teller; and Jackie Canerday, bookkeeper-teller.

181 Accidents Here In August

Monroe police released statistics Saturday indicating a total of 181 traffic accidents for the month of August.

Traffic deaths for the month were listed as two with a total of 42 injuries.

Police said most of the accidents occurred between 12 noon and 3 p.m. and were usually the result of rear-end collisions and stop sign violations.

Of the 314 persons involved in accidents, 218 were males, 96 females, and most were in the age group 25-34.

Robert Kennedy Equals Beatles, Keating Quips

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating said Saturday that Robert F. Kennedy, his Democratic opponent for U.S. senator from New York, provides the best entertainment in the Empire State since the Beatles.

Keating took his campaign to Albany County Republican picnic.

"I am sure you won't mind if I break into your festivities with a few words about the biggest visiting act to hit our state since the Beatles," Keating told the crowd.

"I call it, 'Bobby, Buckley and the Bosses.'"

Rep. Charles A. Buckley of the Bronx, one of the leading Democratic powers in New York was one of the first of the Democratic leaders to endorse Kennedy's candidacy.

"Buckley and the other Democratic bosses have wheeled their imported star onto the stage, and cast him in one of the highest roles any true New Yorker could aspire to," Keating said.

"But we all know that the real role they have in mind for him is to make the entire Democratic party of this state a boss-ridden machine.

"Well, the voters of New York State are very discerning critics. They'll take a look at something new, and my Senate opponent may be humming the 'Lullaby of Broadway' now. But I'm confident that in November they'll have him singing 'Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny.'

"I have challenged my opponent to debate my record of service to the people of New York, but he refused to do so.

"His position is shocking."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS was among highlights of the state High 12 convention held at the Hotel Frances in Monroe Saturday. Among dignitaries of the masonic organization attending the event were, left to right, Harry Reeder, vice president from New Orleans; Earl Demint, outgoing president from Shreveport; Charles Burkin, principal speaker and international president from Kansas City, Kan.; R. E. Weldin, incoming president from Baton Rouge; and Robert (Bob) Clynch, international vice president from Baton Rouge. The local group hosted clubs from throughout Louisiana and Natchez, Miss. Candidate's Son Sees World Fair

NEW YORK (AP) — Barry Goldwater Jr., son of the Republican presidential candidate, paid a quick visit to the World's Fair Saturday to cast a "vote" for his father.

Goldwater, 26, cast his ballot by pulling a lever of one of two jukebox-sized machines that dispense plastic busts of the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates.

The machines in the Transportation and Travel Pavilion are ordinarily coin-operated but they were free as tabulation began Saturday. They record one vote with each play.

Goldwater was running ahead of President Johnson by about a 3 to 2 margin after 4,000 votes had been cast.

Earlier, in New Jersey, Goldwater said his father appeared to be quite tired the past two weeks.He predicted however, that his father would carry the state in November.

At a Republican club picnic in South Brunswick, N.J., the slim, blond Goldwater said of his father:

"He complains that his plane travels so fast he can't rest between stops."

Frei Challenges Castro To Hold Free Elections

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President-elect Eduardo Frei welcomed Fidel Castro's challenge to reform Chile's economy Saturday but dared the Cuban prime minister to hold free elections in his own country.

In a speech in Havana Thursday night, Castro had scoffed at Frei's reform program, and challenged him to show Latin America that he could do more for Chile than a Castro-type revolution.

"I accept Fidel Castro's challenge," Frei told newsmen, "but on equal terms.

"Let Fidel Castro hold elections as free and democratic as ours, so we can fight on even terms 'mano a mano'."

The latter is a bullfighting expression referring to a contest between two matadors matched man to man to determine who can turn in a better performance.

Frei, 53, a moderate leftist and former economics professor, won a landslide victory over Marxist candidate Salvador Allende in Chile's presidential election last week. Allende, a friend and admirer of Castro's, had Communist support.

Professor Tells Of Potent Quake

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Charles Richter of the California Institute of Technology Seismological Laboratory reported Saturday a "very large earthquake" some 7,000 to 8,000 miles form Pasadena.

He said its direction could not be immediately determined.

The quake was timed here at 3:21.30 p.m.

WEEK'S PANORAMA IN RETROSPECT

Goldwater Busses Baby In San Diego; Johnson Still Staying Close To Desk

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Refreshed by a long Labor Day weekend rest the nation went back to work, no one with a greater will than the candidates. All over the country they were out, stumping hard, stirring up clouds of oratorical dust from coast to coast.

Barry Goldwater and Bill Miller were on the hustings, so were Bobby Kennedy, Kenneth Keating and Hubert Humphrey. All the big names were there in the partisan battles except one, Lyndon Baines Johnson. As yet, he was acting as if he'd barely heard of Atlantic City.

The President stuck pretty much to a broad call for unity in a Labor Day speech to a throng of 100,000 in Detroit. In Harrisburg, Pa., Thursday night he warned against "extreme factionalism" and referred to "reckless factions" he said were "abroad in this responsible land." This was the closest he got to the political fight. He did not mention his opponent by name.

Goldwater, the GOP presidential hopeful, kissed a baby in San Diego on Tuesday and was off on a four-day, 4,350-mile campaign swing that took him up the west coast and through the northwest to Minneapolis and Chicago.

In Los Angeles, 50,000 crowded into Dodger Stadium to hear Goldwater attack the Johnson tax cut this year as "reckless," and to announce his own plan: A 25 per cent tax cut over a five-year period. This, said Goldwater, was an honest plan and "no scheme to buy votes with a sudden handout."

Miller the Republican vice presidential nominee, hit at Johnson immigration policies, which he said would "open the floodgates" to foreigners;' at tariff cuts, which he said would allow foreign goods to "flood our market," and at the U.S. policy toward Cuba. He said, "this Administration has sworn, in an agreement with the Soviet Union, that it shall never take action against Castro."

From the White House there came not a word, but other government levels were busy replying. Secretary of State Dean Rusk took on the Goldwater charge that the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 was timed for "maximum political effect," and that another "crisis" might be expected before the election. Rusk said this revealed "a basic lack of understanding" of presidential responsibilities. The state department said Miller's charge on Cuba was untrue.

Johnson spent most of the week near his desk, reviewing the South Viet Nam situation with high authorities, including Ambassador Maxwell Taylor, who had come in from Saigon. At week's end, Johnson flew off to Florida and Georgia to survey the devastation caused by hurricane Dora.

Dora has caused severe property damage across north Florida, but not a life had been lost directly to the storm. The center of the storm had hit Jacksonville, with damage estimated at $14.5 million, and also had caused destruction from St. Augustine, Fla., north to Brunswick, Ga., before blowing out across northern Florida.

In New York, Democrat Bobby Kennedy, seeking a senate seat, and his Republican opponent, Sen. Kenneth Keating, put in a hard week throughout the state.

Kennedy drew the larger and more enthusiastic crowds, which Keating called "very natural," but there were many nonvoting teen-agers in the throngs.

Keating was far from dismayed. Cracked he: "I have had a great many adults pledge me their support."

Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody could have used more votes from adults when primary balloting was over on Thursday in the bay state. In a stunning upset he bowed to Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti in the battle for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Peabody had the full party backing, including that of Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy. But it wasn't enough.

Bellotti will face former Gov. John A. Volpe, who lost narrowly to Peabody two years ago. Both are sons of Italian immigrants.

"The Bobby Baker case" bounced back into the political news when the Senate instructed its Rules Committee, by a 75-3 vote, to probe a GOP charge that Matthew M. McCloskey, Philadelphia contractor, Democratic-fund raiser and former ambassador to Ireland, made a $35,000 "payoff" after getting a contract to build the District of Columbia Stadium.

Republicans claimed in advance the investigation would result in "a second coat of whitewash."

In any case, Bobby Baker, the former Senate page boy, was going to play a leading role in the campaign.

Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor had four days of talks with high Washington officials on the South Viet Nam situation. When they were over, the feeling was that no end was in sight by military means, but the climate might be changing for negotiations. "All wars end in negotiations," said Taylor before heading back to Saigon.

To no one's surprise the United Auto Workers and the Chrysler Corp. came to terms on a new contract hours before a strike deadline. Biggest provisions in the pack: Fatter pensions of up to $400 a month and earlier retirement for union members.

Turkey shattered a week-long calm in the Cyprus dispute by announcing it would convoy food shipments to a Turkish enclaves on Cyprus, presumably under plane and destroyer escort. President Ismet Inonu of Turkey said any interference "will be considered an attack and answered in the same way."

Indonesia's "crush Malaysia" campaign landed before the United Nations in New York.

East German Prof. Heinz Barwich, for many years a top director of the Soviet bloc's nuclear program, defected to the United States via the U.N.-sponsored Atoms-For-Peace Conference in Geneva.

Deaths:

Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, widow of Harry S. Truman's vice president, died Sunday at her home in Washington. She was 52.

Sakari Tuomioja, United Nations mediator in Cyprus, died Wednesday in a Helsinki hospital, of a stroke suffered in Geneva Aug. 16. He was 53.

Checkers, black and white Cocker Spaniel belonging to the Richard M. Nixon family, died Sunday in New York, aged 12. Best known dog in politics since FDR's Scottie Fala.

Quotes of the Week:

"Make no mistake about it. There is no such thing as a conventional nuclear weapon." President Johnson.

"I charge, with a sincerely heavy heart, that the more the federal government has attempted to legislate morality, the more it actually has incited hatred and violence." Barry Goldwater.

Chinese Choose Party Delegates

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tze-Tung, Premier Chou En-Lai and other Chinese leaders were re-elected Saturday as Peking representatives to the Third National People's Congress, the New China News Agency reported.

In all, 101 deputies were elected to the congress, or three times the number Peking had at the seecond congress.

The plan is to increase the congress from 1,226 deputies in the second congress to about 2,500 in this year's congress.

In theory, the congress is the highest state authority, but it rubber-stamps decisions made by the Communist party hierarchy.

Stray Dog Stays At Burial Place Of Strange Man

STUART, Va. (AP) — Residents of the Ararat area in southern Patrick County are puzzled by the strange allegiance for the past 10 days of a stray dog to the grave of a stranger.

Here's how the story goes:

About 12 days ago Acie Maankins, 75, a native of Ararat, died in Winston-Salem, N.C., where he had moved in 1948.

His body was brought back to this area and was buried in a neighborhood cemetery.

Two days later a stray dog showed up and remained on the grave for at least 10 days.

Puzzled residents notified Dog Warden Fred Barnard at Stuart. He found the dog on the grave as reported. So far as Barnard can determine the dog does not belong to anyone in the Mankins family or to anyone else he has contacted in the neighborhood.

He did find a family anxious to adopt the eight-month mixed German Shepherd, however.

THROUGH THESE LINES come emergency calls to the Monroe telephone office. A person dialing "O" talks to one of the operators on this huge switchboard. During busy periods of the day, as many as 45 operators are on duty, trained to answer signals within 10 seconds.

CHIEF OPERATOR Mrs. Avie Wilhite lends a helping hand to an operator at the local Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company office. Telephone operators are thoroughly trained to be able to handle any type of emergency, but have strict orders to call for help from a service assistant in the event of any unfamiliar situation. Many times in cases of emergency the only means immediately available for summoning help is the telephone. Here is a report on some of the urgent calls which have been answered locally by police, firemen, doctors, and others in time to save lives.

By FRANCES PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

When emergency strikes, the expected reaction is to grab a telephone and call the operator.

This reflex, which probably started and increased in proportion to the popularity and convenience of the telephone, is drilled into the American public in countless ways today.

A frightened child or hysterical housewife might have begun the practice when trouble hit and no other course came to mind. Since then, a standard dramatic moment in suspense stories is when a character reaches for the phone and shouts, "Get me the police!"

Telephone companies, far from being annoyed by the growing custom, encouraged it and trained their operators to remain calm and in control of any situation that might arise.

EMERGENCY NUMBERS

Every Twin Cities resident should keep a list of emergency numbers near his telephone, for having the correct number at your fingertips can save precious minutes in a crisis. In fact, there is a space on the inside front cover of each telephone book for such listings.

If the situation is one in which every second counts, however, rather than waste time looking up a number, telephone company officials advise you to dial "O" and let the operator place the call for you.

Each operator has a list of all emergency phone numbers in both the Twin Cities and many of the surrounding towns.

Be sure and give your address. This was the main point emphasized by telephone officials and other agencies alike. No help can possibly be sent unless the location of the emergency is known.

Both fire department and police department officials report that in numerous instances they receive calls urgently requesting a fire truck or a policeman, but giving no indication where the aid is needed.

Officials at the Monroe police department said that their office has little trouble with callers. Most people, one officer explained, telephone directly to the station and say that they want a policeman sent out and why. Again, authorities ask that the caller be sure and give his address. Additional information required by the police is the nature of the trouble, so that the officers being sent to the scene will know what to be prepared for.

FIRE CALLS

More excitement is apparently connected with a fire, because the Monroe fire department lists a number of calls when the person on the other end of the line forgets to tell where the fire is.

When someone phones to report a fire in Monroe, his call goes into the central alarm station on Hudson Lane. Dispatchers there immediately notify the nearest fire station to send a unit to the scene. The station has a comprehensive set of street files, an official said, and the nearest truck is always sent first.

A rescue unit, which is utilized in drownings and other types of emergencies, is also connected with the fire department and can be reached through the central station.

In case of an accident, always telephone your own doctor first, said Dr. Roy A. Kelly, president of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society. Even though the patient must be rushed to a hospital, he pointed out, the doctor will be able to make the necessary preparations if he knows about the situation.

EMERGENCY ROOM

Both Twin City hospitals maintain an emergency room on a 24-hour basis, he continued. Local doctors take turns serving "on call" to answer emergency cases brought to the hospital. If no doctor is named, the emergency room staff will notify one of these physicians.

Local operators can easily recall incidents when the telephone office gave invaluable assistance in an emergency.

One operator answered a signal to hear a man frantically ask for a firetruck, with the crackling of flames clearly audible in the background. She asked him for his address but he was so distraught that he only kept repeating, "Get me the fire department." By keeping calm, the operator managed to get a portion of the address from the terrified man just before his voice faded as the fire destroyed the telephone equipment and immediately notified the fire department. The truck arrived in time to save part of the house.

HELP SUMMONED

On another emergency call, the operator heard a woman ask for a doctor, then moan and say no more. She could tell the woman was still on the line because she could hear her breathing. She instantly summoned the SA, who had the number traced and located the house. A call was put in to the parish coroner, who would have the authority to enter the house, but he could not be found. The operator then quickly located a doctor in the neighborhood and sent him to the aid of the woman, who was suffering from insulin shock, in time to get her to the hospital.

A would-be suicide was averted by another quick-thinking local operator. A man called his family, told them he was going to kill himself and hung up. The family, frantic and having no idea where he was, called on the telephone company for assistance. The operator managed to locate the man and sent help before anything happened.

The switchboard operators who answer when you dial "0" are scattered all the way across the length of the office and halfway back. Toll operators number about 45 at the busiest time, said Mrs. Avie Wilhite, chief operator.

Courtesy and poise are the main things emphasized to the girls in their training, she continued. The training period is suited to the needs of each individual. The operators-to-be are instructed in all forms of telephone mechanics, with special stress on keeping calm in all situations, the chief operator said.

A service assistant (called SA in telephone jargon) is always on hand to aid the operators should they run into any type of difficulty. The mechanism is adjusted so that they can either plug the troublesome call on a direct line to the SA or summon her with a blinking red light. Operators are taught to call for the SA in the event of any kind of unfamiliar problem or emergency.

The tremendous number of calls handled by the local operators is multiplied by the fact that the Monroe office serves many towns in the surrounding area. Persons dialing "0" in any of the towns listed are connected with a Monroe operator. These towns include Bastrop, Bonita, Calhoun, Chatham, Collinston, Columbia, Delhi, Epps, Marion, Mer Rouge, Oak Ridge, Olla, Rayville, Spencer, Sterlington, Tullos and Urania.

At any rate, officials point out, a quick call to the correct authorities involved in crisis or trouble can and does save lives. And for the protection of your family, you owe it to yourself to be posted on what to do in any emergency.

The loss of a few seconds could be disastrous.

Emergency Numbers

To report a fire in Monroe or contact the rescue unit, call central fire alarm headquarters . . . 322-5151.

To report a fire in West Monroe, call . . . 322-5131.

To report an accident or crime within the city of Monroe, the police department number is . . . 322-7171.

To report an incident to the police department in West Monroe, call . . . 322-8123

To contact the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department, for incidents outside the Twin Cities but within the parish, call . . . 322-5123.

Busy Prairie City Home Of Nation's Only Quintuplets

The Andrew Fischer family of Aberdeen, S. D., is expecting another visit soon from the stork, but it's not likely to be much like the last time, when the arrival of quintuplets brought world-wide attention.

By JIM BLY

ABERDEEN, S. D. (AP) — Aberdeen is a busy prairie city of 23,000 people—pretty big in these parts — where they raise grain and cattle, and produce farm machinery and wood products.

It is a rail and wholesale center, and there is a state teachers college, a hospital and an airport.

Aberdeen has one other thing that makes it unique — absolutely unique. It has quintuplets.

No other hamlet, village, town, city or metropolis in the United States can make that claim.

One year ago — on Sept. 14, 1963 — Mrs. Andrew Fischer, then 30 and the mother of five children, doubled her family in 90 minutes. Aberdeen and the Fischers have never been the same.

NO PARTY

Come Monday there will be no birthday party for the Fischer quintuplets. Mrs. Fischer is expecting again, at any moment, and such is the burden of fame it is a secret whether or not it will be a multiple birth.

This is only one facet of the world of the Andrew Fischers, at once blessed and perplexed by the mathematical chance—one in 42 million — of five live births at one time.

Until a year ago, Andrew and Mary Ann Fischer lived in a gray stucco home on a farm a mile north of town. They had met at a bowling league, married and had five children, Danny, Charlotte, Julie, Evelyn and Denise. Andrew worked in a wholesale grocery warehouse in Aberdeen as a shipping clerk, at $80 a week. The house, which they rented, from Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Harrington, was weather-beaten, and in a blue barn out back the Fischers kept two cows to ease their milk bill.

Well along in her sixth pregnancy, Mrs. Fischer was told by her physician, Dr. James Berbos, she could expect a multiple birth. On Sept. 11 Dr. Berbos confirmed from X-rays that she was carrying quintuplets. He told the Fischers. The delivery at St. Luke's Hospital began at 1:58 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 14, and was completed at 3:01 a.m. Four of the infants were girls, and the only boy arrived next to last. He weighed four pounds, the girls from 2½ to 3½ pounds. All were healthy. No anesthesia was used in the delivery.

CENTERS OF ATTENTION

Then it began. Within hours, the hospital, the city of Aberdeen and the Fischer home became centers of world attention.

Dr. Berbos announced he would not charge for his services. Nash Finch announced that Fischer could stay away from work as long as necessary, the Harringtons offered him the rented home, the hospital indicated there would be no bill, the Aberdeen Chamber of Commerce planned a city wide celebration, and Mrs. Fischer said, "I'm very happy but it's like a dream."

Offers of help came from everywhere and the Fischers, confused, happy in the health of their newborn, were thrust into a benign national publicity which threatened to engulf them. Andrew Fischer engaged Joseph H. Barnett and Schutz to protect what had suddenly become national property — his family. Within a fortnight the Fischers had succeeded in retreating behind a barrier of semi-privacy from which they have never emerged.

CHILDREN NAMED

In the meantime the children had been named — Mary Ann, Mary Margaret, Mary Catherine, Mary Magdalene and James Andrew. They thrived, and by Christmas were at home with their parents and brother and sisters. The Fischers no longer lived on the Harrington place. They had rented a newer home in town, on a quiet street.

It is a split level, painted light blue, with white shutters, and has a spacious back yard closed in with red snow fencing. Andrew still works at Nash Finch, and the older Fischer children are often seen around the neighborhood. The quintuplets are rarely seen, even by the neighbors.

The Fischers have a housekeeper now, and she answers the door, advising politely that Mrs. Fischer is not allowed to give interviews. That is correct. Within days of the quintuplets' birth, Curtis Publishing Co., as highest bidder, had bought exclusive news and photo rights at $75,000. Barnett and Siegel, who still represent Fischer, later renegotiated that contract and the sum has not been disclosed. The most common report is that it grants the Fischers $60,000 a year for five years.

OTHER CONTRACTS

The Fischers are parties to two other contracts. One grants the Borden Co. advertising rights on food products, and the other gives advertising rights to Brown & Bigelow, one of the nation's largest calender firms. How much money these will bring the Fischers is not known.

Out on the southwestern edge of town the Fischers have bought an 800 acre farm for $80,000, and a new 20 room house is nearly ready for them. Much of the materials and equipment for the house were donated to the Fischers, and Andrew plans to raise livestock on the place. They expect to move in by November.

Meantime that quiet residential street is no longer quiet. Nearly every car cruising by has out of state plates, but few of them stop. Only relatives and close friends cross the Fischer threshold.

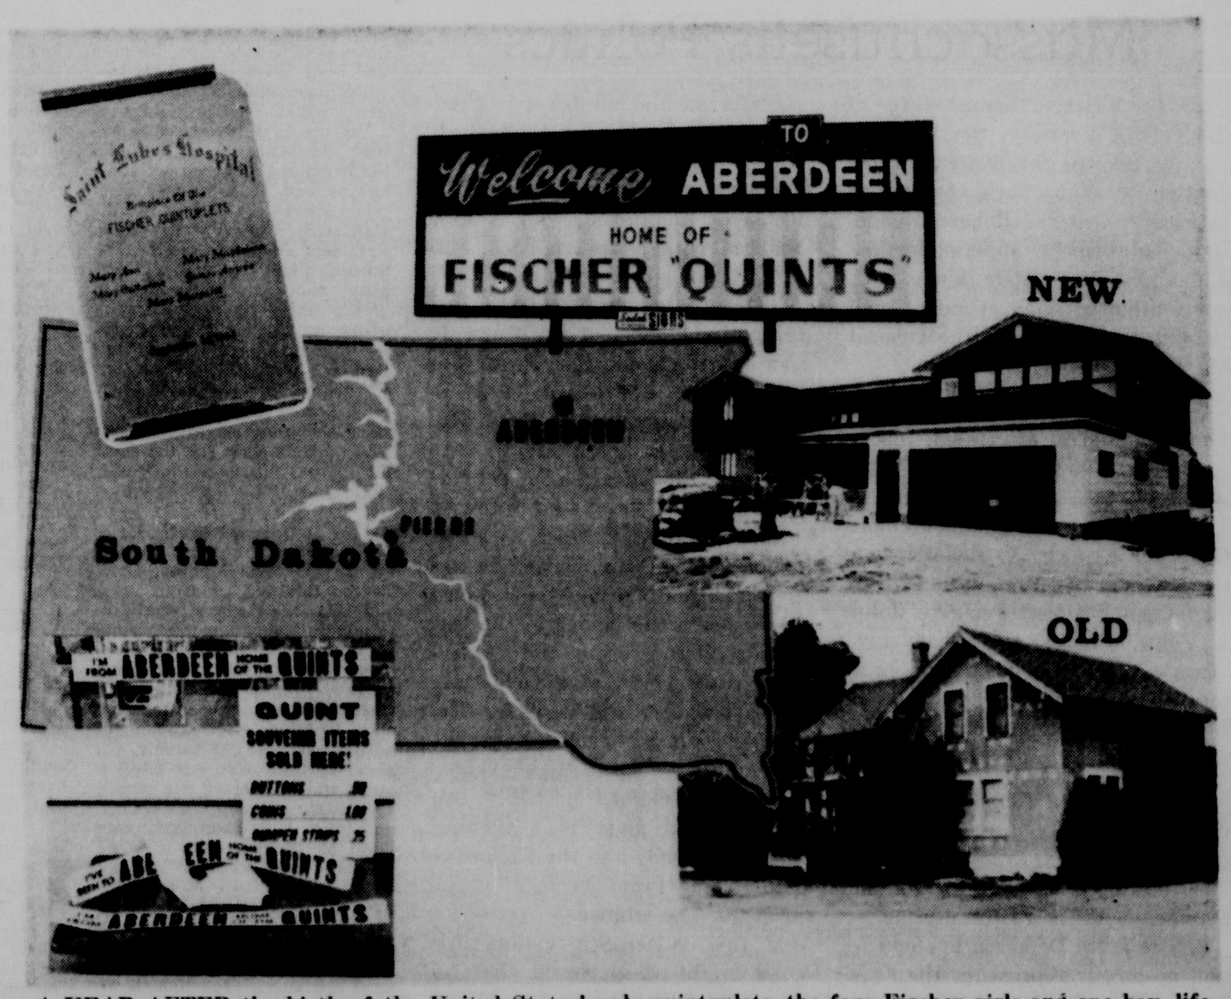
The neighbors understand. "I'd rather not say anything," said one. "I know how Mary Ann feels about all this. It's put a real burden on her."

The Fischers don't leave home often. They went to a bowling tournament in Minneapolis last spring and Mrs. Fischer topped her team with a 165 average. They good-naturedly ran the gauntlet of newsmen and photographers, disclosing little of their private lives.

Police cars pass the Fischer home more frequently than homes in other sections, and a direct telephone line links the house with police headquarters. It has never been used.

J. Clifton Hurlbert is still mayor, and he says Aberdeen is growing economically, "but I don't know how much could be attributed solely to the Fischers." He is proud of the way the townspeople have reacted, and proud of the Fischers, too, who "have worked to develop a family life without building a protective fence around themselves."

Out on the southwest edge of town things are changing already. More than 300 cars a day pass the new Fischer place just to watch it being built. The gravel road is going to be paved. The house sits back from the road, and beyond it are some trees. The quintuplets will have three rooms facing the fields, not the road. The house will also contain a large living room, maid's quarters, dining room and a kitchen with open fireplace.



A YEAR AFTER the birth of the United States' only quintuplets, the four Fischer girls and one boy, life has changed for their family and their home town, Aberdeen, S. D. At top left is a plaque at the hospital where the quints were born September 14, 1963. At right are the Andrew Fischers' old rented home (top) and the 20-room one they are building for their 10 children and the addition expected any day. Souvenirs of various sorts are on sale in Aberdeen. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Who's Getting Killed?

Under the heading, "Broad Help for Saigon," the Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin, with leanings toward the Democratic administration, upholds the course taken by the United States in South Viet Nam, despite the fact that there has been a mounting crescendo of criticism and dissatisfaction.

These derive chiefly from the fact that ever since the end of World War II the United States national administrations have poured men, money and weapons into various countries for the alleged purpose of combatting communism but have almost invariably wound up behind the eight ball, with the lives sacrificed by our men and the money collected in huge sums from taxpayers utterly wasted.

The Bulletin commented:

"With the United States supplying nearly all the outside military muscle for the defense of South Viet Nam, it is easy to forget that a dozen countries actually are helping the Saigon government, while negotiations are under way for aid from 23 more.

"Recently President Johnson has sought to increase the physical and economic involvement by others so that the true nature of the American purpose and presence will more readily be seen for what it is: a defense of international agreements, both general and explicit, that seek to guarantee South Viet Nam's independence, not some venture in American imperialism.

"Thus the Philippines are providing rural social workers, housing and agricultural experts, medical and technical teams; Japan is sending doctors, ambulances and radios as a part of the large economic program; Australia, military advisers and transport aircraft; New Zealand, military engineers and a medical group; South Korea, a military hospital, doctors, nurses and karate instructors; Thailand, cement, roofing and other materials; Taiwan, raw materials, medical supplies and school books; Italy a medical team; West Germany, a slaughter house, meat - packing plant and teachers; Iran, petroleum; Britain, technicians and road-building equipment; Canada, teachers and scholarship funds.

"The presence of all these flags, both Asian and European is as important as the aid itself. Every non-communist and peace-loving nation has a stake in South Viet Nam's survival and prosperity."

"Well," as a care-free user of the English language might say, "Ain't that something."

Does just having other countries' flags there do as much good as all the soldiers we have sent over to die, as all the huge sums we have contributed in taxes, as all the weapons we have supplied? If that is so, we should just send them a few more of our flags and hold back the army, navy and air force men, the money and the supplies. If South Viet Nam needs only flags to protect it from communism, we could send over a bunch of replicas of the Six Flags Over Texas, and do just about as much good.

Compared to what the United States is doing in South Viet Nam and compared to what it always seems to do when a big group of nations is engaging in "saving the world for democracy" (which seems generally opposed by our own United States administration) the other nations aiding in South Viet Nam are merely playing marbles. We should send them a few Wa Hoo and Parcheesi boards to occupy their time.

Yes, it is easy to forget other nations are helping in Saigon, partly because they are doing so little, while the United States does so much, and partly because such a large part of our time is spent in remembering the South Korean and Cuban fiascos, when the United States struggled so hard to keep from winning and partly, also, because our memories are crowded with recollections of the facts that the United States, under the misguided direction of our top officials, has failed to win any war since World War II that was beneficial to the cause of democracy but has helped to win some skirmishes in which democratic countries were forced to yield to communist nations because, in these cases, the American regime was "opposed to colonialism."

It is easy to forget because, from time to time, the United States has practically engulfed some countries, beginning with China, with money, only to lose them and all the money we have poured into them to the communists.

Massachusetts Politics

Massachusetts, home state of Harvard University, the Kennedy family (except for the recent defection to New York by former Attorney General Robert Kennedy), haughtiness, superciliousness and high-brow leftism, along with some other strange elements, will be a state to watch in the general election to be held this fall.

For the first time in history, two candidates of Italian background will be pitted against each other in the race for governor. This was assured when Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti won the Democratic nomination over incumbent Endicott Peabody. John A. Volpe, who lost to Peabody two years ago by a 5,000 margin in a total of more than two million votes, won the Republican nomination without a contest.

Results of the Democratic election give mighty force to these speculations:

1. Power of the Kennedys in Massachusetts is on the decline.

2. The state Democratic convention no longer represents the sentiment of a majority of the Democrats of that state.

3. Republican chances for winning the governorship of Massachusetts are greatly increased.

4. This could also mean the chances that Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Republican candidate for President, will carry Massachusetts are mightily enhanced.

At the state Democratic convention last June, Peabody swamped Bellotti in his bid for party endorsement. Furthermore, Peabody was running with the personal support of Senator Edward M. Kennedy, D., Mass., who is in a hospital with a broken back, suffered in an airplane crash.

Thus we see that Peabody, carrying the support of the Kennedy clan and the Democratic state convention went down to defeat. Bellotti carried Democratic Boston by 1,100 votes and consistently ran ahead of the governor in returns from the state's many large towns.

Incidentially, Massachusetts ranks 10th in the United States in populations, although it moved a step down the ladder in the last Census Bureau report, and its electoral votes could give Goldwater a big boost in his race for the presidency if he should carry that state.

Bellotti's victory probably can be attributed more to a turning against Peabody and the Kennedys than to any great surge of popularity for the winner.

If this is true, a victory for Volpe might easily result, since he was only a little more than 5,000 votes short of victory out of a total of two million votes two years ago. Surely the swing against Peabody, the Kennedys and the Democratic state commission will be far more than enough to offset the 5,000-vote margin in the election two years ago.

If the Republicans carry the state in the governor's race, they might also carry it in the presidential race.

A Wide Enough Loop To Catch Both Horns

Views Of Our Readers

Slanted News

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In your letter dated September 6, I read two letters in "Views of Our Readers" about which I would like to make a few comments.

In the first your paper was criticized and in the other major networks were criticized for slanting the news to fit their own views. News should be printed exactly as it is and not have "sharp pencil" remarks added to slant it in favor or against any political party or candidate. Truth is the most powerful weapon in the world and if it helps or hurts any political party or candidate then let it do so. The vast majority of American people are not so stupid that they cannot wisely decide what is best for them when they are presented with the truth.

Editorials are not news. They are views of the men or organizations who present them and should be titled and considered as such. When a person reads an editorial he either agrees or disagrees with it in full or part. When he disagrees with it he is prone to call it biased. His own views may be just as biased in the opposite direction. It is essential that both writer and reader keep an open and honest mind and have as much information on the subject as possible.

I consider an open letter, when it concerns the public, an editorial by the writer. I am a registered Democrat but have never voted for any man just because he is a Democrat. I have always voted for the man and what I honestly believed he stood for or against and what he would fight for or against.

Personally I believe the present administration in Washington is driving (they do not know how to lead) us to ruin as a nation. There are some in this state who will vote to return President Johnson to power. To these people I suggest, and pray, that you will read J. Evetts Haley's book, "A Texan Looks At Lyndon," and Carleton Putnam's book, "Race And Reason" — A Yankee View. After reading these books thoughtfully I believe you will reconsider the qualities of the man who must assume the duties of the highest office in the world.

The Choice Ahead

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I find the letters and editorials in your paper extremely interesting. I believe, however, that many make a grave mistake in that Communism is treated as a threat emanating only from a select group of card - carrying individuals, set about to take over our government and control of our people by nuclear attack if necessary. Semantics have thoroughly confused our people and, in some instance, our political leaders, either by ignorance of true motives or by malicious design.

A rose by any other name, is still a rose, recognizable by its structure aroma, and physical attributes, even though we decide to call it a "tulip". The same is true of political economics.

Marx describes the conception and fetal growth of the Communist organism in the nurturing womb of free capitalistic society. It is of extreme interest to note how many of his ten steps have already been accomplished to one degree or another in this country. It is only necessary to turn to page one of this paper to see the insidious development of the others.

I would not say that an idea has absolutely no value just because a Communist thought of it, but I would warn that, without constant vigilance, even the most innocent socialistic larva will metamorphose into its inevitable Communistic locust and subsequent plague.

Many of our political leaders have supported, do support, and will support socialistic measures on the basis that a little socialism means a few more votes, therefore a lot of socialism means a lot of votes (spend, spend, spend — elect, elect, elect). (It is on such points that representative government assumes an intelligent, industrious, honest and conscientious electorate !!!) Others, who support such measures for humanitarian reasons, seem to be invariably wealthy men condescending to help the "common" man. (Has anyone ever met a "common" man)? If you tell a man he is "common" you'll probably get your teeth knocked out!

The question before the American people today is not Communist Russia or Communists as a human group, but, rather, the philosophy held by Communists and other socialists. Will we pass on to our descendants an economic and governmental form which allows them to develop and keep their individual financial security by the application of individual ingenuity and initiative, modulated and directed by moral codes developed and sustained by Christain influence and reliance on God? Or — will we pass on the debt of our own extravagances and shackle them to a Godless dictatorship of an all-powerful and infalliable bureaucracy which will direct their lives from the cradle to the grave?

If the people should choose the latter then the present conflicts with the Communists are superfluous, as the argumentive basis then becomes, not one of opposed philosophies, but rather, which group of men (Washington or Moscow) will rule the Great New Society.

The mold for future generations is being formed today! What will it be, America?

H. H. H. In Texas

Ferriday, La.

To The Editor:

I am a Texan. I was born in Texas and I love Texas!

From the Convention Hall recently everyone in the USA heard President Johnson say that Hubert H. Humphrey was the best qualified man in the USA for the office of Vice Presidency. In fact, President Johnson said so many nice things about Mr. H. H. H. that most people were convinced that he should have been nominated for President! But it took just one little week end on a little ole 400 acre cow pasture in Texas for me to find out just how well qualified Mr. H. H. H. actually is.

You see, I told you I am a Texan, and we sure have some BIG cow pastures in Texas. Since Mr. H. H. H. is so well qualified and knows all about world affairs, etc., I would like for someone to tell me why he thought he stepped on a Republican Platform at Stonewall, Texas, on that little ole 400 acre Democrat cow pasture? Just a minute, y'all. If Mr. H. H. H. doesn't know the difference between a Republican Platform and that poverty in the cow pasture, may God help us all!

Answers Murdock

Dodson, La.

To the Editor:

In reply to Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Murdock, Jr., who feel that your editorials "fall little short of treason against the United States of America," (Views of Our Readers, September 6, 1964), either the good doctor knows not the meaning of treason or he is engaging in a game of semantics popularized by the pseudo-liberals.

Since when has it become treason to criticize the government of the United States? Without this great American privilege of agreeing to disagree, ours would be a totalitarian state. Reference the Constitution, Art. III, sec. 3, treason is defined as levying war against the United States of America, adhering to our enemies, or giving aid and comfort to such enemies.

Obviously, Mr. Editor, you should not editoralize on your editorial pages, and you should never, never disagree with your liberal friends. It matters not if the end justifies the means — cloak your goal in righteousness and keep the country moving! One cardinal rule, however: It is open season on the anti-Communist, but DO NOT OFFEND OUR ENEMIES!

Shakespeare put it aptly when he said, "The time is out of joint." Why, we even preach equality, without any reference whatsoever to character or responsibility, when any thinking person knows there is no equality ON THIS EARTH, aside from life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. We are not even equal in death — for immortality, in the final count, rests on the character of the deceased, which cannot be legislated or purchased, stolen or borrowed.

Rayville, La.

To the Editor:

I see in Views of Our Readers, your Sept. 6th issue, that your editorial policy is charged with treason.

This shallow view should be deepened by considering the actions which your editorials criticize and condemn. It is these actions which constitute the real treason in our country today. It is these actions which are anti-American and would destroy the strength of our nation while building that of our enemies. It is such actions and those who foster giving our nation's sovereignty to international socialism, whether they call it Fabianism, Communism, Kennedyism or any other ideology or ism that constitute the real treason.

These actions would give domination of our people first to an all powerful dictatorial Federal Govt., then to the United Nations and through that red tainted body to domination by the USSR.

To mention just a few such actions look at the Warren-led Supreme Court decisions favoring Communists, the effort to rescind the Conally reservation in adherence to the World-Court, the plan to phase our military defense forces into UN control, the setting of one segment of a people against another, the pro-Castro, puerile support rendered by the U. S. Government in the Bay of Pigs invasion, surrender to Russia of the vote getting demands made before the 1962 election with respect to the missiles in Cuba (for all we know they may still be in Castro's hands), support of the UN's aggressive Congo interference, restricting police power in maintaining local law and order, and selling war - useful equipment and materials to iron curtain nations.

Would those writers cleave to the theory that "the king can do no wrong" or the slothful and craven policy of supinely accepting the dictates of those who have grabbed their way to power?

As another correspondent brought out, many periodicals and broadcasting news media have surrendered to this power. All thanks that we have one here that has not surrendered. Don't. Keep up your policy! Don't change it! We need it!

School Workshop

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Thank you for the excellent coverage of the meetings of our workshop in the Monroe City School System. The pictures of the consultants and other leaders of the conference were very good and the articles on the remarks of the consultants were carefully edited and well written. We are very grateful for your consideration and cooperation.

The good publicity was one of the factors we feel contributed greatly to the success of the workshop.

To you and your staff we wish to express our appreciation.

Rioting, Attacks Labeled 'Search'

CONCERN OVER crime and rioting in the streets, expressed by Senator Barry Goldwater and others in recent months, has been ridiculed by some of the palavering pundits of the left. They have charged that those who make this an issue are, in fact, using it as a cover for stirring up anti-Negro feelings.

This is a political year, so anything goes. But the fact remains that many insist there is nothing really wrong about the current wave of riots. Unless there is a show of strong disapproval from Washington — and legislation to restore to the police their ability to cope with hoodlumism — this situation will get worse rather than better.

The psychologists still counsel "understanding" and argue that young people are destroying private property or assaulting police in — and, believe it or not, this is an actual quote — "a search for identity." For my money, they can find their identity elsewhere — not by rioting, looting, and occasionally raping.

I find little to be tolerant about in contemplating those 10,000 young people in Hampton Beach, New Hampshire, who almost on signal swarmed over the promenade shouting dirty words and tearing the place apart. The New York Times called it an "uprising" in its headline. The psychologists asked to comment felt no concern, and blamed adults for the trouble. The psychologists were right to this extent: the blame does lie with adults who look at it simply as "youth in revolt" and good clean fun.

THE SEARCH FOR "identity" put 150 kids in jail in Hampton Beach. This was not an isolated instance. One hundred more were tossed behind bars in Seaside, Ore., after similar festivities during which one "spontaneous" rioter tossed a tear gas bomb into a crowded nightclub. In California, beatniks invaded Monterey Bay towns and had to be escorted out after several had been arrested for rape and robbery. At Ocean City, N. J., police had to break up a session of what the press called "high jinks" — tossing girls from a pavilion to the beach below where they were caught by other spirited youths in improvised nets.

Small and large riots — some not important enough, presumably, to mention in out - of - town newspapers and having nothing to do with "civil rights" — took place all over the country. Or perhaps the stories were crowded out of the papers by the accounts of such "responsible" adults as AFL-CIO President George Meany who told a labor audience last week that Senator Goldwater was a "Hitler." Americans can be led to forget their fears about youthful lawlessness if they are given the phoney fear of fascism to suck on.

CRIME AND RIOTING in the streets are not a political issue, but those who brush it aside are making it one. It would seem to me that those politicians and pundits who refuse to acknowledge the danger that walks our city streets are allowing considerations other than the national interest to govern them. Not all the rioters are criminals, of course. But the rioting ingrains a disrespect for law and order which encourages crime.

And no amount of rebuttal can challenge the fact that every year the crime rate goes up much faster than the population rate. Every year, more of the increased crime is found among teen-agers and those in the 20-to-23 year age group. Finding excuses for this merely encourages it. Undercutting the authority of the police and launching unwarranted attacks on those who must maintain law and order add fuel to the fire of lawlessness.

The situation is ominous. It should be met by a forthright acknowledgment of all leading citizens — from the President down — of the gravity of the situation. It is not enough to say that the majority of American young people are good. This is certainly true. But the lawless minority grows with each passing day, week, or month. Senator Goldwater has made an important point. It hardly serves the Democrats to let it become a Republican monopoly.

ROY PARKER JR.

Average Citizen 'Economic Boob'

IF YOU ARE A typical American, you have never taken a course in economics, and if you are a typical student, you probably never will.

If you are a typical adult, you are an "economic boob," in the blunt words of Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges. Despite the unceasing crusade of people like me against economic illiteracy in our land, Hodges' accusation remains unfortunately almost as true in 1964 as it was in 1944 or 1924 or 1904.

This month, though, the nonprofit New York - based Joint Council on Economic Education is starting an encouraging offensive against this illiteracy via a program designed to introduce nearly a million children to the subject at school levels ranging down to kindergarten — and then to carry on from this beginning to education of children in schools everywhere.

Today only 15 per cent of all high school students and only 20 per cent of all college students study any economics at any time. Only 28 of the 134 largest school systems in the U. S. offer any economics courses, and only a handful make economics a required subject.

USUALLY, ECONOMICS is not taught until the 12th grade — after most of today's school dropouts have left. Yet, as Dr. Moe L. Frankel, executive director of the JCEE, emphasizes "The dropout is the one who has the greatest need to know something about the subject. If he understood how he fits into today's world, he might not drop out at all."

There is simply no disputing the importance of knowledge of economics to all of us. While you may luckily fumble your way to some sound financial decisions for your family and your nation, this is no excuse whatsoever for ignorance about why goods and services cost what they do, what automation means to today's and tomorrow's employment market, how to use instalment credit wisely, what role foreign trade plays in our prosperity, when a federal budget deficit can help make jobs and profits, etc., etc.

"Economics is one of the most exciting subjects in the world, touching virtually every aspect of our lives," says Frankel (words which are music to these ears). "But it always has been taught as a bitter pill which you just have to sit down and take, however distasteful."

WHAT THE JOINT Council is launching is a $2.5 million, three - year project with the goal of teaching economics to school children in a way they understand and enjoy. The experimental program now includes 12 elementary and high schools across the nation and eventually 30 schools will be participating.

With the help of yearly grants by the JCEE, the schools will explore new ways to teach economics to children. They will send teachers of social studies back to school to learn basic economics so the teachers can return to school to teach basic economics.

Some schools will employ resident economists who will devise and use teaching aids and techniques ranging from movies to fairy tales, from songs to field trips.

THE WORLD IN FOCUS

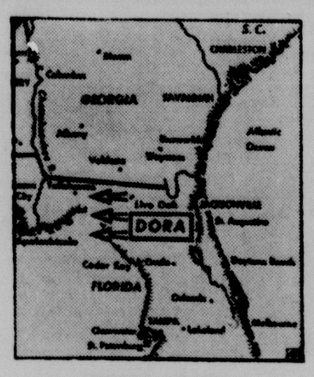
Dora Strikes

IT WAS anybody's guess last week as to which way Atlantic hurricance Dora would turn her devasting winds. By press time for this digest of the week's news, it appeared she might continue on a path away from land areas into the northern part of the ocean.

But early last week, it became obvious that the high winds had taken a westerly course and were destined to lash across the Florida penninsula from St. Augustine and Jacksonville on the Atlantic side all the way to Apalachicola and Cedar Key on the Gulf of Mexico.



DORA'S PATH

The hurricane season is not over yet, but already records are being searched to see if some sort of mark has not been set by the "one-two" punch of two hurricances hitting as close together as these two.

CLEO SMASHED into Florida's east coast on August 28, and Dora hit only 10 days later. There was another blow in 1947, when one struck on September 18 and another on October 12.

It's considered a heavy season when two hurricanes are in action at the same time. But last week, as Dora was roaring into the St. Augustine area, Ethel was already churning up the Atlantic. And a new disturbance — tropical storm Florence — was forming farther out in the ocean.

President Johnson answered appeals from Florida and Georgia by declaring portions of both states as major disaster areas. In some of Georgia's inland counties, rains of up to 10 inches were forecast with winds of up to 70 miles an hour. Each state listed damages running into the millions.

Labor Day Traffic

In marked contrast to the small number of injuries and deaths resulting from the hurricanes, last week's Labor Day traffic toll topped the 500 mark. Safety experts said this was below the 1963 total, which reached close to 600.

At the close of the 78-hour weekend holiday period, United Press International had tabulated 502 traffic deaths, 66 drownings, 16 deaths from air crashes and 55 deaths in the "miscellaneous" category.

With The Campaigns

ON THE heels of the opening gun of the GOP campaign in Prescott, Arizona, near the end of the previous week, Labor Day in Detroit was the setting for President Johnson's launching of the Democratic effort to keep a grip on the capital reins beyond November.

President Johnson, while not openly acknowledging it as a campaign speech, took sharp issue with Republican nominee Barry Goldwater on the question of nuclear weapons control.

JOHNSON

In nearby Indiana and Ohio the vice presidential nominees, Republican Representative William E. Miller of New York and Democratic Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota touched, respectively, on taxes and civil rights among other things.

JOHNSON spoke at the AFL-CIO-sponsored Labor Day rally in Detroit's Cadillac Square, the place where Democratic candidates have begun their campaigns since 1948.

The President didn't once use the word Democrat. Much of his speech dwelt on such topics as national unity, peace and prosperity. But there was little doubt he was aiming shafts at Goldwater when he moved to the subject of nuclear weapons control.

Goldwater, in an August 25 speech, had suggested a way be found to provide the North Atlantic Treaty Organization with small, tactical nuclear weapons for battlefield use, weapons, which he said "may truly be called conventional weapons."

"Make no mistake," Johnson said Monday. "There is no such thing as a conventional nuclear weapon."

HE SAID the judgment to use nuclear weapons is "a political decision of the highest order" and added: "No President of the United States can divest himself of the responsibility for such a decision."

Controversy

BY THE end of the week, GOP vice presidential nominee Miller had touched off a controversy with the statement that the administration had "sworn in an agreement with the Soviet Union that it will never take action against Castro."

Miller's counterpart, Senator Hubert Humphrey, told newsmen following a weekly breakfast meeting with Democratic leaders in Washington:

"Miller speaks for himself. He obviously doesn't know much about what the United States has been doing."

BUT A series of letters between the late President John Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev dated October 26, 27, and 18, 1962, made public at the time, did indeed give assurances against the invasion of Cuba. The big question now centers around what was not written in the letters, that is, how long should the late President's assurances against such an invasion hold good?

Goldwater

FOLLOWING heavy turnouts on the West Coast where 53,000 persons gave him a rousing reception at Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium, Senator Barry Goldwater headed for Hubert Humphrey's home state of Minnesota.

To an overflow crowd of 9,400 at the Minneapolis Auditorium, the GOP presidential hopeful charged that the administration's attempts to "legislate morality" have "incited hatred and violence." Officials estimated there were some 5,000 persons who heard the speech over loudspeakers outside the 9,400-seat auditorium.

Goldwater said government that makes society responsible for an individual's welfare is to blame for lawlessness.

"If everything is society's fault, then nothing is an individual's fault, so why not grab what you can?"

MEANWHILE, President Johnson's campaign swung into Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, possibly to hammer away at the GOP division between Governor Scranton and Senator Goldwater.

In what may prove a significant sidelight to the campaigning, William Strawbridge Jr., son-in-law of Governor Nelson Rockefeller, was named vice chairman of the executive committee of Westchester County, New York, citizens for Humphrey and Johnson. Strawbridge, husband of the former Mary Rockefeller, is the first member of the Republican governor's family to come out in open support of this year's Democratic ticket.

FOR LBJ?

AFTER a stormy debate, the Senate Thursday night directed its Rules Committee to reopen the Bobby Baker investigation and look into an alleged $35,000 political payoff by former Ambassador Matthew McCloskey.

A resolution sponsored by the Democratic leadership was adopted by a 75-3 vote after Republicans had tried and failed to have the investigation assigned to either the Government Operations Committee or a special bipartisan committee.

DEAN BURCH, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said in a statement: "President Johnson repeatedly boasts of the way he controls Congress. This was never more obvious than today when his majority colleagues voted to put the Bobby Baker investigation back into the Senate Rules Committee for a second coat of whitewash . . . .

"But the voters aren't being fooled by these repeated attempts to sweep this case under the rug. We will continue to demand that the President give the people all the facts about Bobby Baker."

A RESOLUTION by Senator John J. Williams, to have the operations committee take over was beaten 50 to 37. A move by Senator Clifford P. Case, joined by Williams, to refer the inquiry to the recently authorized bipartisan group was defeated 45 to 38.

The Senate also rejected 45 to 39 an amendment by Senator Carl T. Curtis to give any three members of the Rules Committee the right to have a witness called. The GOP members of the group are outnumbered by Democrats 6 to 3, and Curtis said they had been beaten on straight party line votes in efforts to have McCloskey and others called to testify.

As the debate rolled on into the night, Senator Hugh Scott shouted that the Democratic majority was sweeping the politically explosive Baker case under the rug.

Massachusetts

A REVEALNIG turn of events could follow from the failure of a Kennedy-backed gubernatorial candidate to win the Democratic nomination in Massachusetts on Thursday.

Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti piled up a strong lead over the incumbent Endicott Peabody. Bellotti carried Democratic Boston by 1,100 votes and by the time 75 per cent of the state's 2,008 precincts had reported, he was 12,000 votes ahead.

Bellotti was swamped by Peabody supporters last June when he sought endorsement at the Democratic State Convention. Peabody was also running with the personal support of Senator Edward M. Kennedy who is still confined to his bed with a broken back. Senator himself was unopposed in the same primary.

This makes the race for the governor of Massachusetts an affair between two Italian names: Bellotti and John A. Volpe, Republican, who lost two years ago to Peabody in a narrow decision.

Atlantic City

By this time, we'll all know the outcome of the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City. But it was obvious even by the middle of the week that the law of averages could play a part in the selection of the judges.

TWO HOPEFULS

For example, Miss Virginia, Carolyn Eddy, at right in the inset, hoped her brilliant red hair and fine crop of freckles would prove to be no disadvantage in the competitions as she discussed such matters with brunette Sheron Savage, Miss Kansas.

Miss Louisiana was represented in the pageant by Miss Cherie Martin, a Northeast co-ed from Pineville.

Odds were the heir to the tiara, worn by Donna Axum of El Dorado, Arkansas, also would weigh more and have different color eyes but the same color hair as most of the 37 winners of the title.

That was the result of a composite look at the 50 girls, representing all the states, who were trying to become Miss America 1965.

Strike Averted

IN DETROIT Chrysler Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union reached a dramatic last-minute agreement last week on a precedent-setting contract which includes pensions of up to $400 a month and improved health benefits.

The three-year contract, reached a scant 55 minutes before a scheduled 10 a.m. (EST) nationwide strike by Chrysler's 74,000 UAW members, was termed by union President Walter Reuther as "the most historic agreement in the history of the American labor movement with respect to pensions and security for workers."

THE CONTRACT agreement, announced jointly by Reuther and Chrysler Corporation Vice President John Leary, is expected to set the pattern for the union's negotiations with General Motors, Ford and American Motors.

Spokesmen for Ford, GM and AMC had no immediate comment on the UAW-Chrysler pact which calls for an overall economic package averaging 54 cents an hour for each worker during the three-year life of the agreement.

REUTHER was not specific on how the new contract would affect straight wages. He indicated the annual improvement factor would remain the same — an increase of 2½ per cent or 6 cents hourly, whichever is greater — with a possible increase in the third year of the contract.

Other provisions included an increase in retirement pension benefits, two additional holidays, increased vacations, and improved hospital and medical benefits for workers and their families.

The agreement ended the possibility of major walkouts at Chrysler's 40 plants in 12 states, which would have crippled production on new 1965 models.

Rioting

LESS PEACEFUL was the settlement of a riot at the usually quiet vacation town of Hampton Beach, New Hampshire.

A swiftly mobilized force of several hundred police and National Guardsmen routed "an army of hoodlums" from that seaside resort early in the week after a night of rioting and destruction.

The "hoodlums," estimated variously at 7,000 to 10,000 ravaged the oceanfront in a frenzied reign of terror that left dozens injured, untold property damage and more than 100 rioters under arrest.

UNDER THE personal supervision of Gov. John W. King, who arrived shortly before midnight still dressed in the tuxedo he was wearing at a Manchester dinner party, police and guardsmen flushed the rioters out of parked cars, back yards and the beach and literally ran them out of town.

Anti-Castro Stand

THE LAST Cuban embassy in South America got its closing orders last week when Uruguay's nine-man governing council voted to break relations with Fidel Castro's government.

This leaves only Mexico and Canada in the western hemisphere maintaining relations with Castro. Canada is not a member of the Organization of American States.

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Activities Many On Local Front

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

A great thinker, in a lucid moment, once called politics the art of the possible. A lot was possible last week in the Twin Cities.

To begin with, local people were warming to the national horse race and wondering increasingly just which colors key state figures would be showing, come Nov. 3.

Fifth District headquarters were opened Tuesday, at 605 N. 2nd St., for the GOP presidential entry (fella name of Barry something or other) and the appearance of bumper stickers and lapel buttons with right-pointing arrows, set many to thinking seriously.

W. G. Haynes, Goldwater campaign manager for the district, presided at the headquarters unveiling and Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard and Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez, as speakers, left no doubt as to their stance in the coming election. (They Like Barry.)

MEETING

Later in the week, Howard was in Ruston for a Democratic committee caucus of delegates from the Fifth, Fourth and Eighth Districts. The mayor, an adherent of the Democrats for Goldwater notion, indicated there was a general meeting of the minds, but would make no formal statement in advance of Saturday's state central committee session in Baton Rouge.

(The meeting was in progress as these lines went into print, but the interesting results should be found easily elsewhere in the pages of today's World).

Still anybody's guess last week, and many were guessing, was which way, right or left. Gov. John McKeithen will jump in the presidential spotlight, assuming he feels like jumping at all. Most of the people we talked to were looking for studied neutrality — that is, no jump at all, but tilted perceptibly toward LBJ.

But, enough of the seamy side of life.

There was the groundbreaking Saturday at the site of the new lock and dam, eight miles north of Columbia, for example. That's bound to be a boon for the Twin Cities. The facility, plus one at Jonesville and two in Arkansas, are aimed at a nine-foot channel and increased traffic on the Ouachita River.

Imparting glad tidings on the occasion were Gov. McKeithen, Rep. Otto E. Passman and Sen. Allen Ellender.

Other developments in legitimate areas of federal interference (pardon our bias) last week included the commencement of land appraisals east of Monroe for the I-20 superhighway. The 12.26 mile section will be let in three projects, starting at Nutland Road and running east.

The State Highway Department scored last week in the local papers on at least two noteworthy accounts, though it had help from the City of Monroe and Ouachita Parish School Board.

RESOLUTION

In the first case, the city adopted a resolution asking the department to cooperate in making a four-lane route on North Eighteenth, from DeSiard to Forsythe. Reply is pending.

Then, later, word came that Highways would participate in the school board's driveways improvement program, to the tune of approximately $37,000 in labor and equipment costs. Parish contribution is just over $17,000, and will pay for materials to be used in work at "virtually" every one of the system's 36 schools.

On the subject of parish agencies, the police jury met Tuesday and Wednesday to enjoy discussions on the expenditure of an $88,389.94 windfall, realized as a four-year surplus from the operation of the parish clerk's office. Though Leslie Hamm, Ward Five, sounded the clarion call of need for new road equipment, the voting backed Ward 10's Robert Downing. It was decided to use $50,000 of the sum in construction of a new public library for Negroes, rather than borrow an equal amount for the purpose.

However, Hamm was assured that equipment purchases will be coming within a year. Parish Engineer Herbert Collier, in fact, will have a report ready for the jurors' next meeting, outlining conditions in the road-building arsenal.

In dispatches filtering across the Great Divide, there was also news last week from the west bank. Our Sister City's aldermen apparently heard about the new economic strength of the West.

At any rate, a report on the annual West Monroe audit so impressed officials that pay raises, expected to cost about $13,000 a year, were given 67 employees. Seriously, city finances have taken a drastic turnabout in the past two years and the town's deficit has fallen to little more than $30,000. Income exceeded expenditures last year by over $80,000, and aldermen are looking to leave West Monroe debt - free in 1966.

The same council meeting Tuesday night resulted in richly - deserved re-appointments to the city Civil Service Board of J. Herbert Rinehart, chairman of the group, and Wayne R. Deacon, one of the first lay members ever to serve.

The term "richly deserved" brings to mind another bit of news. Frank Kirby, Sheriff's Department chief criminal deputy, was voted Louisiana's outstanding civic leader of the year by the National Federation of Men's Clubs. Nominated by the Monroe Progressive Men's Club, Kirby received his trophy in a Baton Rouge convention over the past weekend.

In another area, tragedy touched the Twin Cities, again last week, for the third week running. Thomas Martin "Tiny" Laws, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Laws, 403 Ferndale, West Monroe, was accidentally shot to death on the first day of dove season while hunting near Mangham.

The well-known former St. Matthews High School athlete apparently had stood his shotgun alongside his car, it fell and discharged.

There was, however, one major blessing over the long Labor Day weekend — no traffic fatalities either in the Twin Cities, or elsewhere in Northeast Louisiana, which was rather a rarity.

On the United Givers Fund front, momentum continued to build as workers looked ahead to the start of general solicitation Sept. 30. Kicked off Thursday was the first major phase of the annual campaign — advance gifts, responsible for raising about 30 per cent of this year's total goal, $270,262. J. H. Scogin is leading the effort in Monroe, Hugh Balfour in West Monroe.

The mention of large figures automatically conjures visions of fall school enrollment in both city and parish institutions. Latest reports, released during the week, set the total registration at an all-time record high, plenty big 26,966. Signed up for parish schools were 16,740 students, 327 more than the first day announcement, while city schools held 10,266, up 606 from the first day, with more to come, especially among Negroes. Wonder if Supts. Milton Hall and Van Odom ever get the feeling they're running an army. (A sudden frightening thought — If such a host ever were mobilized, it could take over the state.)

Schools reminds us of Northeast Louisiana State College, which reminds us that last week the Northeast State Concerts Association swung into action with its annual membership drive. If you like music, dancing or anything that'll entertain the heck out of you (almost anything), what you ought to do is phone Mrs. Davis Bingham, wife of the college choral director. She's the lady at the helm of the membership push. You'll seldom get more solid enjoyment for your money than by joining the association and getting out to its events. It's the up-lifting-est.

Still being reminded, up-lifting events reminds us of the Miss America Beauty Pageant in Atlantic City Saturday night. When this went to press, we were still waiting, with crossed fingers, feet and eyes, the results of Bert Parks' one big break each year. But, however, it turned out, the World had the distinct pleasure of running some very attractive wirephotos last week of Louisiana lovely Cherie Martin. A Pineville peach, Cherie is a student at Northeast.

The most reminded writer in captivity, we're further reminded, this time by the beauty pageant, of a chance to tootle our own horn. Pretty things remind of some color ads that ran in the Monroe papers last year. It was announced during the past week, that the News-Star—World had won an award of excellence and two awards of merit for color advertisement reproductions. It was the fourth straight year to score in the annual Southwest Newspaper Color Competition, sponsored by the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

And finally, we don't know what reminded us of this, but the sound of wooden shoes was heard last Wednesday in Newellton as tulip promoters gathered from 17 parishes — several of them from Ouachita and the Twin Cities. Purpose apparently was to figure ways of making tulips, not cotton, king in northeast Louisiana. About 150 attended.

As a parting shot, here are a couple of things you might not know if you didn't read your daily paper:

Mayor Howard declared last week Women in Construction Week. (Speaking of construction, Monroe building permits were issued during August for construction evaluated at $747,112; West Monroe permits were for $147,225.)

The Monroe Ministerial Alliance held a breakfast meeting to consider a plan for asking merchants to exercise restraint in starting their Christmas promotions. The feeling is that the Yule Log is started burning a trifle early each year, and we're inclined to agree. When one is constantly bumping into Santa Clause, it tends to take the edge off Thanksgiving.

YOUR FAILURES TO TRY

If you honestly tried but you honestly failed in a cause that you knew was worthwhile;
If your good faith was questioned, meet those assaults with a smile.
True values of life that lend strength to the soul are not measured by public acclaim:
If you played the game square but fell short of the goal, you're a winner though losing the game.
The failures you make after giving your best,
oft are blessings that come in disguise;
Your courage to try is the infinite test that your failure to try but denies.
When life's ledger is closed and all failures must bide, to be scanned by the All-Seeing Eye,
He'll condemn not the failures you made when you tried,
but rather your failures to try.

FROM FATHER HANNON

A note from Father Michael G. Hannon informs us of the death of his brother in Dublin, Ireland recently. Father Hannon was pastor of St. Joseph Church here for seven of the nine years he spent in the Twin Cities.

His letter said: "I would appreciate it if you would afford me a few lines in the Morning World to make an acknowledgement to my many friends in the Twin Cities. I have many ties of friendship with Ouachita Parish and many happy memories. I wish to thank my many friends who sent messages of sympathy on the occasion of the death of my brother in Dublin."

Incidentally, to those others who do not have his address, Father Hannon is at the Holy Family Rectory, 175-20 74th Avenue, Flushing 66, N. Y.

WISHING YOU WERE HERE

A regional sales manager for a company in the Northeast Louisiana area recently received a plantive post card from one of his vacationing workers. Writing from Jackson, Wyo., he said:

"Vacation is great except three of the kids have come down with the measles, one daughter had to have two teeth pulled, one son got blood poisoning and one daughter fell and cut her head. So far we've visited three hospitals and one dentist office. Please let me go back to work."

LIKE ALL OF US MEN — We heard a timid friend recently tell his wife off. Said he, "We're not going out tonight and that's semifinal."

DID YOU EVER ADMIT IT — One of the most beautiful sights you can see is the taillight of the car of the last guest after you've staged a successful party in your home.

ALONG THE GRAPEVINE

The political rumors are working overtime in West Monroe . . . and they are strictly rumors.

With the city elections almost two years away, potential candidates for mayor are already being mentioned. One rumor has it that some will attempt to persuade Bert Hatten, insurance executive, to run in 1966. Other possible candidates mentioned are Buddy DeLoach, now a member of the board of aldermen: Harold Hill, city clerk, and Gene Scott, a florist.

Incidentially, reports continue to make the rounds that Mayor Allan Norris will be asked to resign — by whom — no one seems to know. The mayor is reported improving after suffering a heart attack and now goes to his office some each day. Sometime ago, his salary was cut while he was out due to his illness. Many West Monroe residents still are verbally protesting the action - and a court test is not too farfetched.

WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

Have you ever wondered where your federal income tax money goes after it is substracted from your check? Tax Foundation, Inc., has completed research based on taxes paid by a person who earns $8,000 annually. The estimated $600 paid by a man in this bracket breaks down to: National security — $361; interest — $61; agriculture and agriculture resources — $36; veterans' services and benefits — $45; labor and welfare — $34; commerce and housing — $20; international affairs and finance — $16; natural resources — $15; general government — $13; other $10.

AN EXCELLENT MOTTO

If I can stop one heart from breaking,
I shall not live in vain;
If I can ease one life the aching,
Or cool one pain,
Or help one fainting robin
Unto his nest again,
I shall not live in vain.

NEWSPAPER CREED

"A newspaper may be forgiven for lack of knowledge — but never for lack of courage."

FOLKLORE ITEM of the week — When chimney smoke falls instead of rising, look for a storm. To dream of a fire means you are going to have a quarrel, but if you dream you put out the fire, you will win the quarrel. And if a young girl cuts thick slices of bread, she'll make a good stepmother.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK — Made in the Twin Cities by a preacher in a revival — "The trouble with too many boys today is a mother's complex. This occurs because the old man didn't have the guts to wear the pants in the family and because he's too busy trying to make a fast buck to pay too much attention to his children." Then — "Life is like a snowflake that falls into the river . . . it is briefly seen, then gone forever."

SOME CHANGES NEEDED

Some of the things you run into from day-to-day you'd like to see changed:

MOTORIST who try to turn left off Louisville Avenue at the foot of the bridge despite the no-left-turn sign. Such action blocks movement of traffic. (And this is no reflection on the police department which is doing an excellent job — officers can't be everywhere at once).

Drivers who barrel full-speed ahead up to a stop sign at a street intersection, then ride the brakes . . .

Women drivers who pull out from a parking spot without looking to see if another car is coming.

Elected officials who make unnecessary and often wild charges at meetings . . . .

Wives who say it was a mutual understanding after they have already decided it will be done this way . . .

Children who, when you correct them, say "I said it because I heard you say it."

Women who wear tall, wide and highly decorative hats to church — the type you can't see over and around.

SELF-APPRAISAL — Every time you find a fault in a friend match it with one of your own and you'll decide all your friends are perfect.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS go to Mrs. R. D. Stewart, Mrs. J. D. McGee, Slim Scogin.

Since Khrushchev Visit

Communism Has Changed

EVEN "CAN CAN" dancers could not take the limelight from mercurial Nikita Khrushchev when he visited Hollywood Sept. 19, 1959, during his American tour. Here he is introduced to chorus girls who later did a "can can" from a movie they were making at 20th Century Fox studios. Actress Shirley MacLaine (bending over) made the introduction. By WILLIAM L. RYAN
(AP Special Correspondent

Nikita S. Khrushchev stormed the citadel of capitalism five years ago this week and probably never recovered from the experience.

By all appearances, he came to lecture and not to learn Americans, as he once phrased it, needed a bit of "good old Russian hell."

As it turned out, Americans didn't listen. Khrushchev did. He learned a good deal in 13 wild days of spectacular road show that left the citizenry shocked, stunned, amused and bewildered.

On Sept. 27, Khrushchev took off for home. Often in the five years since then there has been evidence Khrushchev had seen much, learned much and taken to heart much of what he learned.

He did not hesitate to tell his people they could learn from the United States and the capitalists. While his Stalinist critics boiled, Khrushchev unconcernedly revised Marxism-Leninism.

COME TO BELIEVE

Communism with plenty of goulash on the side, Khrushchev had come to believe, could be much more palatable.

Anybody who had anything to do with Khrushchev's tour of the land of capitalism is not likely to forget it. He bubbled and joked, roared and insulted, scowled and threatened. He produced chaos in a cow pasture in Iowa and turned a San Francisco supermarket into a shambles. He bellowed at capitalists and scolded labor unions.

Khrushchev, although he seemed to have a whale of a time, probably was shaken by his first view of the United States. He had come for a close personal look at the U.S. eagle, to see how long it might be before he could step on its tail. His words later indicated he had learned to respect it.

"I have seen how the slaves of capitalism live," said the tourist from Kalinovka as his trip neared its end. "They live well."

Khrushchev had heard reports of America from other visitors and wanted to see for himself. For months he had dropped broad hints that he wanted to be invited. Finally it was arranged.

He made no secret of his low opinion of "the ruling circles" in America. The ruling circles, by his standard, included anyone in government, business, labor union leadership, the military and probably the whole middle class from lower to upper.

The Soviet press informed its readers the ruling circles were against the visit but were forced to invite the Kremlin leader because it was "the will of the people."

Khrushchev, with his wife, two daughters, a son-in-law and a large retinue, landed Sept. 15, happily bragging about the Soviet announcement that his Lunik I rocket had hit the moon. Some day, he said patronizingly, maybe the Americans might match the feat. A professed atheist, Khrushchev offered to "swear on the Bible" that Lunik I had not been timed to coincide with his arrival.

President Eisenhower met him and gave him a dinner that night. It was a white-tie-and-tails affair, but no capitalist would get Khrushchev into such an outfit. He showed up in business suit, white shirt and gray tie.

That was the beginning of a continuous spectacle which fascinated Americans for two riotous weeks.

Khrushchev soon justified his reputation as what the Russians call a "sposobny chelovyek" — able fellow. He displayed nimble wit and agility with repartee as he peppered audiences from coast to coast with pungent comment. But though his hide may have looked tough, it proved thin. A fast man with an insult himself, he became insulted easily.

Khrushchev seemed to have the notion that the State Department had cooked up a plot to keep the masses from pouring out to cheer the prospective liberator of the world's workers. He suspected the capitalists of ganging up on him.

His first angry explosion came in Washington when he was asked on a television show why he hadn't done anything to oppose Stalin's excesses. He stormed that the question was "provocative." Asked about the Hungarian revolt, he angrily and inelegantly replied that the question "has stuck in some peoples' throats as a dead rat — they can't spit it out."

An obviously cool public reception in New York annoyed him. Crowds were curious and polite but mostly silent.

When businessmen asked him awkward questions at a New York dinner, he exploded and threatened to walk out. "I'm an old sparrow, so to speak, and you can't muddle me with your cries," he spluttered.

BLEW UP

Speaking at a civic dinner, Los Angeles Mayor Norris Poulson commented on Khrushchev's much-publicized remark about burying capitalism. Khrushchev blew up.

Like many a tourist, Khrushchev went to the top of the Empire State Building, said he had a good view of a fine city, but Moscow was better. At the United Nations, Khrushchev made his blockbuster propaganda proposal for "general and complete disarmament within four years." Then he was whisked to Los Angeles. The fun was just beginning.

"It took me only 12 hours to get here and perhaps it would take less time to get back," he growled. Americans simply wouldn't understand that when he said "bury" he meant only that communism would outproduce capitalism. When Americans seemed to miss the point, he was like an irascible schoolmaster with a dull class.

But Khrushchev, a consummate actor, could change moods with dazzling speed. He had his Los Angeles hosts reeling. He amused them, badgered them, convulsed them and bewildered them. He went from solemn to jovial, from gay to enraged, in split seconds.

ANNOYED AT SECURITY

The tour's tight security annoyed him, as if it reflected on his dignity. Mrs. Khrushchev wanted to see Disneyland, so Khrushchev asked to go to Disneyland. He couldn't — not enough security. Khrushchev roared his protest: "What's the matter, are there gangsters in control there? Is it cholera?"

He put on a diverting show at 20th Century-Fox studios, where he claimed he was unimpressed by the filming of a scene from the musical "Can Can," chorus line and all.

"The face of humanity is more beautiful than its backside," snapped Khrushchev.

In San Francisco, Khrushchev met labor leaders and union members, and obviously was confused by them. They were workers, but they were asking the man who claimed to champion the world's workers embarrassing questions. He banged the table. He was the leader of Russia, he shouted, and he would decide what Russians wanted.

San Francisco felt the Khrushchev storm. The Soviet premier, always interested in the mysteries of the U.S. consumer economy, wanted to see a supermarket. His hosts took him to one.

Suddenly the place was a madhouse. Hordes of reporters and cameramen swept into the place in Khrushchev's wake. Pyramids of cans clattered to the floor. Shelves collapsed. Glass shattered. Counters crumbled Women screamed, children wailed in terror. When Khrushchdv, beaming happily, left the store, it looked as if it had been through another earthquake.

As California drew a sigh of relief, Khrushchev winged eastward to Iowa. In Des Moines, he sampled his first American hot dog and asked for another. "It's excellent," he said magnanimously. "Don't change the formula. We make good sausages but yours are better." Then he spotted his official escort, the patrician Henry Cabot Lodge, nibbling delicately on a hot dog.

"Finish your sausage, capitalist," Khrushchev ordered.

Then it was off to Coon Rapids for a gay old time at the farm of Roswell Garst. There was a nice, pleasant, homey lunch, and there was chaos in the cornfield.

MAN BITES DOG and likes it, as Nikita Khrushchev gets his first taste of the United States' gift to sausage cuisine, the hot dog, during a stop in Des Moines Sept. 23, 1959. The Soviet premier asked for seconds and gave his judgment: "It's excellent . . . We make good sausages but yours are better." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Mystery Of The Brain Could Yet Be Solved

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Your eyes scan written words, and nerve signals flash information to your brain.

Somehow among your 10 billion brain cells, the new knowledge is instantly assessed, and some at least is stored way.

Memory springs it forth again when you need or want it — sometimes, anyhow.

But how, exactly how?

Sitting in the study of his home one recent evening, Dr. George W. Beadle, Nobel Prize winner and president of the University of Chicago, tapped his head with his right forefinger.

"There is no more complex problem than what happens up here," he said.

GREATEST CHALLENGE

"Probably the greatest challenge in sciences to discover how the brain works, how it codes information, recalls it, and what consciousness is."

"It is what is in our minds that determines how we are going to behave.

"The tempo of change in our lives is increasing rapidly, bringing new knowledge, new opportunities, and new problems. Can we speed up our learning, improve our memories, strengthen our mental capacities, broaden our understanding, find ways to correct mental ailments and deficiencies?

What determines what we let into our minds? or what we lock out?

"We've scarcely made a beginning yet toward understanding these things. But there are some fascinating uses and theories."

Dr. Beadle put a match to his dying cigar.

"The answers, in fact, may turn out to be rather simple.

"In the biological sciences, one great inhibiting factor is a feeling that life and living systems are very complex and so it must be terribly difficult to understand them. There is resentment against simple ideas — they're even considered simple-minded.

"But nature, we are learning, operates with fundamental or simple rules and methods — the task is to discover them."

In 1927, Dr. Beadle was a college student from Wahoo, Neb., planning to specialize in scientific farming. To help make expenses, he jumped at the offer of 30 cents an hour to assist a professor in an experiment with hybrid wheat.

On lunch hours, the nearest thing at hand to read was a book on genetics, the still-young science of heredity. The tall young man read with growing fascination, and decided to become a biologist and geneticist.

The book "described nice, clearcut rules about how chromosomes and genes determine inherited characteristics. The challenge was that no one knew how genes functioned, or what they were."

Pursuit of this question brought Dr. Beadle and Dr. Edward Tatum a Nobel Prize in 1958 for having shown that a single gene controls a single enzyme, or chemical governor, in a cell. Enzymes play a major role in the machinery of cell life.

"Our work — though we didn't know it at the time — was really a re-discovery of what (Sir Archibald) Garrod had suggested way back in 1908. But few geneticists then paid much attention — they said it was too simple an idea."

Now, in a great burst of progress, scientists are fairly certain they are well on the way to discovering the key to the genetic code of life itself.

This appears fundamentally simple. Essentially, nature uses only four chemical "letters" to spell out all the millions of "words" of instruction contained in the genes. There are perhaps 100,000 or more genes in every body cell. Genes "tell" a cell what to be, what to produce.

Full understanding of the code could lead to methods of controlling it for human benefit, for example by suppressing or circumventing the effects of genes that are harmful or which cause defects.

A main spearhead in progress now is molecular biology — delving deeper and deeper into the units and sub-units and molecules that are engaged in or which govern life processes.

"An important next step is to determine the system by which the brain codes information and makes it available again. Just what happens inside brain cells, or to molecules within them?"

The puzzles are great, but many scientists feel a great deal of progress will be coming from research being carried on, Dr. Beadle said.

There's another immediate and urgent general challenge about human learning, said Dr. Beadle, the educator.

For analogy, he pointed to the fact that a newly hatched duckling will fix upon the first moving thing it sees as its mother. Whatever moves becomes its mother, to follow around. It might be the duckling's real mother. It can also be a goose, a dog, even a human being. This phenomenon is known as imprinting in the duckling's brain.

In humans, he said, a kind of cultural imprinting begins very soon after birth. The newborn baby's brain is pretty much a clear slate, except for inherited instinctive knowledge.

"What we have failed to appreciate is that a child has done much of his decisive learning before he ever enters school. He learns from parents, friends, in numerous ways.

"Let me back up a moment, to say this: Now we know how genes are transmitted from generation to generation. Likewise, we know a good deal about how human culture — our history, art, literature and so forth — is transmitted from generation to generation.

TURBULENCE

The slow process of evolution of cultures now is running head-on into the turbulence of rapid expansion of knowledge, of new technical skills and controls over means of production and livelihood, new situations and problems from populational growth.

"There is more for us to learn, and to keep on learning, if we are really to understand this changing scene, to adapt to new situations, to maintain what is good or right about our culture, to keep it progressing."

But, Dr. Beadle went on, the child by age 5 or 6 is already partly conditioned as to what his culture will be — what to believe, how to behave, ideas of what is "right" or "normal."

"Head-hunting or cannibalism can therefore seem quite right and normal to some people.

"We have assumed that by requiring a child to attend a formal school beginning at age 5 or 6, then we can mold him or her to the cultural pattern or our choice.

DOUBTFUL

"But I seriously doubt that even the best school could completely counteract this early cultural conditioning in the child whose parents had never stimulated him to learn, or who had lived in a family ridden by fear and poverty and frustration.

"From the viewpoint of our own national culture, I assume we do want to counteract influences that hamper learning and understanding, or which go destructively against our culture.

"I don't pretend to know how best to do this, but I am sure it can be done.

SCENES of YESTERYEAR
. . . in the Twin Cities

THIS IS AN EARLY view of the old St. Hyacinth Academy, which was originally opened in Monroe on February 18, 1866, on the site on which the old Grammar School building is now located. At the start it was for girls only, but around 1881, two small cottages adjoining the school were added as classrooms and boarding facilities. At that time the school was opened to boys, but only girls could be boarded there. In 1899, the school, including the buildings, were moved in 39 days to a location adjoining St. Matthew's Church. The entire structure was torn down in 1903 and a new building, a frame one also, was constructed and still known as St. Hyacinth, the view of which is shown above. Then in 1924, the Daughters of the Cross, which operated the school, sold the building to St. Matthew's Parish and it became known as St. Matthew's school. In 1928, a new building was erected for the school and this year St. Matthew's became St. Frederick's High School and will be located on Westminister. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy in October.

Africans' Moscow Revolt Is Recalled

By ANTHONY WHITE

MOSCOW (AP) — The dark flood of faces flowed down the broad avenue, bodies hunched in the fierce cold.

"Murder!" they cried. Banners waved at their head: "Our Friends Yesterday — The Devil Today!"

They crawled under barriers, angrily brushed aside policemen in their path and then, 500 strong, they were in Red Square.

They jogged on the icy cobbles to keep warm, like athletes limbering up for a race. Some were crying. The snow lay on the Kremlin fir trees like icing on a cake, and on the onion domes of the cathedrals. The Kremlin looked beautiful.

History was made this day — Dec. 18, 1963 — the day hundreds of African students in Moscow rose in brief revolt against Soviet authority. It was the first such "rebellion" since the birth of Soviet power. Perhaps it was the last.

Most of the students were from Ghana. They had come to the red walls of the Kremlin itself. Here was something the Russians had often hailed — Africans on the march, Africans demonstrating against white authority. Only the whites this time were the Russians. The Russians did not like it. Swiftly the rebellion was extinguished.

Now, nine months later, the students who rose are quiet. Some have gone home. They learned a lesson: demonstrations may be fine in nations under "colonialist" rule. But not in the Soviet Union.

What fired the little revolt is history. A Ghanaian student had been found dead. Soviet authorities said he got drunk one fiercely cold night, fell in the snow and there died of exposure.

The Africans' story was different. He had been murdered because he wanted to marry a Russian girl, they said. So they took to the streets.

Russian authorities at first were confused by this new situation — a demonstration they didn't organize. But having once decided, they acted swiftly and efficiently. The rebellion flowered for a couple of hours on Red Square and then police moved in. The square was cleared. The rebellion died.

A deputation of the student leaders was taken to the offices of the Ministry of Higher Education and given a stern lecture. Such outbursts would not be tolerated, they were told. If the students didn't want to obey the Soviet laws they could get out.

Some did. The others settled down to their studies again. Today there still are whispers of racial antagonism between white Russians and Africans. Some Africans still complain they are occasionally snubbed in the streets. But there is no thought of rebellion any more.

The warning given by the Soviet authorities served effectively to silence any further protest and has made African students wary and reluctant to talk about their life here.

Threat Of War Is Cloud Over Royal Romance

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A handsome young Mediterranean king and a teen-age princess from a Viking land will be married Friday in a storybook romance clouded by the Cyprus war threat.

Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark and King Constantine of Greece will exchange vows before a glittering assemblage of kings and queens, princes and princesses, nobles, diplomats and churchmen in a Byzantine ceremony. President Johnson has designated his elder daughter, Lynda Bird, as one of his personal representatives at the wedding.

More than a million spectators — Greeks, visiting Danes, and other foreign tourists — are expected to fill Athens to cheer the couple along the wedding route as they enter their new life in a golden horse-drawn carriage.

With less than a week to go, wedding fever is rising fast. Besides linking Greece and Denmark in an historic union, the marriage will blend storybook traditions to royalty and romance with ultra-modern glamor.

It will turn a lovely, soft-spoken 18-year-old girl into the world's youngest queen — for the world's youngest king. Constantine is 24.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Sunday Hours For Library Are Given

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

This afternoon the Library resumes the Sunday afternoon schedule, which is from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. at the Main Library at 1800 Stubbs. This is the only library which is open on Sunday afternoons. We hope that many people will take advantage of this service, for it is arranged to be of convenience for you, the People of the Parish. Tomorrow we begin the fall Bookmobile schedules. Watch the paper for the announcements of each day's routes.

Last week a number of interesting new books were added to the book collection of the Library. An outstanding novel is "The Lost City" by John Gunther. The setting for this book is the lovely old city of Vienna. The time is the early 1930s. The hero of this book is an American correspondent Mason Jarrett. We are introduced to all of the members of the foreign correspondent group. Mr. Gunther writes from a wide and varied background and is able to portray the period with great fidelity. It is an absorbing book and is certain to be one of the most popular books of this year.

There are also many good books in the field of nonfiction. "View From The Seventh Floor" by Walt Whitman Rostow is a penetrating and interesting analysis of the work of the U.S. State Department. It is well-written and will interest many readers. "Easter and Its Customs" by Christiana Hole is a valuable addition to our collection of holiday material. It is a small, but beautiful book, which many readers will enjoy.

Very little has been written about the Gypsies, who are an ancient and interesting people. Daphne Macready has given us a very fine study of the customs and life of these people. The title is "Gypsy Idyll." She goes into great detail about the lives of the gypsies and the book is certainly worth reading. "Downstream" by John E. Bardach is a natural history of rivers. It will be used by student and by all who are interested in how rivers flow. "A Museum of Early American Tools" is a very splendid volume by Eric Sloane. He has travelled all over the country collecting and studying the tools used by our ancestors. It is a valuable addition to our book collection. "Collecting Antique Jewelry" is a beautiful and useful volume about this most interesting and decorative pasttime. It is a book which will be enjoyed by many readers.

"Careers and Opportunities in Music" by Alan Rich should be read by every young person who is seriously considering music as a career. It tells just what the profession has to offer and discusses it's rewards and frustrations. Susan French is the author of a new book on the use of puppets called "Presenting Marionettes." She discusses making them and their use. Good directions are given and this book will be widely used. "Big Bowl Football" by Fred Russell and George K. Leonard will be eagerly received by the many enthusiasts in the community. It contains facts and figures and a wealth of information. "Selected Poems of Herman Melville" is a distinct addition to the literature collection of the library. It is the type of book which enriches a collection in depth and we are always happy to have one of this type. Another very useful book for students of literature is Studies in English Renaissance Literature," written by Waldo F. MeNeir and published by the L.S.U. Press. It is a book which students will find to be invaluable.

Search in The Desert" by John Marco Allegro is a lively account of an archaelogical expedition into Jordan's desert of Judah. He stresses the problems, pleasures and practices of the project from the securing of funds and personnel, through the adventures and finds on the dig. All who are interested in the "Dead Sea Scrolls" will want to read this book. Laurens Van der Post is a British novelist of South African origin, who has been permitted to travel widely in Russia and as a result has come up with a most informative book, "A View of All The Russias." He travelled from the Baltic to the Black Sea and from Ukraine throughout Siberia and Central Asia. He reports the contrast between technological progress and cultural backwardness and has produced a very informative book. "Keep Calm If You Can" is a charming informal narrative of a vacation trip by car and trailer from Chicago to Alaska made by Sir Edmund Hillary and his wife and three small children. Mrs. Hillary writes from a woman's veiwpoint and has produced a most readable book.

Remember that the Library will be open this afternoon and these and many other fascinating books will be waiting for you.

THE FUTURE IS FILLED WITH JOBS

IS YOURS ONE OF THEM?

Many of today's "good jobs" may not even exist in the near future. There will be plenty of jobs—but they'll be different. They'll demand different skills. New skills.

You can usually tell if your job is on the way out—when a machine or new method will soon replace it. Don't wait to do something about it.

You won't get tomorrow's jobs with yesterday's skills

What can you do? You can re-train—now. Learn the new skills and abilities you'll need to qualify for the opportunities of the future.

Re-training isn't the easiest way out. But it's the only way to be sure you'll earn a living—and a better one at that—tomorrow. Find out more about it this week at the local office of your state employment service.

Professor Part Of 'Every Man'

HERZOG. By Saul Bellow. Viking. $5.75.

Because this is the big novel on which the highly regarded Bellow has been working for some years, it should be said right at the start that its publication is no occasion for light-headed females, entertainment-seekers or curiosity-collectors.

In short, it is a literary novel; a demanding exercise of the reader's mind; a test of an accomplished author's ability to communicate with his intelligent peers; an equal test of the reader's comprehension.

It is a story about Moses Elkanah Herzog, a middle-aged professor with an Old World heritage, with a pardonable weakness of Adam-descended flesh and with a groping devotion to his world of scholarship and learning.

So far as the narrative is concerned, we find Moses at a crucial time. As a scholar he has not fulfilled his early promise, but may yet. As a man, he has been through a first divorce (Daisy and their son Marco are mere figures in the background) and more recently, a second divorce (a devouring member of the intelligentsia named Madeline, with their daughter June) and is vulnerable to another entanglement with a sexy New York widow.

Moses is right on the edge of irrationality at this point, as he knows full well. Compulsively, he writes letters (but he doesn't mail them) to many diverse figures, large and small, living and dead — and to himself. He makes a visit to Chicago to see little June, and undergoes a serio-comic adventure there. Finally he retreats to a decaying old house in the Berkshires to collect his wavering wits.

Herzog is more than the usual author's mouthpiece for social philosophical comment, though he serves that purpose wonderfully. He is partly a new Moses, perhaps doubting if there is a Promised Land; partly a new Everyman on a newly dangerous pilgrimage; partly Modern Man, battered by the pressures of our time (a perpetual loser to forces stronger than he can muster as a worried, overwhelmed individual; but particularly he is the present day intellectual, trapped between the humane sense and confused perplexity over shattered 20th Century values.

The writing is superbly done, much of it a dialogue between man as a person and man as a mind. It is a novel that is not easy to ready, for it is anything but shallow. It also is a novel that is not easy to forget.

POPULAR RECORDS

Someone said back in the 1930's that if Johann Sebastian Bach were living at that time he would be playing boogie woogie.

It is true that Bach's rhythms were not alien to the boogie woogie beat played by Pine Top Smith and other greats.

But let's carry it one step further and say that if Bach were alive today he would be playing and composing modern jazz.

This could be proved very easily by The Jacques Lousier Trio who have recorded the third volume of "Play Back Jazz" (London PS 289). And the music of Bach and others of his era have been hopped up by The Swingle Singers on "Going Baroque" (Phillips PHS 600-126).

Bach's "Italian Concerto" gives Loussier, a fine jazz pianist, all the leeway he needs for improvisation without losing or dulling the original thematic material.

Pierre Michelot is outstanding on the bass but this is understandable because the bass is the heart of Bach. And Christian Garros completes the trio with subtle drum work.

The Swingle Singers are sticking to their format which won them a Grammy award this spring as an outstanding vocal group. As in their previous recording, the Swingle Singers mouth sounds instead of words and although their voices do not imitate or even approximate the sound of instruments, they present a jazzy concert with unlimited imagination.

For those who like more down-to-earth jazz, "NBC's Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street" (RCA Camden CAS-802e) is recommended. Here is a reprocessing in stereo sound of the great blues and jazz music made many years ago by Paul Lavalle, Sidney Bechet, Henry Levine et al.

Selected Singles—"I Want You to Meet My Baby" by Eydie Gorme (Columbia 4-43082), "I Ain't Down Yet" backed by "Seventy - Six Trombones Ska" and either side is great, by Frederick Fennell (Mercury 72304), "Seventh Dawn Theme" by Jimmy Haskell (Capitol 5221), "Jamaica Joe" by The Angels (Smash S-1915).

LP's of the Week — Mono: "The Very Best of Cole Porter" (M-G-M E-4244). Artie Shaw, Louis Armstrong, Ertha Kitt, David Rose and Margaret Whitting are among artists who reprise top songs by one of the great musical comedy composers. Stereo: "All-Time Country & Western, Vol. 5" (Decca DL 74549). Red Foley, Jimmie Davis, Webb Pierce, Kitty Wells, Patsy Cline, and other country music stars sing songs that made everybody, almost everybody, listen to "Grand Ole Opry" and "The National Barn Dance."

An American In Rome Very Readable Book

AN AMERICAN IN ROME. By Michael Stern. Bernard Geis - Random. $4.95.

New York-born newspaperman Michael Stern arrived in Rome in 1944 as a war correspondent, and his book leaves the impression that neither he nor the Eternal City has been quite the same since.

Written in a sometimes breezy, sometimes serious style, the book is largely a series of reminiscences of Stern's 20 years as a Rome-based newspaperman, magazine writer and host to hundreds of the greater and lesser lights of show business, cafe society and journalism.

Some of her anecdotes are fascinating and the rest are at least entertaining. But oddly enough, the most interesting ones to this reader are those that have the least to do with Rome:

—Stern's coverage of The liberation of the Dachau concentration camp inmates — some of whom battered two SS guards to death as Stern looked on — and of the freeing of famed anti-Nazi pastor Martin Niemoller.

Historical Novel Gets 'Confused'

AGRIPPA'S DAUGHTER. By Howard Fast. Doubleday. $4.95.

The author of "Spartacus," among many other novels, has produced here in a story about Queen Berenice, who was a great-granddaughter of King Herod the Great. She was a red-haired beauty with a fatal affinity for trouble and intrigue.

Her first, teen-age, betrothal ended with the untimely death of the wealthy scion she was to have married in Alexandria. Her first marriage, arranged by her scheming father, was with her uncle, a union marked by her own frigid disdain and the early deaths of their two children.

She spent a few years propping up her younger brother as a small Galilean king under the sufferance of the Roman procurators, and then found her first real romance in a marriage with the physician Shimeon, of the peace - loving house of Hillel.

What might have continued to be a queenly story then bogs down in a mess of politics, polemics and obsessions over heredity, as the Jewish factions kill each other off in the civil strife of besieged Jerusalem. Her final, fading flirtation is with a younger man, the emperor's son Titus.

The whole story is saturated with local color and doctrinal obscurities. For those with a fancy for the fictional antique, it doubtless has its attractions.

But as a novel, it seems to be only a somewhat confused costume film.

HOME IS A CABOOSE

COALTON, Ohio (AP) — Retired watchman Walter Dititoe, 75, is looking forward to a new home in an old railroad caboose.

He acquired the caboose from a man who planned to set it up inside nearby Jackson until he learned an ordinance forbids it. Dititoe has purchased an 80-foot square site, remodeled the interior of the caboose and installed electricity. He plans to get his water from a nearby spring.

1st Novel By Girl Is Very Creditable

BIRCH INTERVAL. By Joanna Crawford, Houghton. Mifflin. $3.95.

This, a good first novel by a 22-year-old girl who grew up in Pennsylvania, is about an 11-year-old girl awakening to life in rural Pennsylvania.

The book is not clammy with backwoodsy references. Rural flavor is here, but, happily just enough to make the plot setting seem realistic.

Jesse, who is 11, has been sent to live on her grandparents' farm after the death of her father. She gets to know three cousins and their parents who live in the next house and meets an assortment of neighbors ranging from kindly to gossipy to crazy to vicious.

Although this is Jesse's story, told through her eyes, the reader's sympathy and interest are as much with the grandparents' heartaches as with the girl's awakening.

Jesse has joined one of those families whose luck is running bad. Gentle Uncle Thomas next door becomes moody and is accused by neighbors of letting cattle out. The grandfather, trying to do the right thing, signs a paper committing him to a mental institution.

Then the youngest, most likeable and most independent of Jesse's cousins, 9-year-old Samuel, upset by his father's being taken away, stops studying in school. While playing with a stick, Samuel puts out the eye of one of his sisters. Pressure again comes to the anguished grandfather — to send Samuel away to a correctional school.

Miss Crawford has written an absorbing first novel, to which she already has sold movie rights.

Ralph Boston Erases Mark In Broad Jump

MIKE LARRABEE, 30-year-old sprinter is embraced by his wife Margaret after he equaled the world record of 44.9 in winning the 400 meters Olympic Trials event in Los Angeles Saturday. Larrabee is now a schoolteacher. (AP Wirephoto)

Bob Hayes Is Qualifier In Century Dash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A near-incredible series of broad jumps by Ralph Boston — including a world record 27 feet 4¼ inches — a record-matching 44.9 by 30-year-old Mike Larrabee in the 400 meters and sprinter Bob Hayes' comeback highlighted Saturday's final U.S. Olympic track and field trials.

The two-day meet in vast Los Angeles Coliseum will conclude today.

Boston, a lanky, 25-year-old graduate student running for the Southern California Striders, had a fantastic series of jumps; so good that his world record was only his second best of the afternoon.

He went 27-10¼ on his first jump, seven inches over the listed record of 27-3¼ by Igor Ter-Ovanesyan of Russia and the longest the world has ever seen. That jump, however, was aided by a 5.8 mile per hour wind, then followed with jumps of 26-11¼, the record 27-4¼, 26-7½, 26-8¾, pass.

The wind had abated by the time he got off his record leap before a crowd of 18,558. The first half of the two-day meet was held in bright sunshine with temperatures in the mid 70s.

Larrabee, some five to 10 years older than most good dash men, came from behind with about 150 yards to go, collared the front-running Ulis Williams,

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here is the roll of athletes who qualified for the 1964 U.S. Olympic Games track and field team in the first day's competition:

Pole vault — Fred Hansen, Rice; John Pennel, Northeast Louisiana; William Pemelton, Abilene Track Club.

100-meter dash — Bob Hayes, Florida A&M; Trenton Jackson, Illinois; Mel Pender, Philadelphia Pioneer Club.

110-meter high hurdles — Willie Davenport, U.S. Army; Hayes Jones, Detroit V.C.; Blaine Lindgren, Utah Track Club.

400-meter dash — Mike Larrabee, Southern California Striders; Ulis Williams, Southern California Striders; Ollan Cassell, Houston Track Club.

10,000-meter run — Gerry Lindgren, Spokane Athletic Club; Bill Mills, U.S. Marines; Ron Larrieu, Los Angeles Track Club.

Shot put — Dallas Long, Pasadena Athletic Club; Randy Matson, Texas A&M freshman; Parry O'Brien, Pasadena Athletic Club.

3,000-meter steeplechase — George Young, Phoenix Olympic Club; Vic Zwolak, Villanova; Jeff Fishback, Santa Clara Youth Village.

Broad jump — Ralph Boston, Southern California Striders; Gayle Hopkins, Arizona; Phil Shinnick, Washington.

Hammer throw — Harold Connolly, Culver City Athletic Club; Edward Burke, Santa Clara Youth Village; Albert Hall, New York Athletic Club.

then just fought off a counter rally by the lanky Arizona State student in the record matching 400.

Williams was timed in 45 flat while Ollan Cassell, who won the preliminary trials in New York, was third in 45.6.

Hayes, the burly flash from Florida A&M and generally regarded as the world's best sprinter, won the 100 meters in 10.1, finishing about a yard in front of Trenton Jackson of Illinois, who was timed in 10.2.

It was the first competition in more than two months for Hayes, who pulled a muscle in the National AAU Championships and had to skip the New York preliminaries.

It was his last chance to win a chance on the team, and he left little doubt that he was ready, matching the American record he shares with several others and just one-tenth of a second off the world record.

All winners in New York have secured places on the team and needed only to demonstrate by their performances here that they are still in condition. The next two finishers qualify for the second and third positions in each event for the team that will represent this country in Tokyo.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Summaries of the final U.S. Olympic Games team track and field trials:

100 meter dash — 1, Bob Hayes, Florida A&M, 10.1 (equal American record shared by seven sprinters). 2, Trenton Jackson, Illinois, 10.2. 3, Mel Pender, Philadelphia Pioneer Club, 10.3 4, Gerry Ashworth, Southern Calif. Ludick Flattens Ralph Dupas In Second Round

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Willie Ludick, 23-year-old South African welterweight champion, knocked out Ralph Dupas, former junior middleweight titleholder, in the second round of a 10-round bout Satuday night.

A near capacity crowd of 9,000 saw the hard-hitting South African southpaw knock out the 28-year-old veteran from New Orleans after one minute of the second round.

The unranked, unheralded Ludick, a pro only 2½ years and in his 14th fight, crowded the clever, fleet-footed American to the ropes and then dropped him with a devastating left. Dupas tried to get up but he couldn't make it at the count of 10.

Dupas, a pro 14 years with 130 fights, was ranked third among the junior middleweight contenders. He weighed 148 pounds to Ludick's 147¼

Ludick took charge from the opening bell. Three times in the first round he bulled Dupas to the ropes and pounded him with both hands.

Dodgers Beat New York 8-0 Behind Richert

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Left-hander Pete Richert pitched a two-hitter for his first major league shutout Saturday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the New York Mets 8-0.

Frank Howard slammed two doubles and two singles in four trips, driving in two of the Dodger runs and scoring two.

New York's only hit until the ninth was a line drive double by Joe Christopher in the fourth inning. Jim Hickman singled in the ninth.

Richert, achieving his second victory since he was recalled from the minors last week, struck out five walked three and didn't let a New York runner past second base.

The Dodgers got 13 hits off southpaw Al Jackson and dealt him his 14th loss in 24 decision. Jackson, who had won seven of his last 10 decisions, has an 0-6 career record against the Dodgers.

Ron Fairly knocked in two runs and Nate Oliver, Jeff Torborg and Richert drove in one each.

The victory was the Dodgers' 14th in 17 games with the Mets.

Chargers Take Win Over Oilers With Tobin Rote

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Tobin Rote threw three touchdown passes Saturday night as the San Diego Chargers opened defense of their American Football League championship with a 27-21 victory over the Houston Oilers.

In the first half, Rote only hit 5 out of 13.

But he regained his control in the second half to hit end Don Norton with a 19 - yarder and flanker Lance Alworth for 27 yards.

The Charger defense stopped three Oiler drives in the last quarter, but yielded in the final three minutes. Houston's Bob Jackson scored from the 1 with two seconds to play.

UCLA Upsets Pittsburgh In Collegiate Grid Opener

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Quarterback Larry Zeno passed for two touchdowns and kicked a field goal Saturday, leading UCLA to a 17-12 upset victory over Pitt in the first major college football game of the season.

In guiding the Bruins to victory, the first ever by a West Coast team in Pitt Stadium, Zeno outdueled the Panthers' heralded field general, Fred Mazurek.

UCLA got what proved to be the winning touchdown with a little less than five minutes left in the first half. Starting the drive on their own 13-yard line following Pitt's first touchdown, the Bruins marched down the field in 13 plays, with Zeno passing 14 yards to end Dick Wichter.

Zeno added some insurance points three plays after Vic Lepisto intercepted a Mazurek pass. He broke over center for 33 yards to the Pitt eight and then kicked a 25-yard field goal on the last play of the half to make it 17-6.

Pitt, with reserve quarterback Kenny Lucas at the controls, narrowed the gap to 17-12 late in the third period when fullback Barry McKnight cracked over left guard for two yards and the TD. A two-point conversion try failed for the second time.

Lucas took over after Mazurek was injured on a two-yard run three plays before the TD. Mazurek did not return until there was just over two minutes left in the game.

UCLA scored the first time it got the ball. Marching 63 yards with the opening kickoff to a touchdown in 13 plays, Zeno climaxing the drive with his toss to halfback Steve Durbin. Zeno made his first of two conversion.

Most of the yardage on the drive was picked up on the ground with Zeno and fullback Jim Coletto doing most of the carrying.

Pitt got back into the game early in the second period with Mazurek getting a key block from guard Bernie LaQuinta and skirting four yards for the TD. The drive carried 75 yards in nine plays.

The Panthers, who stiffened on defense in the second half, saw their attack stymied several times by fumbles and pass interceptions. The Bruins pounced on three Pitt fumbles and snared two passes.

Pitt made a last ditch effort, but time ran out with the ball on the UCLA 21.

Zeno completed 12 of 20 passes for 108 yards and ran for 105. Mazurek completed five passes for 76 yards.

TIED FOR SECOND

Cepeda Homers Giants By Phils

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two homers by Orlando Cepeda, including a grand slam, and a two-run blast by Jim Hart powered the San Francisco Giants past the National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies 9-1 Saturday.

Hart's 28th homer with Willie Mays on base in the first inning put the Giants ahead to stay.

It came with two out off loser Art Mahaffey, who left after two innings for a pinch hitter.

Cepeda lofted his grand slam over the right - center field fence in the third off John Boozer, the second Phils' hurler. The 380-foot clout also came with 2 out after Boozer hit two batters and walked another.

Cepeda hit a two-run homer in the seventh off Ray Culp.

Gaylord Perry picked up the victory for the Giants, his 11th in 20 decisions.

Hart's homer was the only hit off Mahaffey, who walked three and generally was off form in taking his eighth defeat against 12 wins.

Cepeda's grand slam was the only hit off Boozer. His two-run homer followed a walk to Jose Cardenal.

Cepeda's home runs were his 29th and 30th of the year.

Roman Brother Winner Of New Hampshire Race

WINCHESTER N. H. (AP) — Roman Brother, chalking up his fifth victory, all in stakes, this year in 17 starts boosted his career bankroll to $627,008.

Six people picked up $100,000 each as holders of lucky tickets in the first legalized sweepstakes ever held in this country on a horse race.

There was no argument over Roman Brother's victory as Fernando Alvarez worked on him with feet, hands and whip in the three-sixteenths of a mile run through the stretch.

But Phil Grimm, astride Phantom Shot, lodged a foul claim against Henry Wajda on Pursuer, charging that he was bothered at the three-eighths pole.

After a long look at the pictures, the judges allowed the finish to stand.

Roman Brother paid $3.80, 2.80 and 2.40. Knightly Manner the 7-2 second choice, paid $3.80 and $3.00 while Pursuer returned $40 to show.

"The best horse beat us," said Larry Adams, who rode Knightly Manner. "When we hooked up with him in the stretch he was just too good."

Old Stoney and Pursuer still as expected and stepped through the first quarter-mile in 23 seconds with Prairie Schooner in closest pursuit. He romped through the first one-half mile in 46 2-5 seconds and the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5.

Meantime, Roman Brother was far back, with Knightly Manner not much better of in the field of 11 3-year-olds.

But with one-half mile to go, a mighty roar went up from the crowd. Roman Brother was on the move, circling the field in the middle of the track. And right with him, on the inside, went Knightly Manner.

Old Stoney and Purser still were one-two heading into the home lane but the margin was very small. Alvarez had Roman Brother under a full head of steam in the middle of the track and Adams had Knightly Manner eating up the ground rapidly on the rail.

There was little to choose between the two leaders with one-eighth mile remaining. In a few strides, however, the Harbor View ace had his nose, then his head and finally was a good one-half length in front and he held it to the finish.

McAuliffe Raps Homer To Lead Tiger Victory

DETROIT (AP) — Dick McAuliffe led off the 10th inning with a homer into the right field seats, giving Detroit a 6-5 victory over Washington Saturday.

McAuliffe's blast was the second homer in two innings off reliever Jim Duckworth.

Norm Cash cracked a two-out homer off Duckworth in the ninth inning, tying the game 5-5. The Senators had taken the lead in their half of the ninth on Don Blasingame's run - scoring single.

Mickey Lolich, pitching with only two days rest, appeared on the way to his eighth straight victory but was lifted in the seventh inning after the Senators scored twice on Fred Valentine's single and successive doubles by John Kennedy and pinch hitter Ed Brinkman.

The Senators then tied the score in the eighth on Chuck Hinton's triple and a single by Don Lock.

Lolich saw his consecutive shutout inning streak snapped at 30 when the Senators scored in the fourth inning on a walk and two singles, the last by Valentine.

Houston Colts Edge Pittsburgh By 2-1 Margin

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Colts pushed across two runs in the first inning and veteran Don Larsen made them stand up for a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday night.

The win snapped an eight game losing streak for the Colts.

Al Spangler opened the Houston first with a double and moved to third on Nellie Fox' single. Bob Aspromonte's sacrifice fly delivered Spangler with Fox moving to second on the throw to the plate. Carroll Hardy's single to left brought Fox in with the winning run.

Pittsburgh's only run came in the second when Willie Stargell crashed his 19th hon er into the left field seats.

DOUBLE ONE-HITTER

Birds Increase Lead With 1-0 Win Over A's

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rookies Frank Bertaina of Baltimore and Bob Meyer of Kansas City matched brilliant one-hitters Saturday night as the Orioles, held hitless for seven innings, scored a run in the eighth on Jack Brandt's sacrifice fly and edged the Athletics 1-0.

The victory stretched the Orioles' American League lead to 1½ games over Chicago, which lost to Cleveland.

For 7½ innings, the only hit in the game was Doc Edwards' leadoff double in the fifth against Bertaina. John Orsino finally broke Meyer's spell, leading off the eighth with a double.

Bob Saverine ran for Orsino and moved to third on Bertaina's sacrifice bunt. Brandt then flied to Rocky Colavito in right field, and Saverine scored after the catch.

The Orioles had threatened to score without a hit in the seventh when Sam Bowens opened with a walk, moved to third on a sacrifice bunt and an infield out, then tried to score when one of Meyer's pitches got away from Edwards. But he was out at the plate, Edwards to Meyer.

The one-hitter was Bertaina's first major league victory in his third start since coming up from Elmira of the Eastern League last month. Meyer, who beat the Orioles last Monday with a six-hitter, lost his sixth game in eight decisions.

Both pitchers are rookie left-handers. Meyer started the season with New York but was sold to Los Angeles in June and then went to the Athletics two months later.

It was the second straight night that the Orioles were held hitless for an extended length of time. Bonus rookie John (Blue Moon) Odom went six innings without allowing a hit Friday night and wound up with an 8-0 two-hit victory.

Bertaina walked five and struck out seven. Meyer walked six and fanned four. The double one-hitter brought to 16 the number of one-hitters in the majors this season.

SIX RUN FIRST

Cleveland Tops White Sox, 11-10

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vic Davalillo's bases-loaded single in the first inning highlighted a six-run outburst that propelled the Cleveland Indians to an 11-10 victory over the pennant-hopeful Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The loss, their fourth in the last six games, dropped the second-place White Sox a full game behind American League Baltimore. The Orioles met Kansas City in a night game.

The loss, their fourth in the last six games, dropped the second-place White Sox 1½ games behind American League-leading Baltimore. The Orioles nipped Kansas City 1-0.

The Indians started their smashing against Ray Herbert and went on to batter five pitchers for 17 hits and their biggest run output against Chicago this season while beating the White Sox for only the fifth time in 17 meetings.

Davalillo had a double and a single and drove in three runs.

Chicago, which kept whittling away the Cleveland lead, jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first with three unearned runs on a walk, two errors, Bill Skowron's double and two wild pitches by Sam McDowell.

Cleveland surged ahead 6-3 in its half of the first, getting six runs — four of them unearned.

The Indians added two more runs in the third, making it 8-3 on a throwing error by Ward. Davalillo's double, an intentional walk, a balk by John Buzhardt and a sacrifice fly. They push d in front 9-3 in the fourth when Fred Talbot, third Chicago pitcher, walked in a run after Cleveland had loaded the bases on successive singles by Fred Whitfield and Leon Wagner and a bunt by Woodie Held.

Chicago scored once in the fifth, twice in the sixth on Skorwon's run-producing double and twice more in the seventh on Jim Landis' single, a sacrifice Camilo Carreon's double, an outfield out and Mike Hershberger's single.

Cleveland made it 11-8 in the seventh with two more runs on a run-producing single byy Whitfield and a wild pitch by Ed Fisher, then hung on as the White Sox fought back with single runs in the eighth and ninth.

COMIN' UP AFIELD

River Program Just Begun

With Sam Hanna

Pollution Is Obstacle

Groundbreaking ceremonies at Columbia yesterday for the first of the locks and dams in the 9-foot channel project should create greater public interest in improvements of the Ouachita River.

But a deeper channel is not enough.

The Ouachita River must be rid of pollution also.

Purpose of the 9-foot channel project is to give the Ouachita Valley an economic boost by providing a stream better equipped for transportation, not to mention added recreational values.

But what about pollution?

Stream biologists have warned us that the Ouachita will never reach its fullest potential unless the water is clean. Industry doesn't like dirty water.

It's not good for people to play in dirty water.

Of course, it wouldn't be fair or accurate to describe the Ouachita River as a stream of dirty water. The Ouachita has been described as the "second most beautiful river in the world while the health authorities have assured us that water from the river north of Monroe is clean enough to drink.

But what about the river south of Monroe and West Monroe?

We can't say that the river is safe south of Monroe and West Monroe, because both cities are using the Ouachita as a dumping ground for sewage disposal.

Monroe at present has its sewage treatment plant under construction. Engineers estimate the $3-million project will be completed by April.

This is a civic improvement long overdue.

And in West Monroe, city officials are working with a citizens advisory committee in hopes of presenting a sewage treatment program to the people for approval.

Since engineering surveys have been conducted for the West Monroe program, it appears that the project has gone past the talking stage. But the sooner it's put into force the better.

Monroe is using $600,000 in federal funds for its plant. West Monroe anticipates the use of federal funds also.

According to a bulletin published by the Sport Fishing Instiute this month, federal grants have helped 4,605 communities build sewage treatment facilities since the passage of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1956.

Investment exceed $2.3-billion for these improvements, but most of this money came from the local and state levels. Federal grants have amounted to $427-million while $1,886-million was spent by local and state governments, or a ratio of about $4.40 in state and local dollars to each federal dollar.

But this doesn't mean that Monroe and West Monroe are among the last communities in the nation to get rolling. A 1963 survey by the Conference of State Sanitary Engineers disclosed that 5,831 communities — representing 35.8 million people — presently needs new sewage treatment plants, plant enlargements, or additional treatment.

Actually, work to clean-up the Ouachita has come a long way. Arkansas has completed its program to get salt brines out of the river while locally Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. is spending millions of dollars for oxidation and water treatment ponds.

But the job is not finished.

The Louisiana Stream Control Commission needs public support to keep oil and gas field disposals out of the Ouachita and municipal sewage needs to be treated.

Without completion of the West Monroe program, the Monroe plant will represent a job half-done.

Dove Season Report

Biologist Cliff Williams, who heads up the Monroe district for the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, reports that the dove hunting dropped off after the Labor Day weekend.

Cliff gave us this report on Friday, but no doubt the activity picked up this weekend again, although probably not as much as the opening weekend.

The shooting was good that first weekend—as good or better than in recent year. Large concentrations were reported in several areas, but we talked to some hunters who said they didn't get in on the good shooting.

Cliff says biologist Jerry Farrar, after surveying numerous kills, reported that over 60 per cent of the birds he checked were young ones, which means that the area had a good hatch.

A great majority of the birds we saw killed were young, but that's the way it's always been on this first split of the season. It's because of the young birds that some hunters oppose the early season.

But remember that the birds grown here will begin migrating out of Louisiana the latter part of September where they will become targets for somebody else. And did you know that the normal life span for a dove is less than a year?

This first leg will run through September 20th, giving the hunters one more weekend. The squirrel season follows October 3rd before the second split of the dove season opens October 17th.

Dove hunting is a grand sport. And it offers a fine training ground for youngsters who want to hunt.

Public Gun Safety

Almost every season a life is lost.

And with more and more people hunting each year, gun safety becomes even more important. Especially is this true since so many people are hunting for the first time in their lives.

If it could be done, it would be a wonderful program to offer instruction on gun safety in the schools. But since this is not being done, then why not do it at home?

And that's the idea behind the Third Annual Gun Safety Clinic at the Bancroft Camp September 26th — open to the general public and especially for youngsters of all ages.

For the past two years the Monroe Optimist Club has conducted this gun safety clinic, attracting about 350 youngsters for each clinic. Looks like a lot more people than that would be interested in seeing their youngsters taught the "Ten Commandments of Gun Safety" by experts.

The Monroe club — with the assistance of the Sterlington Optimist Club— wants as many people as possible to attend the clinic, which will be held, without charge, in two sessions — from 9:30 a.m. until noon and 2-4:30 p.m.

Personnel of the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission will do the instructing and the program will feature gun demonstrations by Jim Stoutts and Art Hill of Winchester-Western and the Pine Hills Gun Club.

Another important aspect of the outdoors will be brought out by Kit Beecher, the zoo director who will school the youngsters on poisonous and non-poisonous snakes.

All of this is open to the public. And for an added incentive, Gene's Sporting Goods will offer an attendance prize.

It's for all the public, September 26th.

Little Man's Corner

The bass were schooling and the gray ghosts were on the wing and the little men made news afield.

Out at Black Bayou where the bass were on the run, Paul Danna landed the limit, the largest weighing 4 pounds. But John Danna caught one that went five pounds. His string totaled 12. J. W. Shea caught 23 bream.

Lake D'Arbonne at Farmerville continued to be hot for bass fishing. Stine Baughman Sr. and Stine Baughman Jr., caught the limit three days running. James Pickle got the limit too.

And so did Keith Kenly while Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Dean were getting 65 bream and white perch. Their son, Pal, was in on the trip too.

Still at D'Arbonne, Bud Braley, Richard Moore and Bill Beasley of Ruston went out for about 30 minutes and caught 14 bass. Bud says they're hitting mostly around the wooded areas on Rebels, Cobras and River Runts. He says they're also catching bass to the right of the spillway and at Stow Creek.

Locally, the Ouachita Valley Hunters Association is planning its 10th Annual Barbecue and membership drive September 19th at Area No. 4 on Cheniere Lake.

It's a rain or shine affair and the barbecue will be good. Uncle Beck and the McCarty family will provide the entertainment starting at 5:30 p.m. with the barbecue to follow at 7 o'clock.

On the fishing scene in Arkansas, they have a new fish record — one that is likely to stand for a long time. It's a 215-pound alligator gar caught by Alvin Bond of Dardanelle. The gar was 7 feet and nine inches long, landed on a 30-pound test line with a rod and reel.

From Bastrop, John Blanchard's party had a good dove shoot in West Carroll Parish. John and his son, Jeb, each bagged the limit.

East Carroll Parish hunters having excellent luck included E. W. Patrick, Harvey Howington, Graham Schneider, Pilcher Gilfoil, Cecil Manning, W. T. Rushing, Pearce Bailey, John Hester, Frank Cain, Gordon Cain, Wednell Downing, Earl Oswalt, George Cooper and Fred Phillips.

George Franklin's group had a terrific shoot while in the Lake St. John section. Eddie Collins and Larry Helis of Ferriday and Joe Rowell and W. M. Pettaway of Sicily Island had a good shoot.

From Monroe, A. J. Patterson got the limit of bass in St. John and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbon Smith of New Light in Tensas got the limit of bream in Old River Lake.

Roy Powell of Vidalia got the limit of white perch and Ed Lusk got the limit of bream at Deer Park.

Hunting doves in Richland Parish, George Stamper and his 12-year-old son, Glen, and brother-in-law Walker Duckett had a good shoot. George also is proudly displaying a new deer rack at this barbershop.

Cuba Athletes

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba will send 40 athletes to Tokyo for the Oct. 10-24 Olympic games, the Cuban Olympic Committee said Saturday. They will compete in boxing, fencing, basketball, weight lifting, gymnastics, track and rowing.

EXPERT MARKSMAN Jim Stoutts of Winchester-Western will be one of the featured attractions at the Third Annual Gun Safety Clinic at the Bancroft Camp on September 26th open to the public. Stoutts and colleague Art Hill will demonstrate the power of firearms for persons attending the clinic, sponsored by the Monroe Optimist Club and co-sponsored by the Sterlington Optimist Club. Youngsters of all ages — they're all invited — will be schooled in gun safety by personnel of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

Beman Attempts 3rd Golf Crown

CLEVELAND (AP) — Deane Beman, 25-year-old Bethesda, Md., insurance man, will try to do what only three other golfers have accomplished when he tees off Monday in the 64th U.S. Amateur Golf Championships at Canterbury Golf Club.

He will be trying for his third USGA Amateur Championship.

The only men ever to win more than twice were Bobby Jones, who carried off the trophy five times between 1924 and 1930; Jerome D. Travers, who won four times from 1907 to 1913, and Walter J. Travis, who was a three-time winner starting in 1900.

Beman won the British Amateur in 1959 and took his first U.S. championship the next year while still in college. He won again last year, defeating R. H. Sikes 2 and 1 in the final round at the Wakonda Club in Des Moines, Iowa.

Sikes later turned professional, like many other top pros who sparkled as amateurs before joining the play-for-pay ranks.

Beman faces 149 other amateurs who qualified in regional tournaments at 34 sites across the nation earlier this month. Among the qualifiers is Bill Campbell, former Walker Cup captain from Huntington W. Va., who will be making his 21st try for the title.

Results of the week-long test over Canterbury's 6,863-yard, par 36-35-layout will influence selection of the U.S. team for the World Amateur team championship Oct. 7-10 at Rome.

Beman, Sikes, Labron Harris Jr., and Billy Joe Patton formed the team that carried off the Eisenhower Trophy at the last world competition at Kawana, Japan, in 1962. Harris, like Sikes, has turned pro.

Canterbury, which played host to the U.S. Open in 1940 and 1946, was modified only slightly for the Amateur. Biggest change was to narrow the fairways, creating new areas of thick, luxuriant rough.

The amateurs may have some wind to contend with, as Canterbury sits on an elevation that gets a good amount of breeze. And the Weather Bureau predicted that the drought which has parched the ground in this area may be alleviated by some showers this week.

Double rounds are scheduled Thursday and Friday, with a 36-hole semifinal Friday and 36-hole final Saturday.

Races On Tap At Local Track

The West Monroe Speedway which has recently added a new section of bleachers, has scheduled six races to be held this afternoon beginning at 2:00. Time trials will begin at 1:30.

A fast field of 34 cars is expected with a feature race of 25 laps.

The raceway has slated a Powder-Puff Derby for next Sunday featuring women drivers.

The solunar periods, during which there is maximum fish and wildlife activity, are printed below. Major periods began at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours. Minor periods are shorter.

AMERICANS FALL

Australian Tennis Players, Emerson, Stolle Win Easily

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle smashed down the cream of America's talent with devastating tennis Saturday and set up the seventh all-Australian men's final in the last nine years in the national championships.

The results threw a cloud of gloom over the United States' hopes of keeping the Davis Cup against the challenging Aussies in the challenge round at Cleveland Sept. 25-27.

Stolle, a handsome, curly-haired stylist from Sydney, first completed a postponed, five-set victory over Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 3-6, 9-7, then crushed defending titleholder Rafael Osuna of Mexico 6-3, 8-6, 6-3.

Emerson, a nut-brown Queenslander who already has won the Australian and Wimbledon titles this year, moved closer to a rare triple slam by subduing Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., the United States' No. 1-ranked player, 7-5, 13-11, 6-4.

When the Davis Cup is put on the line at Cleveland, McKinley and Ralston, who won it a year ago in Adelaide, will carry the full load against Emerson and Stolle. Prospects are far from bright.

Vic Seixas, the U.S. captain, admitted that he was concerned but not completely downhearted over the developments.

"It only proves they are better than we are on this day," he said, in an apparent effort to lift morale. "I doesn't mean they can beat us two weeks from now. I am still very hopeful."

With the men's championship certainly going out of the country for the ninth straight time — Tony Trabert was the last U.S. citizen to win in 1955 — there was little hope of an American victory in the women's division.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, the poker-faced, sharp-shooter from Brazil, swept into the women's final on a 6-4, 6-2 triumph over unseeded Carol Hanks of St. Louis and she is overwhelmingly favored to take her second straight title in today's final.

Her opponent will be Carole Caldwell Graebner of Santa Monica, Calif., who defeated Nancy Richey of Dallas, 2-6, 9-7, 6-4.

The Emerson-Stolle final is a replay of this year's Wimbledon, where Emerson won in four sets.

Observers in the gallery of 10,000 who witnessed the semifinals at the West Side Club's big concrete horseshoe, however, doubted that the Queenslander could repeat as decisively.

The 6-foot-2, Stolle produced some of the finest tennis seen on the center court in his triumphs over Ralston and Osuna.

He needed only 13 points and 10 minutes to complete his 2½ hour defeat of Ralston in a quarter-final match postponed from Friday night because of darkness with the score standing 7-7 in the final set.

Serving the 15th game Stolle fell behind 15-40, then proceeded to win eight of the next nine points.

Emerson was equally as destructive against McKinley, who lacked the consistency to match the reelentless shotmaking of the amateur king from Brisbane.

It became obvious from the start that Emerson had the upper hand. McKinley, for all his bounce and acrobatic tactics, seemed to be always battling to stay even.

After taking the first set with a single service break in the 11th game, Emerson found himself in the midst of a struggle in the second. Twice — in the 15th and 19th games — he broke service and twice McKinley broke right back.

In the 23rd game, however, the chunky American had nothing left and served two double-faults on the final two points. Emerson held service easily for the prolonged set.

Three times McKinley fought off set point in the 20th game and once he had set point himself in the 22nd. But in the 23rd, his strength and spirit sapped, he served consecutive double-faults at deuce and Emerson's advantage and that was the end of the battle. The final set was almost routine.

Stolle didn't lose a service against Osuna, breaking Mexican once in each of the first two sets and twice in the third.

Miss Bueno, reaching form after a slow start in the tournament, was too strong both off the ground and at the net for Miss Hanks. Mrs. Graebner ousteadied Miss from the back court.

Miss Richey was leading 4-2 in the final set, then lost four games in a row.

ST. LOUIS 16-6

Cardinals Down Dallas Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Charley Johnson passed for one touchdown and set up two field goals for Jim Bakken Saturday night as the St. Louis Cardinals opened the National Football League season with a 16-6 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Dallas threw away a chance to score and tie it up, after Don Perkins had raced 53 yards to the Cardinal 21 before Don Meredith fumbled.

The Cowboys scored first in the opening quarter on a 14-yard pass by Meredith, who played most of the way on offense despite a leg injury.

Meredith threw three times to Frank Clarke, who caught 10 throws in the game, for 46 yards in engineering a touchdown drive of 70 yards. The payoff toss was 14 yards to Clarke.

Bakken kicked the first of three field goals shortly afterward, booting from the Dallas 37.

Johnson threw 40 yards to Sonny Randle for a touchdown in the second period and Bakken kicked a 41-yard field goal in the third quarter.

The two teams struggled up and down the field in the last quarter but didn't come close to scoring a touchdown. St. Louis faked a field goal that would probably have been successful had it been tried and cashed in on another one.

Bakken tried another field goal from the Dallas 42 in the closing minutes but it was partially blocked and Dallas recovered.

The next time, however, Bakken booted from the Dallas 32.

A crowd of 36,519 turned out to watch the Cowboys open their fifth season in the NFL.

Meredith, who came limping off the field in the last minute after being hit hard by the strong St. Louis pass rush, completed 15 of 30 passes for 159 yards and one touchdown and had one intercepted.

Johnson completed 12 of 24. He threw for 220 yards and one touchdown and had one intercepted on a deflection.

Clarke snared 10 passes for 145 yards.

Perkins led the ground-gainers with 80 yards on 10 carries. Joe Childress was the most potent runner for St. Louis, going 19 times for 54 yards.

Detroit Pistons Sign Two Boys, One Remaining

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons received signed contracts from guard Bob Duffy and rookie forward Jim Davis Saturday, leaving just one player of the fold.

Two other players — Dave DeBusschere and rookie Joe Caldwell — are also unsigned, but neither will be on hand for the training camp which opens Monday.

Recreation Grid Quiz Ready For All Challengers

The Recreation Grid Quiz, that annual football guessing contest for which the Monroe Recreation Department awards championship trophies, is ready to begin again.

The contest, all for fun, will run for ten weeks, beginning with next Saturday's all-collegiate test.

Jack Hesketh, director of the Monroe Recreation Department, has announced that the man and woman with the best forecast score at the end of the season will receive the trophies.

It's simple to enter. Just circle the names of the teams you think will win from each week's selections, sign your name and address clearly and mail to "Monroe Recreation Department, P. O. Box 1293, Monroe, La."

Entires, which can be pasted to a postcard, must bear a postmark of not later than Wednesday midnight the week of the games.

Here goes with the first week's selections:

Venturi Fires 69; 1st Round Leader

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Confident Ken Venturi, who has made enough money in the last three months to buy the Firestone Golf Course and plays it like he owns it already, held off a fast-closing Tony Lema and established a one-stroke lead after the first round Saturday of the 36-hole World Series of Golf.

Returning to the scene of his runaway triumph in the American Classic a month ago, Venturi shot a sparkling 69, one under par.

But Venturi, who started a golf comeback when he won the U.S. Open in June, wavered on the 18th hole for his only bogey.

Lema, the British Open champion, had three birdies on the last five holes and closed to within one stroke with a 70.

Palmer, who went 17 holes before he got his first birdie, soared to a 74.

Nichols, wilder than Sandy Koufax as a boy, had two double bogeys on the back nine and finished with 77.

The final 18 holes in this televised meeting of the four major golf champions for a $50,000 first prize will be played Sunday, beginning at 1 p.m., over the mean, demanding 7,165-yard Firestone course.

The loot drops to $15,000 for the second place man, and the other two must be content with $5,000 apiece.

A crowd of 6,000 watched the four champions Saturday during a round played in a brisk wind on a cool day.

"It was no day for scoring," Venturi said. "The wind made the long holes longer and the short holes shorter, so it didn't help either way."

The difficulties of the course, combined perhaps with the pressure caused by the size of the purse, created some wild — and very slow — golf.

Not once did all four men hit the same fairway with their drives.

And none escaped without a bogey, although it took 8 holes before Firestone tripped up Venturi. Ken's second shot on the 18th was on the front of the green about 115 feet from the hole.

He slugged the ball as hard as he could but it ended up five feet away and Venturi missed that putt.

The slow pace had Palmer fuming. "I can't play golf like this," he said, after nine holes.

Once during the back nine Palmer holed out his putt and then walked to the next tee without waiting for his companions — a move regarded as a silent protest against the slowness of play.

"I'll never play again in one of these things if they don't speed it up," Palmer said, after he finished. "It's not the tournament. It was just the slow play.

"I got off to a bad start and I got disgusted with the slow play. It was the slowest round I ever played in my life."

In all it took more than five hours, 15 minutes to finish the 18 holes.

Lema, the slender Champagne Kid from California, started his charge almost as soon as the television cameras switched on.

After a bogey 5 at the 13th, Lema was five strokes behind Venturi, but he snagged his birdie at the 14th with an enormous drive and a wedge to 11 feet of the pin.

A fine four-wood to the short 15th got Lema his par, and then he birdied 16 with a 25-foot putt, and 17 with a 20-footer.

"I figured if I made a putt or two I might get it going," Lema said.

Palmer got off to a terrible start, with a 39 on the front side, when he hit five shots in four sand traps and also pitched his ball into the lake in front of the third green.

On the short fifth, Palmer took two shots to get out of the trap and he had to run in a 12-foot putt for a bogey.

Nichols was even wilder than Palmer. The young Louisville star, who captured the $35,000 top prize in the Carling Open two weeks ago, skied his drives and skulled his irons.

He never made a birdie.

BY 30-6 SCORE

Jets Romp Over Denver Broncos

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets rode an alert defense to an artistic and financial doubleplay Saturday night, rolling to a 30-6 victory over Denver in their debut at Shea Stadium before the largest crowd in American Football League history — 44,497.

Dick Wood passed for two touchdowns, Bill Mathis scored one on a short run and Jim Turner kicked three field goals and three extra points. But it was a Jet defense, anchored by Wahoo McDaniel, that stirred the crowd.

McDaniel, acquired from Denver in a nine-player trade, was in on numerous tackles and recovered a fumble that led to one of Turner's two field goals in the second quarter.

The defense took over for the Jets almost immediately as the AFL opened its fifth season of play when Bill Baird intercepted a Jackey Lee pass on the second play from scrimmage and brought it back 24 yards to the 26.

Three plays later, Wood hit Gene Heeter with a 16-yard touchdown pass. Turner, from Utah State, added the conversion and although only 3:04 had elapsed, New York already had enough points to win.

The Jets contented themselves with Turner's field goals until late in the fourth quarter the defense made the opportunities again.

They harried Gene Mingo on a field goal attempt, his kick was short, and the offense immediately seized the opportunity and in five plays had a touchdown on Wood's 39-yard pass to Don Maynard.

Ralph Baker then intercepted a Lee pass deep in Denver territory, blunting the Broncos' last chance and giving the Jets another score. Mathis cracked five yards for the touchdown.

The attendance exceeded the previous record of 38,592 for the San Diego at Buffalo game in 1963 and was more than twice as large as the Jets' previous best, 20,377 vs. Denver at the Polo Grounds last year

Angels Extra Inning Rally Downs Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Lou Clinton slammed a two-run homer in the 10th inning, boosting Los Angeles to a 3-2 victory over his former Boston teammates Saturday.

The homer, Clinton's 12th, came off Bob Heffner following a one-out walk to pinch hitter Tom Satriano. The Red Sox traded Clinton to the Angels earlier this season.

The Red Sox came back for one run in their 10th on Don Lee's two-out, bases-loaded walk to Bob Tillman, but Lee got Russ Nixon on a grounder, ending the threat.

Boston's ace reliever, Rick Radatz, set an American League record when he made his 72nd appearance in the eighth inning. Stu Miller of Baltimore held the old mark of 71, compiled last year. Jim Konstanty of the 1950 Philadelphia Phillies holds the major league mark of 74.

Los Angeles pitcher Fred Newman tied the game 1-1 in the sixth inning with the first home run of his major league career. He came to the plate as a .158 hitter and planted Pete Charton's first pitch into the left field screen.

DODGER MANAGER

Walter Alston May Be Moving To Cincinnati

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Alston, who only a year ago was hailed as a managerial genius in the Dodgers' astonishing four-game World Series sweep over the New York Yankees, is reported through in Los Angeles and headed for Cincinnati.

This information comes from two separate and unrelated sources, who further insist that the Dodgers would like to hire Casey Stengel as manager for the 1965 season only.

Incredible as these managerial manipulations may appear, a high Dodger official acknowledged there had been some preliminary discussions along those lines but added:

"How does one go about telling a man you want him for just one year?"

Stengel and Alston are working on one-year contracts. Stengel, in answer to an earlier Associated Press report that he would not return as manager of the New York Mets in 1965, declared he had not as yet given any thought to his plans for next year.

The Dodgers greatly agitated by the team's poor showing on the field, are fearful it would reflect on their advance sale of tickets for next year and believe Stengel is just the man to give a hypo to the gate.

On the strength of last year's World Series sweep, the Dodgers' advance for 1964 skyrocketed to a fantastic 1,200,000 preseason sale, bringing in close to $4 million before the gates had been opened.

The 74-year-old Stengel is completing his third straight cellar finish after having led the Yankees to 10 pennants in 12 years.

Alston, too, owns a splendid managerial record. In 10 years as Dodger manager prior to 1964, he led the club to four pennants, losing another in a playoff. This year's edition is struggling in seventh place.

Alston reportedly has been contacted by a Cincinnati official who advised him he was being considered for the manager's job in the event that Fred Hutchinson's ill health prevents him from returning next year. Alston is a native of Daartown, close to Cincinnati.

The move was denied by both Alston and Dodger General Manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi.

"No one from the Cincinnati club, nor from the Los Angeles club, for that matter, has talked to me about next year," Alston said flatly.

"The Cincinnati club would have had to ask us for permission before they could talk to Walt," said Bavasi. "To my knowledge they haven't."

Asked about the report that Alston will not be with the Dodgers next year, Bavasi said:

"We haven't discussed next year and we won't until after the end of this season."

Dodger President Walter O'Malley made it clear that the decision to retain or fire Alston was Bavasi's.

"Buzzie has complete authority," said O'Malley. "I have never hired a manager. Nor have I ever fired one. Oh, yes, just one. Charlie Dressen. I did not re-engage Charlie simply because he insisted on a two-year contract. That was not in line with our club's policy."

O'Malley said, however, he and Bavasi would sit down and discuss the Dodgers' managerial plans for 1965 "when we get around to it."

Grambling Hosts Alcorn A&M In Season Opener

GRAMBLING (Special) — Grambling opens its 1964 season here Saturday night on the lush emerald turp of Tiger Field against Alcorn A&M with everybody optimistic except the pig they skinned for the football.

Glum Eddie Robinson's resurected Tigers are conspicuous in size, ability, speed and desire.

Robinson will be coveted by almost every coach in the country this fall. He can blend youth and age in good balance, and he also has the biggest college line in the US. Led by omnipresent Frank "Moose" Cornis, a 280 pound giant.

Should the coach desire, he can frustrate Alcorn Saturday with a starting line averaging 240 pounds per man from end to end.

Robinson says "things have improved to the extent that his offense can make more touchdowns than the defense will give away. Realistically, he shuns predicting a championship, but he obviously expects to wage a fairly even fight for SWAC honors with Prairie View, Southern and Texas Southern.

Alcorn hopes to squeeze maximum mileage out of a maturing crew that includes 17 veterans.

Coaches claim that they have no way of assessing how well the Braves will do until after the kick-off. They agree that the game will be no disgrace.

Enthusiasm has brought about a refreshing change at the Mississippi school, and the visitors hope to compensate for a relative lack of bulk with hustle and speed.

The kick off is scheduled for 7:30 PM.

Galen Hall, former Penn State back, is coaching West Virginia's offensive backs this fall.

Chelsea Edges Fulham To Takes Soccer Victory

LONDON (AP) — Chelsea edged Fulham 1-0 Saturday despite having to play most of the game with 10 men and held its lead in the English Soccer League.

Bobby Tambling, Chelsea's inside-right, was carried off with a leg injury after 14 minutes. He came back briefly in the first half but missed the entire second half. No substitutes are allowed for injured players in British soccer.

Before Tambling was hurt, center-forward Barry Bridges scored a goal for Chelsea — and it proved sufficient to win the match. Chelsea now has 11 points from seven games. Blackpool defeated Aston Villa 3-1 and is second with 10 points.

A crowd of 41,000 packed London's Stamford Bridge Stadium to see Chelsea's narrow triumph. An even bigger crowd — 47,765 — saw Everton held to a 1-1 draw at home by Sheffield United.

Rip Engle is in his 15th season as Penn State football coach. His teams have combined a 93-39-4 record.

Four Gridders Die Of Injuries Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of teen-agers in Sweetwater, Tenn., Greenville, Miss., and Wenatchee, Wash., have brought the count of football fatalities to four in the last four days and at least eight since the 1964 training season began.

James Kuntz Weber III, 17, collapsed during a warmup drill preceding the Tennessee Military Institute's Friday practice session and died 30 minutes later at Sweetwater Hospital.

The youth, described by one of his coaches as a "picture of health," had been on the field about 15 minutes when he collapsed. He had not engaged in any contact work.

Jimmy Ethridge, 19, was dead on arrival at a Greenville hospital after being hurt with 51 seconds left in the first half of Friday night's game between Greenville and Clarksdale high schools. The game was cut short when news of his death reached the field.

Ronald Weeks, 16, succumbed Thursday night from a head injury sustained during practice at Wenatchee High School two days earlier. The youngster, who was wearing required safety equipment, including headgear, when he was injured, never regained consciousness.

Tuesday night, Herbert Clausen, 17, died in a Lancaster, Pa., hospital, a week after being injured during high school practice. He was in a coma from the time of the injury, described as a blood clot in an artery of the brain.

Fourteen fatalities were attributed to the sport last year, compared to 19 in 1962 and the same number in 1961.

KILLER HITS 46TH

Yankees Rally To Edge Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — Harmon Killebrew's muff of a line drive with two out in the ninth inning put Tony Kubek in position to score the winning run on Bobby Richardson's single for a 4-3 New York Yankee victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

The Yankees' seventh triumph in the last nine games kept the defending champions two games back of the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles who edged Kansas City 1-0 in a night game.

The Yankees appeared to have the game safely stowed away as rookie Mel Stottlemyre, carrying a 3-2 lead into the ninth, easily disposed of the first two batters.

Zoilo Versalles kept the Twins hopes alive with a single to left and scored the tying run a few moments later when pinch hitter Frank Kostro's looping fly to short right fell in front of Hector Lopez and bounced past the right fielder for a run-scoring double.

Johnny Klippstein, third Minnesota pitcher, retired the first two Yankee batters in the last of the ninth.

Then Kubek hit a liner to left. Killebrew charged in, muffed the ball and it went for a two-base error. Richardson lined the second pitch on one hop to the right field fence, scoring Kubek.

It was the sixth victory in eight decisions for young Stottlemyre since his elevation from Richmond last month. The 22-year-old right-hander permitted only five hits, three until the ninth.

The first hit yielded by Stottlemyre was a home run by Killebrew, his 46th of the year. It followed a two-out walk to Jimmie Hall in the first inning for a 2-0 Minnesota lead.

The Yankees got a run back in the half of the first on successive doubles by Kubek and Richardson and tied the score at 2-2 in the fifth.

Phil Linz, on third via a single, sacrifice and infield out, attempted to steal home and was safe when catcher Jerry Zimmerman dropped the pitch from Camilo Pascual.

The Yankees moved in front 3-2 on Elston Howard's home run in the sixth, his 14th of the season.

CORRIGAN TWILL

by Hickey-Freeman

Never has a suit fabric been such an "instantaneous success" as Corrigan Twill! These suits have a soft, colorful iridescence that radiates elegance in every subtle shading. A fabric that sprang into nation-wide prominence when Hickey-Freeman masterfully hand-tailored it INSIDE OUT! You'll be amazed at the way the colors glow!

American Women Take Curtis Cup

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP) — Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., defeated Ruth Porter, 3 and 2, Saturday and clinched the Curtis Cup for the girl golfers from the United States in a frantic two-day struggle against Britain.

The United States finally took the trophy — its ninth success in 13 tries — by 10½ points against 7½ but the visitors weren't certain the trophy was theirs until the second last match.

A crowd of 6,000 stomped over the 6,149-yard Royal Porthcawl links in perfect weather to see the finish of the biennial struggle.

The British women, given little chance even by their own followers, surprised by holding the young Americans level in Friday's nine matches, 4½-4½ and sent the huge gallery buzzing in Saturday'ys Scotch foursome by taking one match, halving another and losing the third.

That gave each team six points and set the stage for the singles duels of the afternoon round.

The score was 7½ for each in mid - afternoon with three matches still on the course. Then Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., defeated Angela Bonallack, wife of Walker Cupper Michael Bonallack, 3 and 2.

A few minutes later the 22-year-old Miss Sorenson wrapped up her match against Miss Porter and the United States had won the cup again.

Peggy Conley, the 17-year-old from Spokane, Wash., and the youngest ever to compete in the Curtis Cup, was the last out on the court and she played like a seasoned competitor. She was 1 down after 15 holes.

She squared her match against Bridget Jackson at the next hole, where the British girl found the fairway bunkers.

At the 17th hole Miss Jackson got into terrible trouble in the thick rough. Little Peggy, charging along well under pressure, sank an eight-footer and won the 17th to go 1 up.

The home hole was halved and Peggy had won her second match in two days — both of them on the final green. And this left experts thinking that here was one of the greatest women golfers in the making.

The match of the day was that between Mrs. Marley Spearman, the English champion, and long-hitting JoAnne Gunderson of Seattle, Wash. They matched each other shot for shot right to the last green.

Miss Gunderson came down to the home hole 1 up in a battle that was brilliantly played in par. Mrs. Spearman ripped a great approach shot only nine feet from the hole.

JoAnne, who was 50 yards ahead of her off the tee and in a little hollow, lofted an equally great shot just a few inches inside.

The English girl sank her putt for a birdie 3 and did a dance on the green.

Miss Gunderson wiped her brow as though sweating, then she lined up her shot carefully and at the last second stabbed it. The ball rimmed the cup and stayed out.

"What a way to finish one of the best matches I've ever been involved in," she moaned.

This was the record for the American girls over the two days:

Miss White won three, halved one.

Miss McIntyre lost two, won one and halved one.

Miss Gunderson won three, halved one.

Miss Conley won two.

Miss Roth won two and lost one.

Miss Sorenson won two, lost one and halved one.

Low on the totem pole was the unfortunate Miss Preuss, who lost all three of her matches.

The next Curtis Cup will be played two years from now in the United States. The Americans have now won it nine times, lost twice and halved two.

Chuck Thompson Takes Victory In Powerboat Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chuck Thompson of Detroit drove Tahoe Miss to a first heat victory Saturday in the President's Cup Powerboat Regatta on the windswept Potomac River.

Bouncing from wave to wave in the 25 mile per hour breeze, the boat from Stateline, Nev., led from start to finish and had a one-half mile advantage at the end. Tahoe's heat average was 98.253 m.p.h.

Trailing Tahoe were three Detroit boats. Second place was taken by Notre Dame, driven by Rex Manchester of Seattle, third by Miss U.S. V, piloted by Don Wilson of Palm Beach, Fla., and fourth Savair's Mist, driven by Ed O'Holloran of Detroit.

This was the first of three elimination heats Saturday, with two elimination heats preceding the final 15-mile heat on today.

Banks Hits Cubs To 3-2 Victory Over Redbirds

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Banks' 20th homer, a two-run shot in the sixth inning, triggered the Chicago Cubs' to a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

Billy Williams singled to open the sixth off loser Roger Craig. After Ron Santo flied out, Banks hit a first pitch homer over the left field catwalk.

This spurt plus a run without a hit in the second on two walks and two grounders enabled Bob Buhl to snap a personal six-game losing streak by posting his 13th victory with a five-hitter.

Small Oil Producers Are Facing Major Problems

By JOHN A. CLELAND
World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — One of the thorniest problems facing the next Administration is what steps to take to bring relief to the small domestic oil producer who claims oil imports are driving him out of business.

The problem is an extremely complicated one involving not only basic economic but U.S. commitments abroad which have far-reaching foreign policy implications. There's no easy solution as the Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson Administrations have learned and it is unlikely the situation will resolve itself in this or even the next decade.

According to the small independent oil producer, large integrated oil companies which produce oil both here and abroad, refine and sell the finish products, are monopolizing the U.S. petroleum market.

The big major companies, according to the independents, are taking advantage of their cheap foreign crude oil supplies and federal off-shore leases to control the gasoline market.

IMPORTS

They argue that unless imports are cut the small independent producing segment of the domestic oil industry will soon disappear at the expense of the national security which needs a strong domestic oil industry in time of emergency.

The brunt of the independents' attack on imports has been borne by the Interior Department which, under the Johnson Administration, has the sole responsibility for oil and gas policy matters.

Under Presidential proclamation the Mandatory Oil Import program keeps oil imports to 12.5 per cent of domestic production. The independents contend, however, this is more like 25 per cent.

Despite attempts by associations representing independent producers to cut imports, the Interior Department has preserved a status quo in the program with some minor exceptions. Indications are, the program will not change until at least after the election, and maybe not even then.

According to Interior Secretary Steward Udall and other government officials, imports are not the only cause for the domestic producers' plight. Other factors enter into the complicated picture over which the government has no control.

Probably the number one underlying factor contributing to the problem is a worldwide oversupply of crude oil. Admittedly imports play a part in this situation but so do other things such as improved technology, refinery advances, and pipeline expansion.

Oil fields which were once worked and since been abandoned are now back in production through the use of secondary recovery methods. The only drawback here is that one operator through improved techniques works in an area where a dozen or more operators had rigs before.

Employment is down in the producing industry but this too is partially due to automation. With production costs going up, petroleum like every large industry seeks to cut labor costs.

TECHNIQUES

Improved refinery techniques have made lesser grade crude oils more attractive to refiners and gasoline marketers and pipeline expansion has brought heretofore inaccessible fields into the fiercely competitive petroleum market.

Most of the statistics cited by the independent producer groups to show their economic plight are comparison figures between the present and the mid-50's when the domestic industry enjoyed boom market conditions.

This was the period when the Suez Canal was closed shutting off the rich mid-East oil supply to the United States and Western Europe. Also, this was still the period when oil and gas was making great market advances at the expense of other fuels, namely coal.

During the hey day of Suez and mass conversions to oil and gas, the domestic petroleum industry enjoyed an unusually high growth rate of 5½ per cent. Today it is down to a more normal 2½ per cent with the obvious result that many in the industry have fallen by the wayside.

Taxes being what they are, many small independents have found it more profitable to sell out, usually to a major, rather than stay in business. Despite the trend towards centralization in the petroleum industry, some 25 major companies produce about half the oil in the U.S. compared to the three leading steel companies which produce 50 per cent of the nation's steel.

The prohibitive cost of offshore exploration and production have all but shut out the small independent from participating in competitive bidding for federal leases. The average operational cost of a single floating off-shore rig is four times the comparable land drilling cost and it is not uncommon for a company to invest $15 million or more and come up with dry holes.

According to the head of a large integrated petroleum company, a reduction in imports would not help the plight of the domestic producer nor improve the price of crude oil.

The key to the problem, according to Stanley Larned, president of Phillips Petroleum, is to improve the price for the end product. He cited "wasteful refinery runs" and "uneconomic marketing practices" as having far greater impact on crude prices than imports.

CAMPAIGN THREATS — Threats against the life of person of candidates is something new in national campaigns. Already such threats have been made against President Johnson and Senator Goldwater, the Presidential candidates, and Senator Humphrey and Representative Miller, the Vice Presidential candidates. Police and security officers have to treat all the threats seriously and it gives them some anxious moments when the high ranking visitors come to their cities on campaign tours.

ADA — Americans for Democratic Action, which is actively supporting the Democratic national ticket, as it always does, actually has only 50,000 members. But ADA believes it has political influence of vast proportions. Four years ago ADA strongly opposed President Johnson, who was then a Senator from Texas, but now as strongly supports him. ADA was immensely pleased by the selection of Senator Humphrey as the Vice Presidential candidate. Humprhey has been active in it since its formation. Portions of the country where ADA is the strongest are the Northeastern States, in Chicago and in parts of California. Both Senator Goldwater and Representative Miller have long been vigorous in their criticism of ADA.

UNITED GAS PROJECT

Microwave System Is Near Completion

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Direct distance dialing is one of many distinct advantages of United Gas Pipe Line Company's new microwave system now nearing completion in the eastern portion of the company's Gulf South operations, according to C. W. Evans, superintendent of communications.

The newest expansion and modernization of United's communications system include 23 repeater stations to amplify and re-transmit signals along more than 450 path - miles of new microwave. The company's overall microwave system now covers 650 path - miles, Evans said.

The new microwave network extends from Shreveport eastward through Monroe to Sterlington and from there southward along the company's South - to - North Louisiana 30-inch pipe line through Olla, Marksville and Arnaudville to Lafayette, then to Bayou Sale, Napoleonville and New Orleans.

At United's Montpelier compressor station in St. Helena Parish, the new "backbone" system connects with other previously - installed microwave facilities. It links the new system with more than 190 path-miles reaching north from Montpelier to Jackson, Miss., and north from Jackson to one of the company's major gas delivery points as Kosciusko, Miss.

With multiple channels being utilized, the new 453 path-mile microwave system will provide coverage of more than 8,000 channel - miles, Evans said. Its capabilities also can be expanded readily, he added.

The new microwave system will provide channels for five distinct functions: telephone channels for interoffice direct dial telephone service; vehicular radio extension for two-way contact with mobile units; telemetering channels to transmit pipe line pressures, gas flow data, dew points, temperatures and other measurable values from selected points to control centers; supervisory channels for remote control of compressor stations and other facilities, and data transmission channels for transmitting date recorded on magnetic tape from selected points to centrally - located computers for processing.

Future far - reaching uses of the new microwave system could include closed circuit television; high - speed fascimile transmission of letters, maps and other documentary material, and direct communications between high - speed computers, Evans said.

Within a few weeks, the new microwave system will make it possible for United Gas employees in New Orleans, for example, to pick up the telepone, dial a six-digit number and make instantaneous connection with any extension he wants in the company's general offices at Shreveport. Simultaneoulsy, other calls can be in progress between the general office and such places as Monroe, Jackson, Lafayette and key intermediate points. Interconnection can be made between the microwave and any of United's extensive wire line circuits, Evans said.

The average distance between the repeater stations is 21 miles, with the longest hop 28 miles. Tower heights vary from 80 feet at Sterlington to 345 feet at Bentley, depending on demands of the topography. All towers are designed to withstand hurricance - force winds.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

With Jimmy Hatten

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

Here's hoping that readers will enjoy this new column, which is scheduled to appear each week in the Sunday Morning World. Correspondence is invited.

Eugene Smith of the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Wednesday sighted a harbinger of fall over the lush Tensas Parish countryside. A flock of wild geese were heading for their winter retreat. Smith was in the Newellton area of Tensas to attend a tulip meeting with Jack Bagwell of West Monroe.

On the subject of tulips and Jack Bagwell, it's interesting to note what enthusiasm will do for a project. Bagwell is very taken with the idea of transforming northeast Louisiana into a tulip haven to attract tourists.

One can tell just by being with him for a short while that tulips are foremost on his mind. Same thing for E. R. McDonald Sr. of Newellton, who was instrumental in attracting 60,000 tourists to the Newellton area this spring for a tulip festival.

Both were among speakers at the tulip meeting and both are the prime reasons for the growth of interests in tulips and tourists in north Louisiana.

Among those attending the tulip meeting was the mayor of Ruston, John Perrit, who has some ideas on tourism himself. A member of the board of directors of the Lovely Louisiana Tourist Association, Perrit has attempted to stir interest in a "Forests of All Nations," project at his hometown.

The idea is to plant different kinds of trees from several points on the globe in an attractive setting.

Whatever the project, the main interest of these people is to bring in people, who, naturally will bring in money — and money is what builds an economy and makes it possible for us to enjoy, at least, the material things of life.

But, a beautiful area is more than just a tourist attraction. It is a stimulus to the mind. When out driving take a good look around you. Possibly you've never thought of this before, but envision flowers along a roadside where there are none; a sparkling brook gurgling down through a parade of attractively arranged trees and shrubs.

Maybe this doesn't strike your fancy, but if it does, you can appreciate what McDonald and Bagwell and people like them are trying to do.

There are many things to stir one's interest about north Louisiana. It doesn't have a French Quarter, but it has a town being rebuilt in the style of the riverboat days of the 1800's — St. Joseph; it doesn't have a big Civil War battlefield, such as the one at Vicksburg, but it has the route of Grant's march on Vicksburg — the scenic Tensas countryside and that in the Lake Providence area; it doesn't have pyramids like Egypt, but it has Indian mounds built by a strange and alluring people who lived centuries before the time of Christ, just outside Epps.

It does have the mighty Mississippi at its doorstep and the Ouachita, cited as the second most beautiful river in America.

Looking for ideas to attract tourists? Need one look further?

Double Ring Vows Saturday Unite Martha Jane Loker, John G. Douciere

MRS. JOHN GORDON DOUCIERE

In a double ring ceremony Saturday, September 12 in the First Baptist Church, West Monroe, Miss Martha Jane Loker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice James Loker, 2212 Island Drive, Monroe, became the bride of John Gordon Douciere, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ulysse Douciere of Rayville.

Candelabras, interlaced with greenery forming a mass arrangement, were arranged in semi-circle design on the altar where baskets of white and pink gladioli completed the background setting for the exchange of vows. Pews of the center aisle were marked with magnolia foliage and satin bows.

Dr. Clifton R. Tennison performed the ceremony at 4 p.m. following a prenuptial concert by Ronnie Brothers, organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of white silk peau de soie, designed with scoop neckline and short cap sleeves, complemented by opera length white kid gloves. The skirt was formed by unpressed pleats at side and back, open in front to reveal a slim sheath of white silk brocade. Her tiered veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a crown of peau de soie, studded with seed pearls and crystals. The bride carried a bouquet comprised of two dozen pink roses.

Miss Nancy Jean Loker attended her sister as maid of honor. Her formal gown of ice blue silk satin was designed with a controlled bell skirt, scoop neckline and cap sleeves. A flat bow of matching peau de soie formed her headpiece and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Janet Lynn Stanley of Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride. She wore a formal gown of ice blue silk satin styled with a flat bow of self-fabric at the waistline. Her headpiece was also a flat bow of matching peau de soie and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Serving as best man for his brother was James U. Douciere Jr. and ushers were Jack Duggins, Charles Snapp and Fred Edward Douciere Jr.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Loker wore a long-sleeved sheath gown of French imported beige cluny lace, with accessories to match and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a pale blue lace sheath with white accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Lorena Covington, Baton Rouge, wore a fall silk model.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church parlor. Central decor for the bride's table, covered with a white satin cloth, was an arrangement of dusty rose carnations, with the tiered wedding cake and silver punch bowl at opposite ends of the table.

Mrs. Jim Williams was in charge of the reception. Mrs. David O. Stanley, Baton Rouge, aunt of the bride, served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl was Miss Katherine Douciere, sister of the groom. Mrs. F. J. Ivey, aunt of the bride, from Dallas, Texas, was seated at the guest book table. Tea girls were Mrs. H. Ross Dyer, Miss Rita Camp, Miss Betty Heard and Miss Mary Coon. Rice bag girls were Kathy Douciere and Cindy Williams.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans and the Mississippi Gulf coast the bride changed into a cranberry wool sheath with brown accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage. The couple will be at home at 2500 Oliver Road, Monroe, upon their return. A graduate of Neville high school Mrs. Douciere is a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College, where she is vice-president of Phi Mu. Mr. Douciere is a graduate of Mangham high school and is also attending Northeast where he is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

MRS. DUDLEY BAKER PILLOW JR.

St. Joseph Church Scene Of Pillow-Parks Vows

Miss Jane Parks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Parks of St. Joseph, became the bride of Dudley Baker Pillow Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Baker Pillow of Greenwood, Mississippi, on Saturday, September 5.

Rev. Wallace Blackwood performed the double ring ceremony at 5:30 p.m. in the First Methodist Church of St. Joseph. Baskets of white gladioli, stock and chrysanthemums formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Altar rails were entwined with smilax and flanked by standards of white candles. Candles, encircled with smilax and pompons were also used in the windows.

A prenuptial concert was presented by Mrs. Paul Page, organist and Mrs. George Smith of Greenwood, soloist, as candles were lighted by Bobby Todd, Tallulah, cousin of the bride and Mike McDonald, Baton Rouge, cousin of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of pure silk organza over peau de soie. Venice lace motifs etched with seed pearls were appliqued around the scoop neckline and brief sleeves with the motif repeated around the hem of the skirt. A wide inset cummerbund of peau de soie encircled the wedding ring waistline, ending in a back bow with low streamers over the chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a pillbox of pleated silk organza, appliqued with motifs of embroidered silk organza and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses, centered with a white orchid.

Miss Lynn Parks, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Diane Todd, Tallulah, cousin of the bride; Miss Lois Pillow, Greenwood, sister of the groom; Miss Betty Reichley of Lake Charles; Miss Nancy Crossland of Monroe and Miss Sherry Norwood of St. Joseph. They wore identical gowns of autumn gold peau de soie, styled with bell skirts, three-quarter sleeves and Sabrina necklines. Twin bows at the back of the neckline held full length Watteau trains which fell to the hem of the skirt. Their headdresses were veiled pillboxes of matching fabric and they carried cascade bouquets of gold daisy pompons combined with glamellias.

Mr. Pillow attended his son as best man. Groomsmen were Marlow Neil Morgan of Monroe; Arthur Preston Hood of Amite; Charles Weems Jr., Lake Charles; Watson Pillow, brother of the groom, Greenwood, Miss., and Tom Morris of Clarksdale, Miss. Ring bearer was Harold Coleman Jr. of Greenwood.

For the occasion the bride's mother, Mrs. Parks, wore a sheath of aqua crepe with lace bodice, encircled at the waist by a velveteen band of deep turquoise. Matching accessories and a white orchid corsage completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of azalea pink peau de soie styled with empire waist and A-line skirt, encrusted at the neckline with iridescent sequins and crystals. Her hat was of silk organza roses, veiled in matching rangements of gold and bronze, blending with the dresses of the azaleas pink and she wore a cymbidium orchid.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Fred Miller home which was decorated throughout with floral arrangements. The bride's cake was decorated in champagne, accented with gold roses and topped with a gold satin bell. Forming the central decor for the table was an arrangement of white stock, moon mums, Southern smilax and white carnations in a silver shell bowl.

Pouring punch were Misses Betsy Ratcliff, Paula Miller, Janet Treppendahl and Carolyn Parks and serving cake were Miss Kathy Wade, Ann Coit, Carolyn Curry, and Judy Rhea. Tea girls were Misses Mary Frances Ratcliff, Gail Rives, Nancy McDonald, Deborah Coleman, Kay Clarke, Jan Berry and Beth Todd, and presenting rice bags were Jennifer Lancaster, Beth Berry and Ann Ratcliff.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida the bride was wearing a powder blue ensemble of silk and wool, with matching cloche hat and wet sand lizard accessories. On their return the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge where both are seniors at Louisiana State University, scheduled to graduate in May 1965. Mrs. Pillow, whose sorority is Chi Omega, was chosen as LSU 1963-64 homecoming queen. Mr. Pillow is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sears catalogs, a record of the changing American scene, often are used by producers of Broadway shows and Hollywood movies.

Walt Disney's studio, for example, has one of the most complete sets of catalogs. His employes consult them for correct costume of a certain year, for types of furniture used in various periods, for reference in assembling authentic period furnishings for Disneyland.

Hair Bows Bowing Out; False Bangs Bowing In

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press International

PARIS (UPI) — The most sensational Paris fashion to sweep the world last spring was the Chanel coiffure with a bow in back.

But its creator decreed today it's out - of - style.

The Chanel hair-do — hair caught back with a floppy bow at the nape of the neck a la Tom Jones or George Washington — has turned the most female heads the world over since the Italian "beehive" style of eight years ago.

Nonetheless, the coiffure has been banished from its birthplace, the Paris salon of hair stylist Rene Goujean. The reason: it's too popular.

"It's finished! It's passe," announced Goujean, who coiffed the models in bows for the spring-summer fashion show at the house of designer Chanel. "Everybody's wearing it, and when everybody wears a style it doesn't last long."

The coiffure was born accidentally in the elegant, Directore-style salon of Goujean.

Goujean's young blonde daughter, Arlette, who works as a hairdresser in the salon, fixed her hair with a back bow on an impulse one day. An executive from the House of Chanel happened to drop in and asked for her own hair to be pulled back like Arlette's.

Mlle. Chanel spied the style on her employe and ordered it for her pretty mannequins.

Since Chanel is perhaps the most revered designer in Paris, everybody from rival designers to ordinary shopgirls watches her collection as if through a microscope. Each tiny change can affect style circles around the world.

The day after Chanel's show, Goujean's customers rushed into his shop to demand the hairdo. He quickly had bows made to be sold with a shampoo and set.

Rival hair stylists came out with their own versions. Paris hat shops cashed in on the fad with huge bows of silk and velvet.

Within two weeks the fashion was a street style. Department stores here sell bows as cheaply as one dollar in every color from wild plaids to white lame for evening.

In the Paris subway you see three out of five young girls wearing back hair bows, some try chiffon in pale colors. Most stick to the original Chanel style of black silk or wide grosgrain ribbon.

Through photographs of the Chanel show, the hair style conquered other lands. Women wear it in New York, Stockholm, Rome, London and other cities.

But since any shopgirl can imitate the style easily at home, the elite fashion setters are abandoning it. Some hair salons here are introducing variations.

At the Goujean salon, the creator sighs sadly if a customer orders "the Chanel hairdo."

The Chanel mannequins who have their hair done at Goujean's still wear the style for the fashion parade. But the rich Paris debutantes in Chanel suits, who are Goujean's devoted customers, have gone back to his earlier style of straight, slightly "teased" hair curving, 1920-style, over the cheek.

To take the ladies' minds off the back bows, Goujean created another style for women, false bangs. The idea is to cut your hair short for the summer life, and then for evening add the bangs attached to a wide head band.

Fall Looks Lean For Coat Styles

Fall coat shapes tend to the lean and narrow, with set-in and raglan sleeves. Leading all is the string bean coat with a shape moving close to the body without clinging.

Very much in evidence too are coats with front shaping and easy backs.

COMPATIBLE FLAVOR

Unusual when combined, but compatible in flavor, are strawberries and chocolate! Don't hesitate to serve plain chocolate cake with a strawberry sauce. To gild the lily, top with whipped cream.

Shoe Statistics Verify Growth Of Female Foot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any modern Prince Charming trying to trace his Cinderella with a glass slipper had better do some market research before stepping out.

If the slipper he has in hand happens to be an "A" in width, he's better off starting his search in Texas, Kansas, Nebraska or any midwestern state where most women rarely have feet wider than a "B."

If the slipper is very wide, meanwhile, he's best advised to start in Minnesota, where the shoes that really fit come in great length and breadth.

The vast regional difference in feet and shoe size preferences has been collected for many years by Dunn and McCarthy Inc., who claim their Enna Jetticks were the original pioneers in width-sizing.

The firm maintains that it makes more sizes per style than any other shoe company in the nation. Consequently, its records show in great detail how the feet of fashion vary from state to state.

Paul Flynn, product manager of the firm, has been keeping America's shoe sizes for 38 years. He said one shoe may come in as many as 112 sizes and widths from "AAAA" to "EEE."

During the last several years, the most diverse call for size ranges comes from California.

Flynn said that's probably because persons from all over the nation have moved to California, bringing with them their own special ethnic characteristics.

On the other hand, the east is notorious for wide widths, going to "C," "D," and "E."

Feet have been changing slowly but surely over the past few generations. Flynn said women's feet have grown a full size in the past 20 years. They are getting narrower as they get longer. Size 7 is today's average size.

Probably no public figure has helped the fashion acceptance of the woman with long feet more than Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

When it was reported that she wore size 10, women everywhere who were afraid to admit they wore even a size 8 breathed a sigh of relief and no longer felt they had to whisper their size to the salesman.

Flynn said the status symbol today is having a narrow width, not in having either a small or large size.

Nelda Holbrook, Robert Pitts Exchange Vows

Hodge Baptist church was the scene of the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Nelda Sue Holbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Holbrook of Hodge, and Robert John Pitts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe D. Pitts of Shreveport, on Friday, September 4.

Rev. J. D. Wagnon performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m. before an altar banked with white gladioli and lighted tapers in branched candelabra. Nuptial music was furnished by Jimmy Walpole.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a short gown of white peau de soie. The moulded bodice featured a scoop neckline, accented by a tiny strand of pearls, and three quarter sleeves. The dress opened down the front to reveal a sheath underneath with a large bow at the waistline. A pearl-encrusted pillbox held her fingertip veil of illusion and she carried a crescent bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Bob Hanks of Waxahatchie, Texas, who wore a brocade gown of copen blue with headpiece to match. She carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Pitts served his son as best man and ushers were Tommy Holbrook, brother of the bride and Frank Schillings of Ringgold.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Holbrook chose a mauve pink lace model with matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Pitts wore an early fall blue dress with matching accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church hall. The refreshment table, covered with a white cloth, held the tiered wedding cake and crystal punch bowl at opposite ends of the bride's bouquet flanked by candelabra.

Registering the guests was Miss Karen Craig of Pineville, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Maude Hammonds of Pineville, aunt of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Frank Schillings of Ringgold, aunt of the groom, presided at the punch service. Others assisting were Miss Delora Odom and Miss Kay Walsworth. Rice bags were distributed by Misses Tricia Huff and Ruthie Schillings. All girls assisting in the reception were dressed in shades of blue.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a three-piece suit of raspberry red with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home in Ruston where the bridegroom is attending Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

MRS. CLYDE H. ARNOLD

Northeast Students Wed In Candlelight Setting

In a candlelight setting at the Midway Baptist Church in Jena on Saturday, September 5, at 8 p.m. Miss Metha Ann Smith, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Smith of Jena, became the bride of Clyde Herman Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gillis Arnold of Newellton.

Vows were exchanged before an altar of English ivy flanked by candelabra holding graduated white tapers and baskets of white gladioli and stock.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the bride's father following nuptial music by Miss Betty Ann Bellar, pianist and Mrs. Ivy Smith, soloist.

Escorted to the altar by J. R. Terrall, the bride wore a gown of silk peau de soie with bouffant skirt ending in a chapel train and detailed with front cross folds. The empire bodice of imported reembroidered lace featured a Sabina neckline and long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. Her tiered veil of imported silk illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations centered with a white orchid.

Miss Cynthia Smith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Elayne Spinks of Baton Rouge; Miss Carolyn Wallace of Newellton, Miss Janice Burnum of Jena and Miss Linda Arnold of Newellton, sister of the groom.

They wore identical gowns of gold peau de soie with basque bodice and bell shaped skirts. Matching satin shoes and large bow headpieces completed their ensembles. Each carried a single long stemmed American beauty rose.

Candlelighters were Miss Sheila Jane Smith, sister of the bride and Gary Wilbanks of Jena. Miss Gwen Cormier of Welsh was flower girl and Mark Smith, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Smith wore a brown and green model of whipped cream fabric with beige accessories. Mrs. Arnold, mother of the groom, wore a green silk dress with reptile shoes and bag and matching green accessories.

Norman Arnold served his brother as best man. Ushers were Elmer Reeder and Kirby Black and groomsmen were Kenneth Emfinger, Leonard Hedrick, Clarendon Peck and Jerry Henry.

A reception was held in Fellowship hall of the church where Mrs. H. G. Brown invited guests to sign the bride's book. The bride's table was covered with ruffled tulle over taffeta and held the traditional wedding cake and punch bowl. Mrs. J. R. Terrell served cake and Mrs. O. W. Machen presided at the punch bowl. Tea girls were Miss Dianne Trussel and Miss Jean Crooks. White rice bags tied with gold ribbons were presented guests by Misses Lucy Arnold and Dana Smith.

For their wedding trip to Fort Worth, Texas the bride changed into a light green wool suit with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Mrs. Arnold is a graduate of Newton, Mississippi high school and is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College where she is a senior elementary education student. Mr. Arnold, a graduate of Newellton high school, is a senior agriculture student at Northeast.

The couple will be at home in Monroe where they will complete their studies.

MR. AND MRS. HILTON DALE GREEN

Miss McCowan Is Bride Of Hilton Green

Vows uniting Miss Betty Jo McCowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. McCowan, Mer Rouge, and Hilton Dale Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Green of Monroe, were solemnized August 29 in Goodwill Church of God. Rev. M. W. Kennedy performed the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

A sunburst arrangement of white gladioli flanked by four seven - branched candelabra holding white tapers formed a background for the ceremony. An open Bible, flanked by two tapers and encircled with greenery centered the altar.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Miss Gerund Porter, pianist and Miss Andrea Porter, soloist.

Wearing a floor length gown of white satin the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bodice of the traditional gown was overlaid with lace and styled with long tapered sleeves and scalloped neckline. Her veil was held in place by a crown of pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible.

Miss Shirley McCowan, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and wore a pink embossed peau de soie dress with veiled white hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Vernon Bruce Green attended his brother as best man and ushers were James Kendrix and James Cook.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a blue printed silk gown with black accessories and white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother was wearing a French blue crepe model with black accessories and white carnation corsage.

A reception followed in the church parlor where the bride's table was centered with a large arrangement of princess feather, based with the bride's bouquet. The tiered wedding cake and punch bowl were at opposite ends of the table.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride changed into a two piece wine ensemble with white accessories and corsage. They are now at home at 116 Hudson Lane in Monroe.

Mrs. Green was graduated from Forest high school and is now a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College. A graduate of Ouachita Parish high school Mr. Green attended Northeast and Louisiana State University.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Hope 'Kissin' Miss Doesn't Mis-Step

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I can't talk to anyone about this problem and you'll soon understand why. My steady is 16. I am 17. She is a great little gal, lots of laughs and like that, but she carries things too far. When she gets it in her head that she wants me to kiss her she doesn't care where she is. Friday night she got the idea on the turnpike and we almost had an accident.

In the movies last night she wanted me to kiss her so I finally did — to keep her quiet. Well, my aunt and uncle were sitting behind us and I didn't know it — until this morning when I heard plenty from my father.

Don't tell me to break up with this girl. I have already thought of it and I've decided I don't want to. Any other suggestions?

— NO NAME PLEASE

Dear Irresistible: Since you don't want to break up with the girl you'll just have to take your chances and hope this kissin' miss doesn't land you both in the hospital — or worse.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 48 and have been going with an attractive widow for two and a half years. Last Christmas I gave her a lovely diamond engagement ring. She said we'd be married in a few months.

She has worn the ring only a half dozen times to my knowledge. When I asked her why she didn't wear the ring all the time, as most engaged women do, she said, "The diamond is so large I feel self-conscious about it." I suggested that we go to the jeweler's together and exchange the ring for one she likes better. She said no to that.

I've tried to get her to set a wedding date, but she makes up one excuse after another. I have a hunch her two teen-age sons don't want their mother to remarry.

I've been patient for a long time, Ann, and I'm willing to do anything to make her happy. Can it be that I'm kidding myself? —DOC

Dear Doc: If the sons are putting the dead hand on the marriage, you should talk this out with the three of them, at once. If this is not the case, and the woman is using her sons as an excuse, you should know that, too.

Give your fiance 10 days to return the engagement ring — or tell you on what day you are going to put a plain gold band next to it.

Dear Ann Landers: I started to go with Peggy last year. She is a wonderful girl and has done a lot for me. I wanted to quit high school but she made me see what a terrible mistake that would be. So I stuck with it and graduated.

Yesterday Peggy called me at work — something she doesn't do very often. She was very hurt and asked me to return the framed picture she gave me for Valentine's Day. Peggy said she saw me riding around during lunch hour with a girl.

Honestly, Ann, that was not a girl, it was a guy I work with. He has one of those Beatle haircuts and was wearing a red plaid shirt. I can understand how she made the mistake.

I offered to bring the guy over and prove it to her but she said, "Don't bother."

If you can help me I would sure appreciate it. —SANDY

Dear Sandy: I can't understand why she doesn't believe you. Today the girls look like boys and the boys don't look like their fathers anymore. . . they look like their mothers.

I hope Peggy will reconsider. She sounds like a fine person and it would be a shame to lose her when you are innocent of the charge.

Confidential to WORRIED PLENTY: How on earth would I know? Go to a doctor, for heaven's sake.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of Monroe Morning World enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Necklaces Have Airiness Look

The newest bead necklaces have a look of softness and airiness, achieved through the generous use of small beads mixed with varying other sizes and shapes — or as multi-strands of soft chains and beads often strung on fine links.

What else rates: the big, bold fob, either a charm or a watch on the end of a long, swinging chain. The Fashion Coordination Institute reports the latter makes a perfect suit mate since fobs can be arranged in a myriad of ways as part of fall's strongly accessorized look.

Federated Garden Clubs To Meet Here Wednesday

Fifteenth annual business and program meeting of the Fifth District Louisiana Garden Club Federation will be held on the roof of the Hotel Frances in Monroe, Wednesday, September 16.

The business meeting will convene at 10 a.m. with Mrs. Jettie Barnum, fifth district director, presiding. Jonesboro-Hodge Garden club will be hostess, and Miss Valerie Barnum is general chairman.

Highlight of the morning session will be a talk "Conserve Our Natural Heritage," by the State President of Louisiana Garden Club Federation Inc., Mrs. Frank L. Jordan. Several state chairmen plan to attend the meeting at which plans will be completed for the Chrysanthemum Exposition October 24 - 25 at LSU, sponsored by Federated Garden clubs and arrangements discussed for the National convention to be held in New Orleans in 1966.

Election of officers for 1965-67 will be held preceding a luncheon at noon. The Fifth district comprises 43 federated garden clubs, with representatives of each expected to attend.

MRS. JACK E. MILLER

The afternoon program, a lecture demonstration on "Table Settings and Decor," will be presented by Mrs. Jack E. Miller of Shreveport, a prominent state flower arranger. The program, starting at 1:15 p.m. is open to the public.

Mrs. Miller is a nationally accredited flower show judge, a life member of LGCF and the National Council of State Garden Clubs Inc., and has held numerous local and state offices.

MISS VIRGINIA HODGES JETER

Shreveport Girl Engaged To Julian Hugh Willey Jr.

Engagement of Miss Virginia Hodges Jeter to Julian Hugh Willey Jr., of Baton Rouge is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Jeter of Shreveport. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Hugh Willey of Delhi.

Planned for Saturday, December 19 the wedding will take place at 5 p.m. in St. Mark's Episcopal church in Shreveport. Dr. James Lawrence Plumley will officiate.

Mrs. Harvey Berryman Cash has been chosen by her sister to serve as matron of honor and Mr. Willey will attend his son as best man.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Byrd high school and Louisiana State University. A member of Chi Omega social sorority and Demoiselle Club, she made her debut in 1960 and reigned as Holiday in Dixie Cotillion Queen in 1962.

Mr. Willey graduated from Delhi high school, received his B.S. degree from Louisiana State University and is now a senior in LSU Law school. His fraternity is Sigma Alpha Epsilon, for which he has served as president and treasurer.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home temporarily in Baton Rouge.

by Denise

This has been "back-to-school" week in the Twin Cities. No matter when the doors officially open, school feeling seems to catch on after Labor Day. Mornings are beginning to have a touch of fall haze; college students are leaving town; football teams and marching bands are in rehearsal.

A back-to-school party was held last Saturday morning in the home of SUSAN STONE. Decorations echoed the theme. In the den was Susan's lunch box filled with zinnias arranged with rulers, pencils, crayons, and other school accessories. On the porch, bottled soft drinks were served from a table centered with a large globe, a hand bell, and an apple for the teacher.

This party combined a birthday theme for three girls who reached the magic age of fifteen this week. Cakes in the shape of drivers' licenses were decorated for Susan, BONNIE BANCROFT, and MARILYNN MAXWELL. Each bore the legend "Happy Drivers' License, Age 15" and a caricature of the recipient. Chaperone NAN SALISBURY also received a cake, but her age was not revealed.

With these birthday cakes, the girls ate popcorn, cookies, dip, and sandwiches. Approximately fifty-five girls of the high school set attended the party between ten and twelve.

New KAPPA DELTAS at the University of Southwestern Louisiana are JUDY SEARCY of Monroe and KATHY PATE of West Monroe .... At Ole Miss, KATHY HOLLIS was pledged to Alpha Delta Pi .... TIL WRIGHT leaves tonight for her freshman year at Stephens college, Columbia, Missouri .... and MURRAY BURFFORD left last week for Hattiesburg, Miss., where she will be a graduate assistant at Mississippi Southern university for the coming year.

Speaking of back-to-school, NANCY SNELLINGS leaves this next week for England, where she is to study at Cambridge for the next year. Over Labor Day weekend, Nancy had as her guest TOM McCLELLAN. Tom's home is in Texas, and he has recently returned from a student year in Europe.

Letters received from our European students are very gratifying when they reveal that the writer is observing and taking advantage of his opportunities. This week DOTTIE AMMAN wrote to her brother FREDERIC AMMAN a description of her trip behind the Iron Curtain. Some of her comments and observations were enough to make the blood run cold.

Dottie is taking her junior year abroad with the Hollins college group. During their recess from classroom work, they are on tour, and have been in Germany, Poland, Russia, and Finland in recent weeks. Dottie contrasted lovely modern West Berlin with the armed camp found in East Berlin. Here the group were taken to a lecture presented by a group of men representing the East German youth organization, travel office, and foreign affairs ministry. The students could hardly believe that the lecturers believed the tales they told. They got an honest answer to their question "Why the Wall?": "To keep our trained workers here."

Warsaw, though an ugly town, was reported as quite impressive in the way it has been rebuilt. In Moscow, the Americans received none of their mail; in Leningrad, mail was received, but had obviously been opened and resealed with tape.

Back in town in time for school opening were VIRGINIA and JOHN BERNIE OAKLAND and their children, who have been away some years living in Biloxi, Miss., and in St. Louis, Mo. BERNIE is a first year student at Neville, while MARY is at Lexington; CELEST at St. Paul's kindergarten.

A welcoming luncheon was given for Virginia Thursday by BETTY MOORE, who entertained at home. Pink roses in a silver tureen centered the table, which was laid with linen placemats. The menu served to eight guests included crab meat au gratin; asparagus, minted carrots, congealed grape salad; toasted cheese bread; and apple crumb pie for dessert.

Today is set for a long-awaited occasion: official opening of the MASUR MUSEUM OF ART at Grey Gables on South Grand street. The public is invited to view the museum this afternoon from two until five. Travelling shows, in addition to permanent exhibits, are planned to be on view for six weeks to two months periods. First, now on display, is a show of California artists entitled "New Images of San Francisco." The museum, which will be manned by members of the Art Center assisted by volunteers from the community, is to be open daily except Mondays from two until five.

Following a summer recess, members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, begin their fall activity with an annual silver tea. The eighth in the series is planned for this coming Saturday afternoon from three-thirty until six at the home of VEE MARSHALL, 1412 Island Drive.

Clubwomen of the Twin Cities; DAR's from throughout the area; and CAR societies of the state have been invited to attend. Among those expected from out of town are: ANNE STEWART, state senior president, and MARTHA MAYFIELD, senior national vice-president for the Southeastern Region, both of Baton Rouge; LUCILLE DOWLIN and ALICE MAY FISHER of New Iberia, who are bringing a group from Evangeline Society, CAR; and CATHERINE BARHAM of Oak Ridge, who is bringing a group from Prairie Jefferson Society.

Both Ft. Miro and Chief Tusquahoma chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution, have begun their club years. On Tuesday, September 29, these groups will send representatives to the annual Fifth District meeting of DAR chapters, to be held in Ruston with Longleaf Pine chapter as hostess.

Membership drive for this season of Northeast Louisiana State concerts got underway Wednesday with a morning party for those helping with the drive. Scene of the party was ELSONG, home of EMY-LOU BIEDENHARN. Schedule for this year's concerts is: October 20, the Brothers Four; October 28, Goldovsky opera's production of "La Boheme;" November 23, New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony; February 22, Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles; March 3, Ferrante and Teicher; and two performances by the Twin City Symphony.

Elsong will be the scene of another party tomorrow, when Monroe Garden club opens its new year with a tea honoring new members. Emy-Lou's lovely home will be open for this party for club members from two until four in the afternoon.

Tomorrow night will be the first meeting of the new year for FINE ARTS CLUB. This organization traditionally opens each year with a covered dish supper, Monday's to be held on the patio of MAUD and HENRY MAYO. The program of Americana will include slides of his travels to be shown by LEON HAMMONDS; and barbershop singing by DAVIS BINGHAM, GARLAND SHELL, HARRY ARTHUR GENUNG, and HOMER TILLERY. Co-hosts for the meeting are the Binghams and MAY REED.

Beginning the year's study of famous women, ANNE BERNHARDT guest speaker, will talk on the life and times of Queen Elizabeth for La Vingt club Wednesday. This first meeting is to be held at the home of JANICE CALDWELL.

Twentieth anniversary season of LOUISIANA TECH CONCERT ASSOCIATION got underway with the membership drive which opened Wednesday. This year's program at Howard auditorium in Ruston will include: the Dallas Theatre Center presentations of "Comedy of Errors" and "Julius Caesar;" Japan Symphony orchestra; and Salvation Army Band and male chorus, all before Christmas. After the New Year, the program planned is: National Ballet from Washington, D.C., Jan. 12; Caledonia, program of singers and dancers from Scotland, Feb. 8 and 9; Jorge Bolet at the piano Feb. 17 and 18; the Royal Welch Male choir, with company of 45, March 22 and 23; the New Christy Minstrels, March 11; and a performance of Verdi's "Requiem" by the Shreveport Symphony with the Tech Choir, Wednesday, April 21.

Today's poem is "The Rebuffers" by Ogden Nash:

There are some people who if you say something nice to them,
They certainly don't encourage you to do it twice to them.
Because you pay them a compliment and they are not receptive and gracious,
No, they snub you as if you had said something insulting and outragious.
You say, Isn't that a becoming dress!
And they say, What, this mess?
And you say something like, This evening your eyes are very beautiful, and the only reason you say it is that you think this evening their eyes are very beautiful.
And they promptly inform you that they know you really think their eyes look like two incompatible poached eggs, and are just saying the other to be dutiful.
Come on Modesty, step up and take the blame;
Thou art responsible, Modesty, for all the innocent little compliments strangled in thy name.
And there is one truth which it might be well to remind the grim rebuffer to swallow to the dregs,
Which is that beauty is in the eye of the beholder, and the complimenter may indeed have been mistaken, because to somebody else the dress was a mess and the eyes were like two incompatible poached eggs.
Because everybody who has somebody who thinks they are wonderful also has somebody who thinks they are terrible,
And all I wish the rebuffers is that they may overhear the conversation of their enemies if they find the conversation of their friends so unbearable.

Fall Fashions Show World In Technicolor

What milady wants, milady gets this fall in a wide-screen view of color. It's a technicolor world, with the fall fashion lights going up on greens and golds, reds and pinks, blue and purples.

Focusing into fashion is a vast range of greens. Some are light and bright, bringing a delightfully spring-like touch into the fall scene. Woodsy greens make a colorful contrast. In the array from chartreuse to peacock to live, there's a green to please every woman's wishes.

True blues are strongly in the picture — but then, so are many of blue's kissing cousins, such as cerise, magenta, fuchsia pink, blue spruce and wine bottle.

The winey hues find burgundy and many other "vintage" colors in the limelight. A panorama of royal blues plays up purple, and mauves and lilacs appear alone or, in tweeds, mingling with pinks and greens.

Like true blue, true red sends its fashion message bright and clear. It pales to pink or blends to rust in many fall designs. The russet tones, like the woodsy greens, bring autumn foliage colors into view.

The palest golds light the way to fall, with rich, deep golds to keep them company.

Along with the burst of color, expect to see many important neutrals, led by the most basic colors of all, black and white.

BOLD PATTERNS

For daytime or evening; indoors or out, the pattern for this fall's fashion is a bold and breezy one; a young, lively dash of color to brighten any busy girl's wardrobe plans.

MRS. EDGAR ER NEST SHUMATE JR.

Miss Elizabeth Fleming Weds Tennessee Man

Jade green foliage and myriad white tapers banked the altar of the First Baptist church, Bastrop, Saturday evening, September 5 for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Sharon Fleming and Edgar Ernest Shumate Jr. Dr. Ray P. Rust performed the double ring vows at 6 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Fleming of Bastrop and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Shumate of New Tazewell, Tennessee.

Baskets of white gladioli and fern were placed at intervals along the altar and white satin bows marked family pews.

During the seating of guests by Steve Armstead, Dan Campbell, cousin of the groom, Thurman Coley, uncle of the bride and Clint Cleveland, ushers, a concert of organ music was rendered by Marvin McDaniel, who also accompanied the soloist, Bill Santo.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of reembroidered Alencon lace and silk faced peau de soie, styled with Sabrina neckline, long tapered sleeves and bouffant skirt, also embellished with the lace appliques. The chapel train extended from the back waist, defined by a flat bow and rose of the peau. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet comprising six white orchids.

Miss Patsy Fleming attended her sister as maid of honor and matron of honor was Mrs. J. D. Wofford, sister of the groom. They wore gowns of blush rose satin with back interest centered on panels of deeper tone cerise, which fell to the hem of the floor length slim skirts. Their headdresses were pillbox hats with circular illusion veils and completing their costumes were matching slippers and white gloves. Each carried a bouquet of pale pink chrysanthemums encircled with green camellia leaves. Bridesmaids, Misses Sue Swartz, Jane Limerick and Sharon Boughton, were dressed identically to the honor attendants.

Miss Betty Fleming, sister of the bride, also gowned identically to the other attendants, served as flower girl. She carried a white lace basket of pink mums. Eddie Kenny, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Sam Shumate attended his brother as best man.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a mauve lace sheath with matching slippers and a hat of carnation red feathers with long white gloves. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue lace model with contrasting accessories. Both wore pink orchid corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming entertained at a reception in the church social room following the ceremony. Mrs. Thomas Chapman, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest book table which was graced with a memory candle and the bride's bouquet. Background music was provided by Miss Martha Ellen Mitchell, at the piano.

The bride's table, covered with a pink satin cloth overlaid with pink net was caught up with lilies of the valley and maline poufs. Pink and white carnations formed the central decor. Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Alton Johnson and Mrs. Max Binford and serving cake were Mrs. Ed Kenny and Mrs. Winston Holley.

Mrs. Ray Rust and Mrs. Ernest Brodnax greeted guests at the door and other assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Carlton Ables, Mrs. Marlin Rains, Mrs. P. F. Dunn, Mrs. Emmett Stephenson, Mrs. Bill Cassity, Mrs. Douglas Eubanks, Mrs. O. A. Doggett.

Tea girls were Misses Kathy Mooney, Eileen Mooney, Suzanne Perry, Angela Woffard, niece of the groom; Connie Parker and Vicki Chapman, cousin of the bride. Pink net rice bags were presented the guests by Sheryl Lynn Ables and Betty Kenny, cousins of the bride.

After a wedding trip through North Carolina and the Blue Ridge Mountains the couple will be at home in Kingsport, Tenn., where Mr. Shumate is employed. For travel the bride wore a two piece ensemble of powder blue linen with black velvet hat and black accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Bastrop high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe. Mr. Shumate is a graduate of the University of Tennessee where he received a B.S. degree in industrial engineering and was a member of Alpha Pi Mu and Tau Beta Phi honorary engineering fraternities.

Dual Personality Fabrics Match Fall Silhouettes

Fabrics for fall have personality. In fact, they have two personalities.

This is one case, however, when a dual personality is a decided advantage. Fashion itself looks two ways — toward the softer, more feminine look, and toward the tailored, somewhat sporty look. Fabrics pair off perfectly with both these looks.

In the soft, gentle mood, there are richly textured fabrics — nbby wools, bubbly mohairs, surface-interest tweeds. This is texture with a different, lighter look very much in keeping with the fashions it enhances. Curls, loops and nubs are delicately spun and woven to melt in the fabric. Bulk has vanished, in favor of a lightweight and supple air.

A flash of printed wools — the feminine kind of prints — is on hand to bring still more pretty softness to a variety of fashions.

Fabrics for the tailored look are smartly sophisticated, very smooth and suave. These range from men's wear type woolens with flattened, but elegant, surfaces to crisp silks.

Supple and successful for fall are such fabrics as crepes and lightweight wools. And supple, too, are knits that in themselves display a whole new personality.

Knits are artfully textured to look crocheted. They're ruffled and tucked; they're open and loopy — fisherman types, for example.

Much of the news in fall fabrics centers around stretch. The widest use of stretch fabrics continues to be in sportswear, with lingerie moving up strongly in the use of stretch crepes, laces and tricots. New developments find stretch appearing more frequently in suits and dresses, too. Stretch wools are particularly exciting.

New textured cottons take on the look of brushed leather or suede, vying with the real thing — leather itself — for fashion attention.

BUBBLE BUILDING

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (UPI)— There's a prep school here — Forman — where they've created an indoor swimming pool and an indoor tennis court by blowing bubbles.

The bubbles are tent-like structures, supported by air pressure. The skin which forms the walls and roof is a white, translucent, vinyl-coated nylon fabric. Two ½-horsepower blowers inflated the bubbles. The initial cost of about $2 a square foot is about one-quarter the cost of conventional structures.

APPROACHING marriage of Miss Julie Gail Poole to Marty Francis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Francis of Jena, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Poole of Jonesville. The wedding will be an event of September 25 in Jonesville.

MRS. JOHN WILEY SHAMBLIN

Sara Nan Owens Becomes Bride Of John Shamblin

A candlelight ceremony at Nolley Memorial Methodist church of Jena united in marriage Miss Sara Nan Owens and John Wiley Shamblin. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Owens of Jena and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Shamblin of Bastrop.

Dr. Jolly B. Harper of Natchitoches assisted by the Rev. Edwin J. Barksdale of Jena performed the double ring vows at 4 p.m. on August 28 following prenuptial concert by Mrs. Jack Honeycutt, organist and Mrs. Roy Welch, cousin of the bride, soloist.

Vows were exchanged in a setting of white gladioli and Fuji chrysanthemums against a background of emerald palms, English ivy and clematis flanked by candelabra holding white tapers. Swags of magnolia and white satin bows lined the bridal aisle and family pews were marked with magnolia and lily of the valley.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on traditional lines. A double row of seed pearls outlined the bateau neckline of the fitted bodice, with long sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. A chapel train created back interest of the voluminous skirt. Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a double tiered pearl crown. She wore a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom and carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Miss Susan Ory served as maid of honor and Miss Ginger Owens was bridesmaid. They wore empire style gowns of gold peau de soie with matching slippers and veiled headpieces. Each carried a bouquet of bronze and gold pompons.

James Kyser served as best man and groomsman was Johnny Crow, both of Bastrop. Serving as ushers were Carl Addison Jr., cousin of the groom and James Owens, brother of the bride. Candles were lighted by Bobby Tullos and John Owens, brother of the bride.

For the wedding and reception which followed Mrs. Owens mother of the bride, wore a pink lace model with matching accessories. Mrs. Shamblin, mother of the groom, wore a blue linen and lace dress and both mothers wore corsage of pink glamellias.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Owens, were hosts at the reception in Fellowship hall of the church. Mrs. Elmo Tullos received guests in the foyer. A memory candle, entwined with lily of the valley and greenery was used on a table where Miss Marilyn Martin of Alexandria, presided at the bride's book.

The bride's table, covered in white was caught up with nosegays of yellow Fuji chrysanthemums. An antique epergne flanked with candles held a massive arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums. Miss Ginger Davis served the wedding cake and Miss Linda Shamblin, sister of the groom, poured punch. Miss Martha Frost presided at the silver coffee service.

Tea girls were Miss Vann Ellia, Greenville, Miss., Mrs. Steven Copel of Dallas, Tex., sister of the groom; Miss Frances Doughty, Miss Kathy Wright and Miss Susan Stevens. Rice bags were presented guests by Miss Lisa Amerine.

Others assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Warren Stormont, Bastrop; Mrs. Sam Wilbanks, Mrs. Allen Fortson, Mrs. Edgar Bass, Mrs. Nick Edwards, Mrs. Glenn Frost, Mrs. Bruce Edwards, Mrs. C. G. Mears Jr., Mrs. Oscar Breithaupt, Mrs. Ellis Dawson, Mrs. Woodrow Tullos and aunts of the bride, Mrs. Frank Amerine, Mrs. B. K. Owens, Mrs. Alethea Wright, Mrs. J. T. Ellis, Greenville, Miss.

After a wedding trip the couple is at home on Monroe Street in Ruston where both are students at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

INVESTIGATE

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (UPI) — Before you march indignantly to the phone to call the serviceman about an appliance that's blotto, make a quick check to be sure the call is really necessary.

Approximately 25 per cent of service calls are a waste of time and money because they result from causes other than faulty performance, Westinghouse reports. See if the appliance is connected or if a blown fuse is at fault. Check other simple things before calling the repairman, the firm suggested.

Let this man help you raise your child!

In these days of push-button living, music ranks as a most effective way of training your child to be a doer instead of a watcher.

Apart from its cultural benefits, music helps boys and girls develop the discipline, poise and self-confidence necessary to grow emotionally, mentally and socially. No other group activity, including athletics, can do this as well. And tests prove children active in school bands and orchestras usually earn high grades in their other courses, too.

Keep in mind, however, that achieving the benefits of music often depends on the effort your child makes and the encouragement he gets during the crucial beginning weeks. The effort must be his, but the encouragement may come from you, from his teacher, or the instrument he starts with.

That's why so many bandmasters recommend Bundy band instruments for beginners. They're made by H. & A. Selmer, Inc., and like a Selmer — first choice of more accomplished musicians and concert artists than any other — are easier to play well.

As a result, students who start with a Bundy by Selmer usually learn faster, have more fun sooner, and continue their music education to reap its richest rewards.

If your child is nine to twelve years old — or even a bit older — discuss this important third dimension of his education with your school's bandmaster.

Antique Jewels Have Big Future

Look for a renaissance of antique jewelry — or copies of it. One manufacturer, predicting its big future in the costume field, shows for fall beaten gold link chains that might have been hammered out centuries ago, golden bangles, pendant earrings and pins in the same ancient mood. Crest pins show for pinning to blazer jackets. And there are new treatments for the Maltese Cross, copied in gold background with stones added.

VEGETABLE KABOBS

Vegetable kabobs are good cooked in the oven broiler or over glowing coals. Some cooks like to marinate the vegetables — mushrooms and chunks of zucchini and onion in French dressing before cooking. Wide strips of green pepper also make good additions to skewers, but these should not be marinated.

Wardrobe For European Travel Is Recommended

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: My husband and I will go to Europe next month, spending a few days each in London, Paris, Rome, Madrid and Lisbon. What kind of wearing apparel would we need? We are interested mainly in sightseeing.

A: The same kind of conservative city clothes you would wear here are right for any city of moderate temperatures in Europe. Take suits, costumes in knits, so that blouse and skirt can be worn as two - piece dress in the warmer cities. Medium or darker colors are best, to avoid cleaning problems. Shoes should be low-heeled and comfortable; have two pairs for changing daily. One pair of pumps will be enough for dinner costume, which could be a black crepe dress — jacket costume, the dress sleeveless.

Q: For a European tour next month, including France, Italy and Switzerland, what would you advise on clothing? We are planning to attend an audience with the Pope.

A: See answer to above question on your needs. For Papal visit, etiquette is very strict. Dress must be black, long-sleeved and high - necked, length at least below the knee. A black lace veil is customarily worn over the head. Consult any priest for other details, but these are the main ones.

Q: I am plagued by a waistline problem with dresses. I buy them ranging from $10 up, and after dry cleaning, the waist runs up my back. Am I long waisted? From shoulder to waist I measure 16¼ inches and am 5 feet 4½ tall.

A: If the dress fits when new, it cannot be your waistline which is at fault, but the dress which has shrunk. The price you mention seems to be too little for most dresses today. Generally, at least $15 would be necessary, and even then, read hangtags to see what fabric you're getting, and what cleaning guarantee it carries.

Q: For my son's wedding I am wearing a beige lace dress embroidered in rose silk. Can I use a cocoa color satin evening bag? What other accessories? Sample of fabric enclosed.

A: Yes, cocoa bag can be used. Shoes should be simple pumps dyed to match bag if possible. Hat should be rose color to pick up embroidery tone. Can be satin or velvet, pillbox or turban style. Gloves should always be white kid for wedding. Jewelry can be pearls or gold, pieces chosen according to neckline and kind of hat worn.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

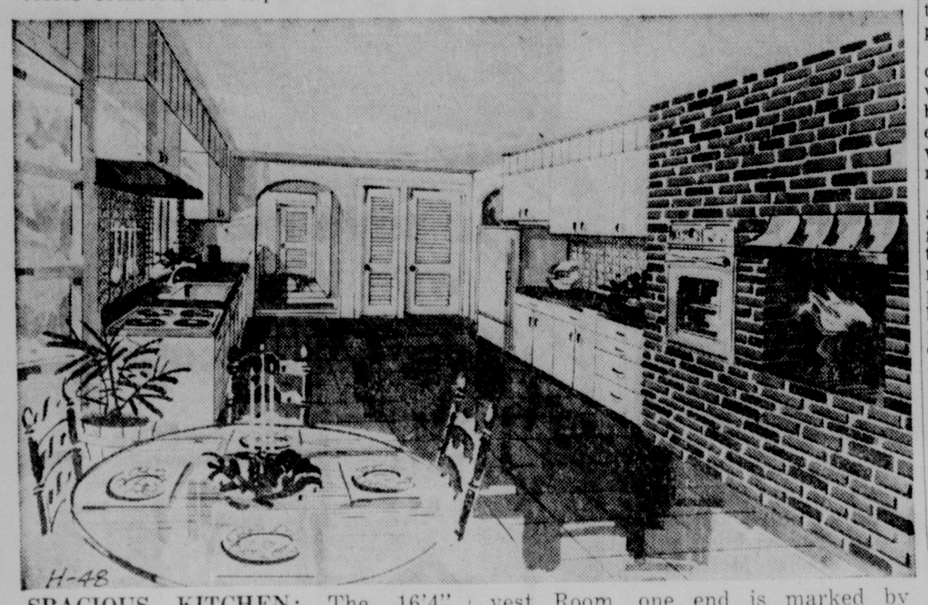
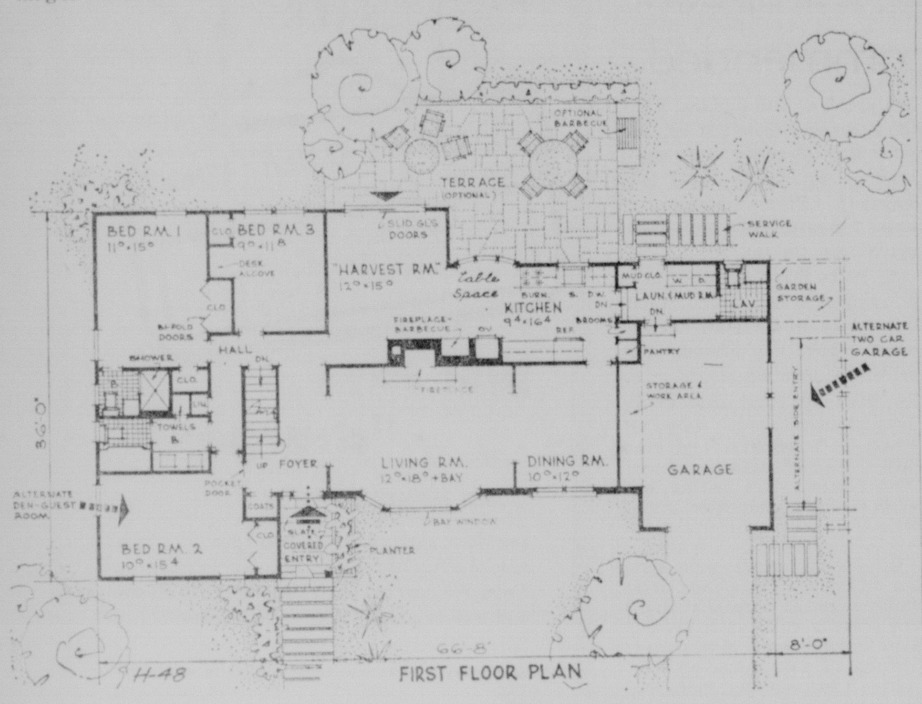
Many Other Styles From Which to Choose

EXPANDABLE DUTCH COLONIAL: The inviting exterior of this Dutch Colonial is blended with modern interior comfort. An expansion area under gambrel roof at the left permits the addition, now or later, of two bedrooms and a large bathroom.



SPACIOUS KITCHEN: The 16'4" depth of this kitchen appears even larger because of inter-locking Harvest Room, one end is marked by fireplace at right. Adjoining oven is in kitchen.



FLOOR PLANS: Expandable features make this home suitable for family requiring from two to five bedrooms. Also, note long sweep from living room through dining room and from Harvest Room through kitchen.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Dutch Colonial Is Given Inviting Modern Touches

By ANDY LANG

The profusion of Dutch Colonial homes that dotted the Pennsylvania countryside years ago has dwindled to a handful. But time has not diminished the warmth and charm that seem to flow naturally from the architectural lines of this type of house.

The visible aspects of the Dutch Colonial have been recaptured by architect Herman H. York in the latest House of the Week. To appearance he has added a series of modern features designed to make family living the ultimate in comfort in this day and age. An expansion area above the bedroom wing permits either the immediate or eventual addition of two bedrooms, a large bathroom and plenty of closet space.

Three bedrooms are located on the first floor level, but even here there is some flexibility. Besides the regular door to the bedroom hall, one of the bedrooms has a pocket door connected to the front foyer. This neat arrangement makes the room conveniently accessible should the owner wish to use it as a guest room or den. All three rooms in the bedroom wing have ample closets. One bathroom is off the hall, the other is in the master bedroom.

Since many of the old Dutch Colonials were, in effect, farmhouses, architect York has injected a touch of the past into Design H-48 by calling the family room the "Harvest Room." This room, often used for informal living, is neatly hidden from view of all the formal areas of the house. It is open wide to the kitchen and has a barbecue fireplace, all a part of the brick enclosure for the built-in oven. Backed up to the barbecue is a wood-burning fireplace for the living room. The flue for the furnace is also in this masonry unit, making a compact economical arrangement for the stone chimney.

The rear terrace can be reached from the Harvest Room and kitchen through sliding glass doors, which help to create a feeling of indoor-outdoor living. The kitchen is so arranged to provide control of the rear yard from a window over the sink. It is near the service area, consisting of the garage, laundry, mud room and lavatory, which has a rear door.

Usually the least-used in the house, the dining room is found in a "dead end" location between the living room and the kitchen. It is unnecessary to go through it to reach the kitchen because the more natural line of traffic is through the often-used Harvest Room. The living room, with an attractive bay window, is directly off the foyer, but need not be crossed to get to any other part of the house.

The warmth of this house is readily seen in the contour of the roof lines. The Dutch gambrel section at the left is not only charming in appearance, but practical. It encloses the expansion area, yet permits clear ceilings; that is, without breaks at the wall lines. Double windows at each end provide ample ventilation for this second floor.

The house walls are covered with stone of a rough, irregular variety and natural cedar shakes. The roof is black asphalt shingle, authentic at least in color if not in texture. White trim, doors, shutters and flower boxes add to the Dutch Colonial motif.

A stairway to the basement is shown on the floor plan of this house, which has 1554 square feet of habitable area on the first floor (excluding the laundry, garage and storage section) and 479 square feet upstairs. In areas where a basement is impractical, a closet can be located where the stairway is. The furnace then could be placed where the broom closet and pantry now are shown. These latter enclosures could be moved to the space set aside for garage storage.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-48.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Dead Wood In Shrubs

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Southern gardeners giving their shrubs that end-of-the-summer touching up seen to be puzzled by the presence of many dead branches in otherwise healthy plants.

Almost every single kind of shrub seems to have some of this dead wood. If you look at other people's shrubs, you will see that this situation is common.

Old man Winter is responsible for most of your dead branches and twigs. The recent return to Victorian winters with the low temperatures that our grandmothers used to talk about have killed back weak and damaged wood wherever it happened to be. Even whole trees in the forests have been killed.

NOT SURPRISING

It is not at all surprising that some of the tender azaleas were destroyed in the cooler parts of the south where they cannot take any but our mildest winters. Severe winters split these azaleas from the ground up. In some cases, all the canes have not been killed and may survive to grow a new shrub, but the low country azaleas will always be damaged by cold winters in the higher cooler sections away from the sea.

Some of the new azaleas have blossoms almost as large as the tender kinds and are hardy to our cold winters, too. If you have not seen the Glenn Dale azaleas created by B. Y. Morrison, ask your nurseryman for them.

INSPECT GRAFTS

While you are looking over your shrubbery, be sure to inspect all the grafted flowering trees like the flowering cherries, peaches and crabapples. The strong root stocks on which peaches and cherries are grafted are apt to send up a straight shoot from the ground. This lusty new growth may, in a few years, become a new tree. Neglected plantings in parks and cemeteries are full of weird flowering trees, with long shoots growing up through the middle. Weeping cherries are most apt to be this way because they are grafted on top of young trees a few feet tall.

When lawn mowers are bumped into grafted trees, the injured wood near the ground is stimulated to recover. Where the damage has been considerable, the understock tries to stage a come - back by sending up a new tree. Since most flowering trees are grafted onto a fast growing healthy stock, the root stock will soon surpass the growth of the top, and your flowering cherry or peach is soon destroyed.

Look Ahead In Projects

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Mrs. Homemaker, be a wise gardener and look beyond the present and see the work that needs to be done now for the beautification of the home grounds in the future. Fall is the season to plan for and to plant bulbs for spring color.

Spring flowering bulbs bring color to your garden at a time when few other plants are in bloom. Bulbs prefer well-drained, sandy soil. They grow best when they get long hours of direct sunshine.

Daffodils, tulips and hyacinths, the bulbs found in most gardens, should be planted in the fall. Tulips and hyacinths need cold storage treatment if prerefrigerated bulbs are not bought annually, because of the mildness of Louisiana winters. Tulips can be planted until late November. Bulbs planted too deep will not flower and bulbs planted too shallow are affected by frequent temperature changes.

USE IN MASSES

Use bulbs in masses, rather than scattering a few bulbs over a large area. Never circle trees in a natural setting with bulbs. They are quite showy in ground covers ivy, jasmine and winca.

ROSES

Continue to control insects and diseases because the fall bloom of roses provides great delight, often being more beautiful than the spring bloom. Cool fall nights cause the bloom to last longer than spring blooms. If you, Mr. and Mrs. Gardener, enjoy roses then make plans now to attend the Rose Festival at Hodges Gardens on October 3 and 4.

A number of homemakers have called regarding fertilizing camellias — the answer is no — do not fertilize at this time of year. The fertilizer will promote new growth, and tender growth is quite susceptible to early winter freezes. Control scale insects with oil emulsion when daytime temperatures reach the moderate range, or use cygon as a spray, or soil drench. Cygon is a very effective control of scale. Your home demonstration agent has found cygon used as a soil drench to be excellent and much easier to use than the spray. Two applications of cygon used as a soil drench completely controlled scale on a four foot plant badly infested with scale.

KEY TASKS

Jobs done in September may hold the key to success of your chrysanthemums this year. Feed at the rate of 1½ pounds of 8-8-8 fertilize. If already fertilized, all that may be needed is nitrogen at the rate of ¾ pound of nitrate of soda per 50 feet of row. Fertilizer applied just prior to or after opening of blooms is wasted. If you notice leaf spot on your chrysanthemums spray with captan at intervals. Mildew, a whitish, powdery area on leaves, can be controlled by mildex or dusting sulphur.

Remember the dates of the Chrysanthemum Exposition — October 24 and 25 on the L.S.U. campus. All amateurs and commercial growers of chrysanthemums may participate.

INTERESTING NOTE

Mrs. Homemaker, how does your man of the house rate. A well-known tailor, who has more than a passing interest in astrology says that Capricorn and Gemini men are the most conservative dressers, while Pesces and Scorpio are the most daring. Men born under cancer are the most casual and stress comfort in their apparel. Virgoans are the neatest; Leo men dress to kill and are, incidentally, the best and fastest about paying their bills.

ORANGE JUICE

Mrs. Consumer, if you have not considered the cost of that ever favorite morning fruit juice perhaps this information will help you. Frozen orange concentrate is less expensive than freshly squeezed juice on the average. According to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, figures on the basis of 1962, the juice of 25 ounces of frozen juice averaged 10.9 cents compared with 22.2 for the same amount of canned juice, and 37.6 cents for fresh orange juice.

A THOUGHT

A gossiper is like an old shoe on which the tongue never stays in place.

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — New product news for the boatman — everything from a direction finder to unbreakable china for the galley.

The small boatman need not fear sudden fog or darkness with a three-band automatic direction finder that requires no calculations or knowledge of navigation. Tune the set to a broadcast station of known location, in the direction in which you wish to head and the course indicator will tell you when you're on beam. Operating from self-contained battery pack or from 110 volt AC, the device also will show you which way to steer if you get off course.

BOAT BAILER

For sailboat, outboard or rowboat, an automatic boat bailer activated by the gentle rocking of the boat. Pendulum motion of suspended weight runs pump.

Easy to carry life raft, self-inflating in 30 seconds to 3½ by 7-foot size, will carry four persons.

Added safety aboard with distress flares. Packed in waterproof plastic, flares burn a brilliant red for 15 minutes.

For emergencies aboard, a special small-boat first-aid kit containing bandages, dressings, etc.

SURE FOOTING

For sure footing on deck or dock, a new non-slip plywood is available in a variety of colors and wood grains. A sharply indented diamond grid surface is designed for non-slip heavy foot traffic under adverse conditions.

A new self-spraying, fast-drying marine clear finish for wood, brightwork or metal, is said to provide and impenetrable shield against damaging ultra violet rays of the sun. The high-gloss finish will last season-long, weathering effect of sun, salt water, gasoline fumes and general hard usage.

PROTECT HITCH

Protect trailer hitch from corrosion — and your clothes from grease — with a simple plastic cap that slips over the towing ball when hitch is not in use.

For small fishing boat, canoe or dinghy, a manually operated motor will provide a speed of 2 to 3 mph. One hand operation-control lever and steering handle are combined and pumped up and down to rotate propeller — and complete silence of operation makes it ideal for trolling.

An electronic thermometer dropped overboard will tell you at what depth you're most likely to find the fish you're after. A chart lists water temperatures favored by different species.

SHIP SHAPE

Keep the galley shipe-shape—and the cook happy — with unbreakable type cooking and tablewear of glass-ceramic, a material that can go from freezer to stove without breaking, cracking or crazing. The tablewear, despite its fine-china appearance, is guaranteed against breakage for three years. It cleans easily and is designed to stack compactly, simplifying storage.

Spray Shield For Plants Being Tested

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

A fatty acid sprayed on plants is being tested as a protection against frost and drought.

The new treatment with a dilute solution of decenylsuccinic acid, an unsaturated fatty substance, was reported by Dr. Pieter J. C. Kuiper of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station. He found that this preparation sprayed on peach, apple and pear blossoms protected most of the flowers at temperatures as low as 24 degrees. Untreated flowers were killed by the frost.

DETERRENT

In greenhouse experiments with bean plants, the station reported that the acid treatment helped resist drying out as well as cold.

During a severe drought last June, Dr. Kuiper reported, young hemlock seedlings dipped in the solution for 24 hours before planting became well established, while untreated seedlings faired poorly.

The station said the practical value of this breakthrough in knowledge of water relations of plants — an area under intensive study at this experimental plant laboratory, remains to be demonstrated.

Frost and drought are old enemies of gardeners. Thus far, protection against loss of crops and plants from these foes has been mechanical — more recently through plant breeding.

Success of the experiment in protection would be a boon to the backyard grower of tomatoes and tender plants, as well as to the commercial horticulturist.

Dr. Kuiper is on leave from the staff of the Agricultural University at Wageningen, The Netherlands.

EVOLUTION

The New York Botanical Garden in the Bronx is displaying thousands of years of evolution of plant development in a blocklong walk.

The Systemic Border includes many exotic tropical plants which wintered in the garden's greenhouses and were transplanted near their hardier northern relatives.

Each bed encloses a family containing many species, all labeled with common and scientific names. For example, the rose family has a well-mixed collection ranging from the common rose to strawberry, bridlewreath and raspberry.

PLANT FAMILIES

The 70 families in the border include the more representative and significant among some 300 families into which the approximately 350,000 species of flowering plants are divided.

The plant - families garden helps visitors learn the characteristics that link species into related groups and to understand the evolutionary spiral from the simple to the more adapted and complex.

The border begins wth elementary flowering plants, the grasses, Graminese. It ranges through jack-in-the-pulpits, lilies and roses, and ends with daisies, Compositae, in which each bloom consists of many tiny central flowers surrounded by ray petals.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Lakeshore Featured

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Lakeshore Garden Club, a Federated club of Monroe, presented the Garden Center Program last Wednesday. Mrs. Henry Nyhuis, the club's outgoing president, and Mrs. L. G. McCain, incoming president, along with five other club members brought the designs which were exceptionally good. Each design contained flowers from the members' own gardens. In several only one type of bloom was used to create the entire design. We owe this artistic lesson to the Japanese who were artists in creating the line design where very few flowers were used and sometimes just branches of trees or shrubs. The three rules to remember in creating an oriental style design are:

Restraint in use of materials; creating the triangle; and natural growth (materials flowing from one stem placement).

GRACEFUL STEMS

Mrs. Nyhuis used the graceful stems of the banana plant buds (3) to form her oriental triangle in a rose tan colored footed compote container. The color combination was very pleasing for this long-lasting design that could be enjoyed in so many places in the home. This is an excellent way to enjoy one kind of blossom.

Another design in the oriental manner was made by Mrs. Dorothy Whipple. She also used one type flower, the marigold in two colors. The lighter yellow formed the tallest placement in the low, flat white bowl. The gold colored marigolds filled in the secondary line and earth line of the design. Water could be seen in the bowl with white rocks near the holder. The only greenery used was the leaves of the marigolds which gave a pleasing color effect.

Mrs. Sarh Boles made a massed asymmetrical triangle using yellow plume celosia for the line. The main (one) flower used within this line was the golden spray type mum. Variegated (yellow and green) euonymous gave the finishing touch at the basic part of the design which was made in a soft green ceramic compote.

Unusual materials were used by Mrs. Tim Burgess in her massed table design. The red bloom of the clerodendron, variety: Foetidum, a Chinese shrub that will grow to six feet. The leaves are broad, ovate, and grow to one foot long, coarsely toothed. This shrub will grow only in southern parts, such as Florida, Gulf Coast, and California. The bloom is in a head like cluster. These formed the overall design of the massed triangle in a footed clear glass bowl. For contrast of forms and color the holly fern was placed at the base of the design. As filler she used the leather fern and the red and white caladium leaves. All materials were harmonious, and together formed an interesting conversational table design.

UNUSUAL MATERIALS

Another design containing unusual materials was one made by Mrs. Neal Collins who used the lovely pampas grass for the vertical primary line of her vertical design. This she placed in a modern black compote container. To strengthen this line she placed several canna leaves (tiered) to the back closely together. These formed a pleasing background for the three exotic banana plant buds which formed the focal interest. The small clusters of bananas were placed to the back of the design for a finishing touch all around. An excellent design for the narrow wall space.

Mrs. L. G. McCain used her skill in making a small design suitable for the kitchen niche or small side table. The container was a small jug (earthern) in colors of oyster white and blue green. A line of (three) horsetail rush formed the vertical line. A cluster of summer poinsettia formed the focal interest with the leaves of the silver maple placed around it for accent. One small aspidestra leaf was placed to the back for depth and background for the focal flowers.

The last design was made by Mrs. C. R. Watson who used three yucca leaves to form the first placement (vertical) in a modern ceramic container of black and white lined with earthern brown. Magnolia leaves formed a massed placement near the basic part of the design forming a background for the focal interest, a cluster of yellow "cut - and come-agains." This is a simple, long-lasting design that anyone would enjoy at this time of year in the home.

This wonderful program just shows what can be done with a few flowers, unusual foliage from the yard, and artistic talent of the garden clubbers.

Speaking of the talent — you will not want to miss the lecture - demonstration to be given by Mrs. Jack Miller of Shreveport, Wednesday entitled "Tables," to be held at the Francis Hotel, from 1 to 3 p.m. Mrs. Miller comes as a guest of the Fifth District annual Louisiana Garden Club Federation meeting. The Jonesboro - Hodge Garden club is host club for this meeting. Mrs. Jettie Barnum, Fifth District director is in charge. All Federated Garden Clubs of the Fifth District are urged to be present for the entire day. Registration will be from 9:30 to 10 A.M.; business session, 10 A.M. until noon; lunch - noon; lecture - demonstration: "Tables," Mrs. Miller, 1 — 3 P.M. The entire day's events — $3.50. The lecture is open to the public for a fee of $1. The Louisiana Garden Calendars will be available to those who have ordered them and will be given out to those who have paid for them in full to Mrs. Frank Simon, 505 Oak Street, New Iberia, La. If you have not paid for them by the 16th you may get your order from Mrs. John Tolar by paying for them at this time.

Wednesday, the program for the Garden Center will be presented by Harvey Paige on "Rock Gardens" — what plants to use.

Need Limestone?

CALL US—YOUR AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE DISTRIBUTOR

For High Magnesium Limestone (Approximately 43% Magnesium, 53% Calcium.)

Provides Your Cheapest—And Often Most—Valuable Plant Nutrients.

Limestone's Most Publicized Contribution To Plant Growth Is Its Ability To "Sweeten The Soil" (Correct Acidity). But Limestone Performs Many Vital Chores:

It supplies calcium and magnesium both necessary for plant growth.

It corrects soil acidity and makes more soil minerals available.

It improves physical condition of the soil, and stimulates soil microbe activity.

Perhaps most spectacular — limestone actually conserves nutrients; When you lime acid soils, the calcium and magnesium in the limestone tie up iron and aluminum before they can combine with available phosphorus.

And potash is saved because in limed soils, plants stop hogging potassium and utilize the calcium and magnesium . . . limestone even feeds the soil microbes, making them more active.

Know Your Limestone. It's Measured By Calcium and Magnesium Content, Power To Neutralize Acids In The Soil And Fineness Quality. The Finer The Limestone The Faster It Acts In The Soil.

WEEK LONG STANDS

NEW YORK (AP)—The mobile unit of New York's free Shakespeare Festival is already planning an extended tour for next summer because of the popularity of its current test run.

Joseph Papp, founder of the project, said that week-long stands would be made at various sites throughout the city, chosen from among the 39 visited for only one or two performances this season.

The company is doing "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and a twin-bill in Spanish brief plays by Federico Garcia Lorca in low-income neighborhoods. Three Shakespeare dramas are also given by another cast in the company's open-air theater in Central Park.

First Double Drive-In Set For Monroe

The Gulf States Theatres announced Friday construction of the first double drive-in theatre in northeast Louisiana. The facility will be located at the Joy Drive In, DeSiard Road, east of Monroe.

Cecil White, city manager for the theatre chain, announced the twin screen facility will be begun in the near future. The present screen at the drive-in theatre will be utilized with an additional one, located on the extreme south part of the property, being planned.

NO INTERRUPTION

Construction of the second screen, as well as a new concession stand and ticket office, will not interrupt the showings at the theatre, White pointed out, since work will be done during the daylight hours and the picture showings during the evening and night time. The second screen will be added attraction for the public to allow more of a choice of amusements, White said.

The concession stand will be for both drive-ins, as will be the projection booth located on the second floor of the concessions building. Pictures will be projected to both the north and south screens simultaneously.

Entrance to the twin drive in will allow the patrons to go either to the parking area for the north or south screen. The ticket office will have the areas marked off, with those entering the lane on the right directed to the south screen, and those entering the left lane going to the north screen.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Lamar Mullican, Arthur Griffith, and Sue Brooks are rehearsing the leads in our first play for Little Theater's 1964 - 1965 season, "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With." Theatergoers will remember Lamar as the wily "Sakini" in "Teahouse of The August Moon."

Arthur has had innumerable roles in our productions, the latest being the raffish characters of mute "King Sexitimus" in "Once Upon A Mattress," and "Alfred P. Doolittle" of "My Fair Lady." Spritely Sue delighted our audiences last year with her calculating "Sally Cato" in "Auntie Mame" and "Lady Alice" in "Breath of Spring."

Several other roles have been filled and Executive Director Lonny Fraze expects to round out his cast within a few days. Right now, rehearsals are at the stop - and - go stage. Playbooks are still being held in the actor's hands as they read their lines, all the while trying to imagine furniture, props, doors and windows that are nothing more than a row of folding chairs or an upturned crate on the empty stage. Lonny is making on-the-spot decisions and changes as to the "business" which goes into bringing a play to life, one of the many challenges which make directing such fascinating and compelling work.

SCHEDULE

Performances for "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With" have been scheduled as following: evening performances on Oct. 16-18 and Oct. 22-25, with a matinee on Oct. 18. We are following the plan started last year of playing two weekends with the theater dark on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This seems to suit our members best.

Gary Fontana's role as "Harold" in "Inherit the Wind" was duly recorded with a Green Room tile this past week, a gift from his grandmother in Pomona, Calif. Gary's tile makes the 245th on the rapidly filling north wall of the actor's room at Strauss Playhouse.

The large brilliant pink section commemorating our summer success, "My Fair Lady" isn't included in this number since it was bought as a group by cast and crew. If you haven't seen the very pretty "My Fair Lady" block, drop by Strauss Playhouse some afternoon or evening. It is in the corner surrounding the swinging door which leads into the lobby.

WELL RECEIVED

Our hard working costume crew will be delighted to hear that the Monterey (Calif.) Herald has described as "luscious" the costumes for "Once Upon A Mattress" which the Carmel (Calif.) Little Theater rented from us for their summer production of that play. Our own audiences were thrilled with the brilliant jewel-like colors of the flowing silks and rich velveteens which represented literally hundreds of hours of design and sewing, and it is rewarding to know that another community is benefiting from our industry.

Membership applications are coming in rapidly now in response to last week's brochure mailing to former members. Until tomorrow, Sept. 14, we will sell memberships to former members only. After that, the books will be opened on a first-come, first-served basis. With Monroe's ever increasing population and interest in the theater, we expect our 3,000 member limit to be filled early in the season, so don't risk disappointment by waiting too long to send in your application. Mrs. O. A. Easterling at FA 3-8482 will fill your order, or you may write Box 868, Monroe.

We'll repeat the various prices for those who might have missed previous columns: Sustaining (adult) — $7.50, includes one admission to each play; regular (adult) — $2.50, plus $1.50 for each play and $2.50 for the musical; sustaining (student) — $5.00, includes one admission to each play; and regular (student) — $1, plus $1 admission to each play, $1.50 for the musical.

After a near-miss, our former director, Richard Clark and his wife, Pat, embarked for Europe in late August. It seems their ship was scheduled to sail from Galveston, but instead had Brownsville as embarkation point. After a last minute dash down the coast of Texas Richard and Pat made it, though, and at last report were happily sailing for Europe.

COIN OF THE REALM

Collecting Major Business In U.S.

By JOHN BLUCK

Coin collecting — the country's fastest growing hobby — now claims the full time or part time interest of millions. And the number of collectors is growing by the thousands each year.

The much publicized "coin shortage" and the new but almost unobtainable Kennedy half dollars have done much in recent months to focus attention on the hobby and to make more people coin conscious.

Coin collecting is nothing new. Psychologists tell us that man has always felt a need to collect something, whether it is pretty rocks (by rockhounds), food (by hoarders in times of famine), precious jewels or gold ingots (if you don't trust banks or your country's money), stamps or matchbook covers.

Because there were ancient "collectors", or hoarders if you prefer, the work of archaeologists and historians has been made easier and more exact. Through the centuries hoards of coins have been discovered throughout the ancient world, especially in the countries of the Middle East and Mediterranean Basin.

KNOWLEDGE

Numismatists (coin collectors who have worked harder at their hobby and have learned more about coins than the average collector) have been able to date important happenings over the past 2,600 years because of their knowledge of coins. Coins provide one of the tangible links with Greek cultures. Portraits of many ancient kings after the time of Alexander The Great (about 320 B.C.), Roman emperors and such famous individuals as Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Nero and hundreds of others are to be found on coins which are still available to collectors.

Ancient coins also illuminate the life of the people and their times, depicting buildings, monuments and even cities which have been destroyed for centuries. Because these coins still exist we have a better idea of the appearance of ancient peoples and their surroundings.

Perhaps the first coin collector was a hoarder in ancient Lydia where the first coin is believed to have been struck about 700 B. C. Many hoards of ancient coins have been preserved for centuries in almost like-new condition in pots and jars. These probably were buried to prevent their falling into the hands of robbers or hostile invaders.

GREAT VALUE

Truly magnificent collections of great value have been assembled by wealthy individuals. In recent years Kink Farouk of Egypt was one of the leading collectors. His collection of coins ranged from the ancient to the most modern. It was valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars when it was broken up and sold to collectors all over the world a few years ago.

NEW COLUMN

This column, the first in what is expected to be a regular feature, is not planned to be of interest to collectors of King Farouk's wealth. It is designed for the collector of modest means and for the non-collector who might want to know more about coins.

It will point out coins which have a value and interest to collectors. Hints will be passed on about how to assemble a collection and what to collect. It will cover a little history of United States coinage and will introduce the collector to the field of foreign coin collecting, the fastest growing area of popularity at this time. Reference works also will be discussed.

"Investing" in coins, a new development growing out of the hobby, will be mentioned but no suggestions will be made about coins or other numismatic material which should be bought for anticipated profit.

Space limitations will make it impossible to identify coins for readers or to answer inquiries about the value of individual coins.

Anyone having an interest in the coin collecting hobby should plan to join a coin club. In a club a beginner will meet hobbyists with similar interests who can be of help to him in starting a collection. There are two coin clubs in the immediate area. The Monroe Area Coin Club, now three years old, meets at 7:30 P. M. the second and fourth Tuesday each month at the First National Bank in West Monroe. The other area club has been formed in Bastrop.

Today marks the second and final day of the coin show being held in Monroe at the Virginia Hotel. Visitors and collectors alike will find the show interesting because of the tremendous number and types of coins which are on display. If you collect coins, or think you would like to, by all means attend the show today. It will open your eyes to the vast sweep of interests included in the coin collecting hobby.

Enrollment Up For Concordia Schools Again

VIDALIA (Special) — Increased enrollment is the story again for the schools in Concordia Parish. First week registration is 6,642 students for the '64-'65 session, which is an increase of 326 students over the first week's registration of 6,316 in 1963-64.

This continued growth in the schools of Concordia Parish brings problems of over-crowded classrooms and very few empty rooms available for future growth, according to Supt. J. O. Lancaster Under a "Pay-As-We-Grow" slogan, property owners have voted a maximum millage in an effort to meet the needs brought on by increased enrollment.

The five mills voted last year for new construction will provide approximately $60,000 for new classrooms. This will give six to eight new classrooms each year, whereby the enrollment is increasing at a much more rapid rate, according to Lancaster.

Chrysler Pact Helps Keep Economy Rolling

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers Union collaborated this past week to help keep the nation's economic engine roaring along heartily.

While some felt that their new contract agreement involved a fuel mixture too rich for healthy operation, there was almost universal cheer that a strike had been avoided.

The agreement, announced a short time before the old contract ran out at 10 a.m. Wednesday, involved a package valued at between 53 and 57 cents an hour over a three-year span. That's the biggest boost in auto industry history.

The stock market reacted almost immediately with a strong spurt.

Steelmakers indicated that this almost assures an all-time record for that rebounding basic industry.

The settlement appeared to remove the chief obstacle to continuation of a record peacetime business expansion, now in its 43rd month.

However, after the first flush of satisfaction at averting a strike, questions about possible inflationary effects shot to the fore.

The settlement involved an increase of about 4.7 per cent, well above the 3.2 per cent guideline set by the President's Council of Economic Advisers as noninflationary.

The union argues, however, that auto industry productivity has risen not by 3.2 per cent but by about 4.9 per cent and that the boost is therefore within the limits.

The council's position has been that inflation can be avoided if wage increases do not exceed increases in productivity, or output per man-hour.

Yet to be seen is whether first-ranked General Motors and second-raned Ford Motor Co. will match the Chrysler settlement in size and ease. The Ford contract expires Sept. 15, and the GM contract expires Sept. 16. A strike could develop from either negotiation.

Also in doubt is the direct effect of the Chrysler settlement, and other similar agreements by other makers, upon auto prices. First indications were that there would be no immediate boosts.

Economists also pondered the indirect effects of the settlement, wondering whether other unions might follow the Auto Workers' lead and seek fatter boosts in a way that could cause strife and inflationary pressure.

The pay rises themselves, going to 74,000 Chrysler workers retroactively to Sept. 1, will obviously have some influence on total spending pressure. But the immediate impact is diminished by the fact that much of the increase is in such fringe benefits as improved pension payments.

Shortly before the agreement auto industry economists had predicted strong sales of the 1965 models, just now beginning to appear. They foresaw sales of about 7,850,000, up slightly from about 7,800,000 this year.

The Chrysler-UAW settlement overshadowed another labor agreement, one between the nation's biggest copper producer, Kennecott Copper Corp., and the United Steelworkers Union. Kennecott had been shut down July 1, creating a very tight copper supply. It was estimated that the effects of that stoppage would be felt for several months more, but the copper industry was clearly cheered by the developments.

Just before, Kennecott and Anaconda Copper Co. had received good news in the form of the election in Chile of a moderate as president rather than of a Marxist who had pledged to nationalize foreign copper operations there. The two U.S. companies have major holdings in the Latin American country.

Other business news in the past week included reports showing business inventories had slipped in July, that individual savings had jumped, the introduction to trading of the space-age Communications Satellite Corp. common stock on the New York Stock Exchange, and record sales by the world's biggest retailer, Sears Roebuck & Co.

The Commerce Department reported that business inventories had declined, seasonally adjusted by $40 million in July to $106,580,000,000, after rises of about $300 million in each of several preceding months. The decline was attributed to business caution, among other things.

Individual savings rose to a postwar record in the April-May-June quarter, the Securities and Exchange Commission reported, hitting $7.7 billion. That figure, covering the first full quarter since the income tax cut, compared with $6.5 billion in the March quarter and $3.4 billion a year earlier. The previous postwar record was $7.5 billion in 1962's first quarter.

IN MONROE DISTRICT

Week's Drilling Trend Downward

Drilling activity fell slightly last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District from previous levels, but was led by eight completions in four of the 15 northeast Louisiana parishes.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook reported four of the completions — gas wells — in the Monroe Gas Field in Union Parish. There were two completions in Concordia Parish, one each in LaSalle and Tensas.

Three recompletions — one each in Concordia, Tensas and Grant — also were recorded during the week.

In other activity, there were 29 rigs drilling or testing and 26 new locations were staked.

Most of the active rigs were in LaSalle and Concordia Parishes, according to Cook's report. There were seven in each of the two, followed by three each in Avoyelles, Grant and Rapides, two each in Catahoula and Tensas, and one each in Richland and Union.

Distribution of new locations was concentrated in Concordia Parish, which had 13, followed by Rapides with four, Catahoula and LaSalle with three each, and Grant, Ouachita and Union with one each.

These were the recompletions:

CONCORDIA PARISH, Esperance Point Field — Socony-Mobil's J. P. Morgan No. 13, recompleted at 6,273 feet in section 8-5-9E.

TENSAS PARISH, Lake St. John Field — The California Company's J. W. Brown No. 1, recompleted at 9,129 feet in section 46-9-10E.

LASALLE PARISH, Summerville Field — Placid Oil Company's Tremont No. H-3, recompleted at 2,913 feet in section 23-9-2E.

Seventeen wells were abandoned during the week, leaving 52 inactive sites.

Cook's report gave this further information on the completions, active rigs and new locations:

Stocks Score Best Weekly Gain Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market has left no doubt as to where it stands as the sometimes risky post-Labor Day period gets under way. It made its largest weekly gain of the year.

A big stimulus to stock prices was Chrysler's eleventh-hour labor settlement with United Auto Workers. Another factor was the election of a moderate candidate for president in Chile which dispelled fears that American copper companies would face expropriation there if the left-wing candidate were elected.

Another factor in the vigorous trading and generally optimistic attitude was the return of many vacationing members of the financial community.

Strength in motors, steels and other industrials pushed the closely-watched Dow Jones industrial average to a record high on every one of the four trading days. The New York Stock Exchange was closed Monday for Labor Day.

The Dow industrials last week rose 18.82 to 867.13. Some brokers were talking of the average reaching 900 by year's end.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 5.6 to 323.8, a historic high which topped the previous record of 322.0 made July 17.

This was the biggest gain since the week ended Nov. 30 when the AP average rose 11.3 in a recovery from the selling which accompanied President Kennedy's assassination.

Volume for the four-day trading week totaled 20,904,600 shares, not much below the 21,354,220 shares traded in the previous five-day week.

Soybean Futures Lead Wide Gains In Grain Trading

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures led a generally firm grain futures market into fairly broad net advances on the Board of Trade last week.

Trade was active and volume heavy at times. Friday's activity in soybeans was believed to have been the heaviest of the year, perhaps exceeding 90 million bushels.

day indicated a soybean crop of

A government report Thurs-704.3 million and traders accepted it as so bullish they bid the market up the limit of 10 cents a bushel allowed for a single day.

Pan-Am Ends Wildcat Job In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Pan American Petroleum Corp. has released information and officially completed its Scott County wildcat, the U.S.A. No. 1, sec. 18-5N-8E located seven miles southwest of Forest.

Completions was from perforations in the Smackover lime at 14,550-56 feet and 14,562-68 feet with the well flowing at the rate of 228 barrels of oil per day. The new discovery has been the subject of much discussion for the past several weeks with operators releasing no information on the well during the testiming phase.

The completion marks the second area in the state to produce oil from the Smackover lime formation. The other area is the Bienville Forest Field of Northeastern Smith County which was discovered in August, 1963. The Loring Field in Madison County produces sour gas with high condensate content from the Smackover lime.

Another new Wilcox oil sand discovery has been assured in Wilkinson County. Francis Fortenberry and Daniel have completed their wildcat the Crosby No. 1, sec. 26-4N-1W, flowing 90 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 6,877,89 feet. The new discovery is located approximately four miles southeast of Darrington.

The second well in the recently discovered Morgan Creek oil field of Franklin County is assured with Charles Hayes and Franklin Oil Co. finalying their Chambers No. 1, sec. 39-7N-2E, the new oiler flowed at the rate of 127 barrels of oil per day from perforations in the Wilcox sand at 6,062,65 feet.

Drilling operations are scheduled to commence immediately at a wildcat test in southern Perry County which will be the state's deepest well. Phillips Petroleum Corp. is rigging up at the Josephine No. A-1 sec. 35-1S-10W approximately 14 miles northeast of Wiggins. The venture is scheduled to be drilled to 20,500 feet to test the Smackover lime in the southern part of the state.

In Scott County approximately six miles west of the Pan American discovery, Skelly Oil Co. is reported to be coring below 14,600 feet in its closely watched wildcat the Miles No. 1, sec. 17-1N-7E. Operators are releasing no information on the well. The wildcat was abandoned in 1963 at total depth of 11,200 feet and recently reopened to deepen to 15,500 feet.

Approximately six miles southeast in Smith County, Pan Am is drilling below 13,000 feet in its wildcat the Thomas No. 1, sec. 13-4N-7E, a 16,350 foot Smackover try.

Also in the Smackover trend area Shell Oil Co. is drilling below 7,400 feet in its Jasper County wildcat the Brown No. 1 sec. 27-2N-10E located approximately two miles east of Bay Springs. Contract depth is 16,600 feet.

Business Briefs

OPEN OFFICERS HERE

National Western Life Insurance Co. has opened regional offices in Monroe, according to Joe B. Stringfield, regional director.

Stringfield, who has been transferred here from Little Rock, Ark., will be in charge of the new Monroe facility, located at 1205 N. 18th St.

The office will serve north Louisiana for the company. Four agents, in addition to Stringfield, have been transferred to the local office.

AWARDED CONTRACT

Ford, Bacon & Davis, a New York and Monroe, engineering, construction and management consulting firm, has been awarded a contract by the Langley Research Center, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to design and engineer a high pressure air compressor facility, to be located at the Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va.

A unique feature of this facility is that it will be capable of delivering air at 6,000 standard cubic feet per minute at pressures in excess of 6,000 per square inch.

Demetrius G. Niarchos is serving as engineering senior on this project under the direction of Stuart R. Fleming, vice president and general manager of Ford, Bacon & Davis' Engineering Department.

NEW CONSTRUCTION

PINEVILLE (Special) — Construction is scheduled to start this month on an $85,000 addition to the headquarters office building here of Central Louisiana Electric Co., an electric-gas utility which serves in 31 Louisiana parishes.

P. E. Randol, vice president of engineering, said the single-story addition will house engineering personnel. The new structure, occupying approximately 4,000 square feet, will consist of a conference room, drafting room, and 12 offices.

Texas Operators To Discuss Oil Import Problems

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Texas independent oil operators meet the next three days to discuss what they say are depressed economic conditions resulting, to a large degree, from oil imports.

The 18th meeting of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association comes at a time the 6,500-member trade group has been under attack by some independents from other states.

Some members of the Texas group's nationwide equivalent—the Independent Petroleum Association of America — have charged the Texans with undermining the independents' ability to solve their Washington problem.

The charges brought a sharp denial from E. Bruce Street, who established stabilization of imports as the Texans' No. 1 objective when he became president of the group a year ago.

Many Texans are members of the national body but basic differences with oilmen from other areas frequently develop over how the mandatory oil imports control program should be strengthened and over what the Texans call favored tax advantages available to American oil firms with major foreign interests.

The Texans long have plugged for some form of tariff or duty as the best ultimate solution to the imports problem.

Street suggested at a May mid-year meeting in New Orleans that the nationwide independents explore the possibility of a tariff on all imported oil but the association renewed its traditional plea for sharp reductions in import quotas and that other provisions of the mandatory controls program be strengthened.

Despite differences over how to solve their Washington problems, the two organizations are in agreement independents across the country are being liquidated by crude oil price cuts on their domestic production while oil imports continue to climb.

They are in agreement on these Texas figures:

NONDRIVER SOLOS

UPPER ARLINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Philip Compton, who says he's had his "eye on flying since I was 5," soloed for the first time recently on his 16th birthday.

But Philip, a high school junior, hasn't yet learned to drive, explaining: "I haven't thought about it."

MARRIED STUDENTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marriage has been woven firmly into the fabric of campus life since the G.I. first invaded college campuses after World War II, the Population Reference Bureau here reports.

Today, undergraduate marriage in the major colleges is toboo only in the armed services academies. Almost one-fourth of all students who will graduate this year are married.

IN BUYING A HOME...

PRICE IS JUST PART OF THE PICTURE!

It is relatively easy for the home buyer to determine what price range he can afford. However, it is much more difficult for him to be certain he is getting his full dollars worth. For example, is the house really well built or does it just look that way? Is it over-priced according to other homes in the area? To answer these and other questions, consult a Builder Member of the National Association of Home Builders. He is bound by a code of ethics to give you quality materials and workmanship at a fair market cost.

YOU GET THESE BENEFITS WHEN YOU BUY FROM A BUILDER MEMBER:

1. Reputable dealings

LAND OF SHINTOISTS, BUDDHISTS

West Monroyan Returning To Mission Field In Japan

A West Monroyan who has spent many years in missionary service in Japan, will be returning there this week with his family to carry the gospel message to areas where most of the people are Shintoists or Buddhists, and christianity has comparatively few followers.

He is the Rev. Russell B. Stellwagon Jr., 37, who during the past two years of furlough from the mission field has resided at 301 Ludwig, West Monroe, and appeared before many congregations in northern and southern areas describing mission work in Japan.

A long - time member of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church of West Monroe, Rev. Stellwagon entered the field as a faith missionary, sponsored by several churches and individuals interested in his work. The churches were primarily Southern Baptist, but he serves with the Evangelical Alliance Mission, an interdenominational faith mission, which has some 850 missionaries in various areas such as South America, Africa, India, Pakistan, and Formosa. It has 160 missionaries in Japan.

MISSIONARY Rev. Russell B. Stellwagon Jr. of West Monroe, his wife, son, David Wayne, and baby daughter, Sharon Marie, will be heading for Japan this week, and the mission field. The children have never been in Japan, but the Stellwagons have spent a number of years there as missionaries.

MARRIED MISSIONARY

Rev. Stellwagon, who married a West Germany missionary to Japan in 1961, has two children, a son, David Wayne, who will be two, November 6, and a daughter, Sharon Marie, born July 22 of this year. His wife, Hannah Lori, received her American citizenship in December, 1963. When he was four years old, his mother died, and her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Henry raised him. His grandmother is still living.

His entry into the mission field was inspired by his observations of the need for Christ of the Japanese people when he was in Japan with the U. S. Navy in 1945 and 1946.

After returning to this country, he attended Bob Jones University, which is now located in Greenville, S. C., and did postgraduate work at Northwestern College in Minneapolis, whose president then was the evangelist, Billy Graham.

MANY SHRINES

Rev. Stellwagon went to Japan in September, 1951, to start his career as a missionary. There he found the people worshiping ancestors and nature gods, and shrines were in many places.

"They have shrines in the fields for nature gods, so the crops will be blessed, and there is some animal worship," he said. Before returning home two years ago on furlough, he was the only missionary in a city of 190,000 population, Ichinomiya, in central Japan. The name of the textile manufacturing city means "one shrine," said the missionary.

"Although they have many smaller shrines there," he explained, "there is one large shrine to which the city pays tribute."

"There are many sects of Buddhism with varying beliefs there," said Rev. Stellwagon, "and the hope of some of the followers of this belief is that of passing into Nirvana, an eternal tranquility."

Nirvana is described as the dying out in the heart of the three-fold fire of passion, hatred and delusion, and gaining freedom from the necessity of future transmigration.

Rev. Stellwagon explained that followers of the Shinto national religion (many follow both the Shinto and Buddhist teachings) regard the Sun Goddess as their chief god, "believing that the Emperor descended from this goddess and that through worship 'all eight corners of the earth will come under one roof.'"

VIEWS ON CHRISTIANITY

The missionary explained that many of the people in Japan "think our christianity is a western religion, although Christ was born in the east and his message was for the whole world, while Buddhism is mostly confined to the Oriental world."

He estimated that of the 96 million people living in Japan, about 400,000 are protestants, and 300,000 Catholics, about 90 million are Shintoists, with some 45 million of this number also following a second religion, Buddhism.

After a period of learning the Japanese language, Rev. Stellwagon, preached in many areas, and also prepared books to help spread an understanding of christian religion.

He saw the need for helping missionaries in translating English to Japanese. He compiled a dictionary which has been in widespread use. A song book for children and other young people's groups was another project, and a booklet of scripture verses with explanations on presenting the way of salvation, was another. Around one-million copies of the latter were distributed. He also wrote a book, "Introducing the Bible."

MANY MEETINGS

Rev. Stellwagon has held meetings in churches, as well as meetings for children and adults in villages, and in other places without churches. He also has carried his ministry to the hospitals and schools.

Present plans call for the Stellwagon family to leave Monday afternoon by plane from Selman Field on the first leg of the return trip to Japan. His new assignment will be to supervise a christian bookstore and literature center in Gifu City, which has a population of around 300,000, and do evangelistic work in the surrounding towns of 20,000 to 50,000 population which have no churches or missionaries at all.

One of Rev. Stellwagon's first converts in Japan was an interpreter for the police department where he studied the Japanese language. That convert is now a pastor. There have been many converts since that time to the missionary's credit, but he said that the population increase is running far ahead of the spread of christianity in Japan.

The Rev. A. T. Mitchell was pastor of Ridge Avenue Baptist Church in West Monroe, when Rev. Stellwagon entered the mission field. Since Rev. Mitchell's retirement, the pastorate has been filled by the Rev. H. L. Sampson.

CATHOLIC EDUCATOR

Supports Mass In Vernacular

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — "Frankly," said the priest, "a lot of Roman Catholics haven't been coming to Mass because it's been a bore."

"They hear and say things they don't understand, therefore the must derive meaning out of a book—either the Mass book or some book in explanation of the Mass book," said the Rev. Gerard S. Sloyan.

Father Sloyan, head of the religious education department of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., is an enthusiastic supporter of Mass in the Vernacular—the local language. It was introduced recently at both high and low Masses of the 25th annual liturgical week, a four-day workshop on church matters.

Father Sloyan was president of this year's liturgical conference and is author of a number of books including "Shaping the Christian Message" and "Christ the Lord."

"What is being sought is comprehensibility, in the interests of better prayer," he said.

"It was never the intention of the 19th Ecumenical Council, the Council of Trent (1545-1565), to fix Latin forever as the language of the Western church. It happened through an accident of history.

"Local option on language and rite is the privilege of the Christian, but Latin—because it was the linguistic bond in the West—became the language of the Western church."

The changes being wrought in the Roman Catholic Mass won't merely be a translation of the service from Latin into the language of the country.

"We will get revised rites in a period between two and five years, at a guess," Father Sloyan said. "They will be written in Latin, with freedom on the part of national groups of bishops to render them into the local tongue with Rome's approval. Individual national hierarchies may also determine their own worship forms."

SIMILAR

It's similar to the change brought about in Judaism by Reform Jews, who translated many of the traditional Hebrew prayers into the language of their own country and simplified the service.

Joseph Cardinal Ritter, archbishop of St. Louis and one of the two Americans on a 42-member group charged with revising Catholic liturgy, says:

"This is so much a part of our lives, that to make a sudden change would disturb many people. Certainly there will be more vernacular and more participation by the people.

"Most laymen will be pleased with the changes. Many will not be until they are able to assist."

Many of the changes were evident at the part-English Masses held during liturgical week, attended by nearly 16,000 nuns, priests and laymen—including 175 Protestant observers.

There were hymns by German reformation leader Martin Luther, sung in English; the celebrant of the Mass faced the congregation; whole wheat communion wafers were used, rather than the traditional white wafer, and the three low Masses of the four celebrated had much more song than Catholic congregations have been used to.

Yom Kippur Observance Announced

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, which is the most sacred and solemn day of the year for Jews all over the world, will be observed beginning at sundown Tuesday.

Services will be held locally at Temple B'Nai Israel, 2400 Orell Place, at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, and at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, continuing throughout the day until early evening, it was announced by Rabbi Sylvin L. Wolf.

The observance of Yom Kippur is characterized by fasting and profound self-examination. Jews are expected to spend the entire day at the synagogue in prayer and in solemn reappraisal of their personal behavior and their service to the community. Observances continue from sundown to sundown.

LITURGY

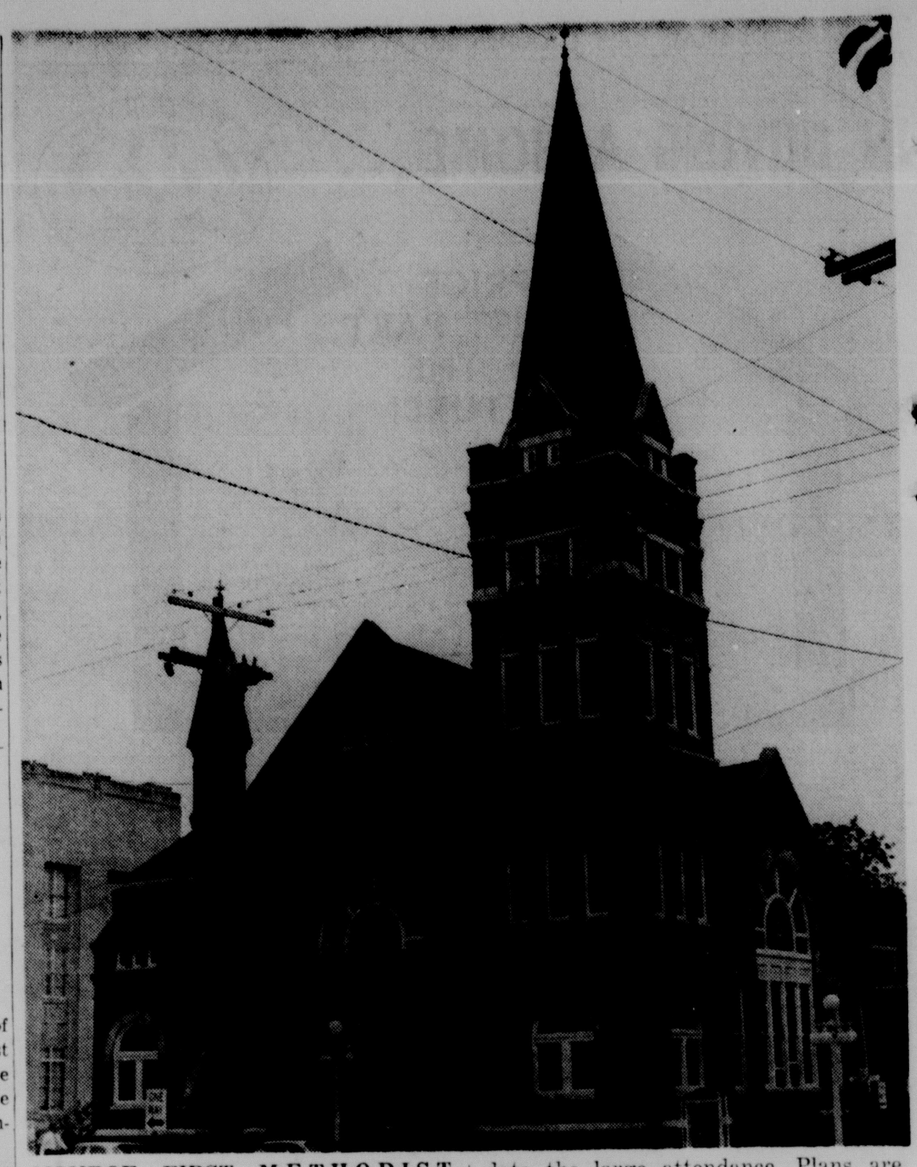
The opening liturgy, the Kol Nidre, which is a prayer for forgiveness, is one of the most meaningful and earnest rituals in the Jewish religion. The haunting melody of the Kol Nidre sets the mood of contrition which threads through the entire period.

The seriousness of Yom Kippur is emphasized by the abstinence from eating and drinking. It is a day on which physical and material concerns are put aside and the individual evaluates his life and his conduct towards his fellow men.

The end of Yom Kippur is marked traditionally by the blowing of the ram's horn, the shofor. The blowing of the shofor symbolizes the end of the ten "Days of Awe," which began with the New Year, Rosh Hashono.

Yom Kippur is described as being of profound significance to the Jews, for it is a day set aside for the individual to search himself deeply and to question closely his behavior. He is in the company of others in the synagogue, but is alone before God and his conscience.

This Holy Day reflects Judaism's strong emphasis that man is a responsible creature, capable of change and refinement. Man may stumble, but he is not irredeemably lost. By choosing to do better, he can do better and thereby refine his own life and the life of his world. It is traditional upon this day for Jews to ask forgiveness of those whom they may have wronged, to question deeply, through prayers and meditation, their entire way of life.



MONROE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH, located at Jackson and Wood streets, holds two worship services on Sunday mornings to accomodate the large attendance. Plans are now underway to construct a new and larger plant to serve the congregation.

MONROE FIRST METHODIST

Church Planning New Location And Building

By LOLA GRAFTON

Monroe's First Methodist Church is making plans for relocating. According to pastor of the church, the Rev. George W. Harbuck, the membership has outgrown the present plant, and efforts are underway to construct a new, larger church building at the corner of Loop Road and 32nd Street.

Now located at Jackson and Wood streets, the First Methodist Church of Monroe lists a membership of 1,375. Services every Sunday, the pastor said, have been rescheduled lately in the hope of meeting the needs of the membership. Identical services on Sabbath mornings, at 8:30 and 10:50, are being conducted to accomodate the large attendance, but the building of a larger church plant — still pending until downtown property is disposed of — should over-come the situation.

PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT

And, Rev. Harbuck said, "the same progressive, friendly spirit is moving with us when we relocate."

A native of Timpson, Tex., the pastor was educated in public schools there and received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of Houston. He attended the Divinity School at Duke University and received the bachelor of divinity degree from that institution.

Rev. Harbuck is married, and has two daughters, Nancy, 18, and Fran, 13. The family resides at 1303 Speed Drive.

MUSIC PROGRAM

A major source of pride to the church is its music program. Three choirs serve the church, including the 30 voice Chancel Choir, the 30 voice Caroler Choir, both directed by Dr. Wilfred Smith of the Northeast Louisiana State College music faculty, and the renown Noel Bell Ringers Choir, directed by Mrs. Irvie Lee Temple.

Composed of 12 children — four girls and eight boys of ages 12-16 — the Noel Bell Ringers have earned superior ratings at state music festivals since they organized two years ago.

HIGH RATINGS

With their English hand bells, the choir won a superior rating at the Louisiana Tech Music Festival and a superior rating at the University of Southwestern Louisiana festival, both held this year.

The pastor pointed out that the choir is in great demand by civic groups, and participates in religious celebrations with music regularly. The choir holds membership in the Louisiana Music Educator Association, and can produce music ranging from popular tunes to Bach.

Mrs. Dorothy Zeagler for the past 15 years has supplied organ music for the choirs. She is accompanist on both the organ and the piano, and has been instrumental in promoting the church music program.

Methodist circuit riders accomodated Ouachita Parish members of the denomination in the early 19th century before First Methodist was established. Records show that the first brick building was erected in the mid 1800's, with location site the present post office building in downtown Monroe. In 1876, however, the new brick church collapsed under a heavy snow, and around 1895, a move for the present building was started by E. N. Evans, with the resulting buildings being used for worship and as a Sunday School annex.

WORKING ON PLANS

Officials of the church are now working on plans for the new structure, which will be traditional in style. Parking space will provide larger area for cars, and cost of the entire plant should run around $700,000, Rev. Harbuck said. Chairman of the building committee is Pat Siudy.

Other officials of First Methodist include Ben Harrison, chairman of the official board; A. D. Williams, chairman of the board of trustees; Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service; Mrs. A. B. Potter, and Mrs. Lavelle Ivy, presidents of the Wesleyan Service Guild.

ASSOCIATE PASTOR

Associate pastor, the Rev. Deen Thompson, is in his second year of association with the Twin Cities largest Methodist Church. A native of Eunice, Rev. Thompson attended Centenary College in Shreveport, and earned the bachelor of divinity degree at the Candler School of Theology at Atlanta, Ga. With his wife and seven-month-old son, David, the associate pastor lives at 2304 Sauvelle St.

The present church sanctuary has seating capacity of 400, but the planned sanctuary should seat 700, an increase of 300 over the present structure.

Rev. Harbuck said that he is impressed that the membership "voted almost unanimously" to relocate at the Loop Road site, and is encouraged by the "willingness of the membership to take what steps are necessary to insure continued growth of this church."

CHURCHES IN ENGLAND

Split May Halt Plans To Merge

LONDON (AP) — A split among high and low sections of the Church of England may upset plans for re-uniting Anglicans and Methodists in Britain.

By the end of this year, each Anglican diocese must submit a report, giving its opinion on the merger, to the convocations of Canterbury and York. So far, only three of the 43 dioceses have spoken. Their reports have not been published, but enough is known to indicate that disagreements among churchmen are sharp.

It is the all-embracing nature of the Church of England that helps make this difficult. It runs the gamut from high church ritualists, whose churches and services closely resemble Roman Catholic practice, to low church evangelicals, who regard preaching the word as their primary task and do it in almost Calvinistic simplicity.

Enter one Anglican church in Britain and you will find statues and pictures, confessionals and incense, six or more high candles on the altar, priests in full vestments. Enter one in the adjoining parish and you find a bare, scrubbed chapel-like atmosphere, a text or two upon the walls, a holy table with two small candles, a minister in simple white surplice or black robe. Others — so-called broad church — are compromises between these two extremes.

All are part of the state-established Church of England. All use the same prayer book and are bound by the same rules, though they interpret them differently.

REV. MIKE GILCHRIST

Daily Series Of Meetings At Lakeshore

Lakeshore Baptist Church of Monroe, Lakeshore and Camillia, will open a revival series Monday under the direction of the Rev. Mike Gilchrist, evangelist of Lake Charles.

Services will be held twice daily, at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. through Saturday. Next Sunday's services will be at the regular times, 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The revival music will feature guest personalities as well as talent of the church choir. All music will be under the direction of David Whipple, church minister of music.

Rev. Gilchrist has conducted more than 350 revivals in Southern Baptist churches. Ten of his 15 years in the ministry have been in full time evangelism.

The Rev. Vester Headrick is pastor of the church.

Development Board Meeting Is Scheduled

The Board of Development, New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, will hold its annual meeting on the seminary campus, Thursday.

The Board, established to undergird and supplement the work in Christian education of one of the largest evangelical seminaries in the world, consists of more than 50 Baptist men and women. They represent 38 cities in nine states.

Special items on the Development Board's agenda include a report on the $600,000 Library Expansion Program, which will add a new wing to the New Orleans Seminary Library and double the present number of volumes.

Area members of the board include J. Norman Coon, Monroe; Miss Lallage Feazel, West Monroe, and Bert Davis, Winnsboro.

Bastrop Pastor Will Speak Here

The assistant pastor of Oak Hill Baptist Church, Bastrop, the Rev. Leslie Farrar, will be guest speaker at 10:55 a.m. and 7 p.m. services today at Victory Baptist Church of Monroe, South 10th and Pecan streets.

He is a graduate of New Orleans Baptist Seminary.

A nursery will be open for children during services.

Spiritual Life Retreat Set By Methodists

A Spiritual Life Retreat sponsored by the Louisiana Conference Board of Evangelism of The Methodist Church will be held Thursday and Friday in Alexandria. It is for ministers, laymen and women. Rev. Lonnie Sibley, pastor of Caddo Heights Methodist Church in Shreveport, is taking registrations.

Speaker for the retreat will be Dr. Thomas A. Carruth, a member of the faculty of Asbury Seminary, Wilmore, Ky. Dr. Carruth is a member of the Mississippi Conference, where he served for 10 years as secretary of evangelism. He worked for seven years on the General (national) Methodist Board of Evangelism in Nashville, Tenn. For four years he was with the Institute of Communicative Arts. He is a traveler, a writer, and a leader in the Prayer Life Movement.

Dr. D. L. Dykes, pastor of First Methodist Church in Shreveport, will speak on the "Forty Days of Love" program carried out in that church during Lent this year. This program was an adaptation of a theme developed by Dr. Carruth.

Group singing will be led by Rev. James A. Skinner of Opelousas and Rev. Jack S. Winegeart of DeQuincy. Rev. J. Henry Bowdon Jr. of Plaquemine is serving as treasurer for the retreat. The meeting will begin Thursday, with lunch and close the following day at noon.

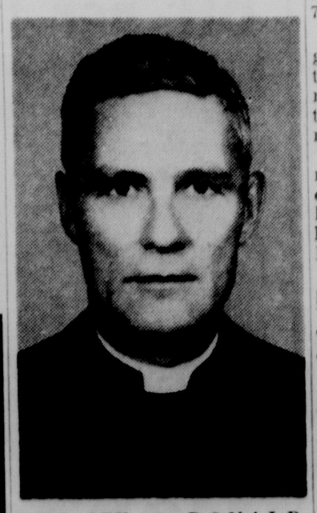
Swartz Baptist Homecoming

The annual homecoming observance of First Baptist Church of Swartz on Old Bastrop Road, will be held today, it was announced by the Rev. Andrew H. Johnson Jr., pastor.

In addition to the regular 11 a.m. services there will be a dinner on the grounds at 1 p.m., and then a special homecoming service at 2 p.m.



THE REV. A. DONALD DAVIES, former rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe, has been appointed to the faculty of Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. He will serve as associate professor of christian education and direct the master of arts in christian education program.

Pastors Meeting At Children's Home Planned

Pastors of churches in Deer Creek Baptist Association will meet at 10 a.m. Monday at the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

Rev. Paul Kolb, district secretary, said that the pastors plan to leave Winnsboro about 9 a.m. Following their meeting in the Daddy Flowers Chapel at the Home, a tour of the campus will be made.

What Is The Christian Religion?

The Christian Religion involves loyalty to God

Gilbert Murray defines the Universal religion as: "All that region of humane emotions and activity which arises from man's sense that he is in the presence and at the mercy of mysterious and overwhelming forces with whom he can yet enter into some personal relation." In the Christian Religion man moves into an experience with those "mysterious and overwhelming forces" through Christ his Saviour.

The Christian Religion involves loyalty to God. Jesus himself made his clear by saying, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart. . ." God is the heart, the center, the unity. And our devotion to God must be single, for man cannot serve two masters.

The Christian Religion is loyalty to Jesus Christ. If it were not for Jesus, God would be distant in our thinking. He translated God from the abstract to the concrete. It is through Christ that we dedicate our capacities to God. The Christian can give himself to God in no other way.

The Christian Religion is that a man love his neighbor as himself. It teaches that we get out of human relations what we put into them. Love must be learned, especially love for our neighbor. The Christian Religion says, "Those who love are born of God."

How do your actions square up to what the Christian faith means? Jesus commands that his friends go into all the world and tell men about him through their own lives.

BOY! AM I LOST! I WONDER WHAT THE NAME OF THIS MOUNTAIN IS?

SWISH!

GOTCHA.... LITTLE LEPRECHAUN!

HEY!?

YOU MUST GRANT ME ONE WISH, I UNDERSTAND, FOR CATCHING A LEPRECHAUN IN MY HAND!

YOU KNOW ABOUT THAT, HUH?

OKAY! JUST ONE!

...THEN, HOW ABOUT A NICE PICNIC BASKET FULL OF GOODIES FOR THIS BEAR?

OKEYDOKE! ONE PICNIC BASKET COMING RIGHT UP!

PLING!

KEY-ZAM-MA!

...NEXT TIME I'M GONNA BE A LITTLE MORE SPECIFIC!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
Did you ever wonder how you could keep your recipe cards clean and make them easier to read while baking?

Here's what I did:

I found a large-sized cork and then made a one-half-inch deep (slanting) cut across the small end with a sharp knife, then glued the large end of the cork to the top of my recipe box, making sure that the cut was slanting toward the back of the box.

When I remove the wanted card from my file box, I put it in the slit facing me so there is no need to touch it.

Compliments on this from my husband warrants my passing it on to others . . .

SUGAR SHAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Any mother with two or three young children should keep sugar in a big salt shaker so the kids can "shake" sugar onto their cereal.

It is so much simpler than using a spoon. Furthermore, the shaker distributes the sugar so that it doesn't go down into the bottom of the cereal bowl with all the milk.

JEWEL SAFETY

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint for those who wear a watch or rings and need a good place to put them while doing dishes, scrubbing, etc.

Screw a cup hook into one of your kitchen cabinets and hang your jewelry on this. Far safer than putting it on the kitchen window or in an apron pocket.

Reader

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:

When sewing by hand with a single thread, the thread often tangles and knots.

If you give the needle a slight twist counter-clockwise occasionally, it will keep the thread from knotting.

PIE-SCRAP COOKIES

DEAR HELOISE:

My favorite cookies are made from the scraps of pie dough that are left over after my mother makes her pies. She lets me roll them out, sprinkle them with sugar and cinnamon and bake them at the same time she is baking her pies.

I put the cookies on a pie pan, and I have to keep an eye on them because they are done before the pies are. They bake in about five minutes.

You have no idea how crunchy they are after they cool.

Lona Russ

DEAR LONA:

My mother used to give me her scraps of pie dough and I did this for years when I was a little girl. We sprinkled salt on them and pricked them with a fork. Makes 'em nice and crunchy.

As I bake a pie each week, my daughter (perhaps about your age) makes her "crunchies" from my pie dough scraps, too. She sprinkles brown sugar on top of them.

DEAR FOLKS:

When you build a centerpiece of fruit for your table, use a grapefruit or two first. This forms a mound.

Before you place your apples on it, polish them with a thin coat of vegetable oil and rub well with paper napkins. This will make them shine! And a good vegetable oil does not ruin the taste.

I always put lemons, limes, oranges, a banana or two and some grapes on top.

This is not a waste of money because the fruit can be eaten later or used for fruit salads, etc.

QUIET ROCKING

DEAR HELOISE:

I attach felt weather stripping to the bottoms of both runners on my rocking chairs. This not only saves the rug or linoleum but makes for silent rocking.

DEAR HELOISE:

Don't you despair when you have lots of cuttings, branches and limbs after doing the yard work and find that your garbage can will not hold them all.

Take an old nylon stocking (they are pliable and strong) and tie the refuse in bundles. This keeps the cuttings from blowing down the street till pick-up time comes. And it is easy for the man to pick up the bundles and toss them into the truck by using the stocking for a lift.

I Know

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:

I always apply clear nail polish to new bright, shiny brass or gold-plated buttons and buckles on clothing. They stay new-looking for quite a while instead of turning dark.

Bush

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:

I think we will all agree that emery boards are seldom used in their entirety. A very narrow portion around the edge is used up, while the center strip is still like new.

To double or triple the "mileage" of each emory board, simply take a sharp pair of scissors and cut an eighth of an inch or so from each edge. This allows you to utilize the entire emery board by making the unused rough surface accessible.

DEAR HELOISE:

When my wife Mary puts her knitting aside, she slips filter tips from cigarettes on the points of her needles! This prevents the stitches from slipping off and unraveling . . . and it's a good safety feature, too.

I am proud of that girl.

I thank your wife for being so clever, and I thank you for being smart enough to pass on this tip. Bless you both.

ICE-COOLED BIRD

DEAR HELOISE:

I put a piece of ice (usually one cube) in the watering dish in my bird's cage. Much easier than carrying water. When the ice melts, the bird has cool, fresh water. Besides, my bird loves to play with the ice.

BR-R-R! THAT TERRIBLE QUICKSAND! I'VE NEVER BEEN SO CLOSE T'DYIN' IN ALL MY LIFE! IF YOU HADN'T COME ALONG ····

BUT I DID COME ALONG! NOW TO GET SOME OF THAT SLIME OFF OF YOU TWO!

OOKIE, WHAT A MESS WE ARE! WHERE YOU TAKING US, MISTER?

NOT FAR, BUT MOSTLY UP! HERE WE GO!

BE CAREFUL TO STEP ON THE STONES; LEAVE NO TRACKS THAT WAY!

WE LEFT LOTS O' TRACKS DOWN THERE IN TH' SAND!

TIDE'LL WASH THEM OUT INSIDE THE HOUR! OH, I'M NOT HIDING OUT FROM ANYONE IN PARTICULAR ···

···BUT YOU NEVER KNOW WHAT RIFFRAFF WILL PROWL ALONG THIS SHORE: TRACKS COULD GIVE A CERTAIN TYPE IDEAS; I PREFER TO PICK OUR VISITORS!

YEAH! I KNOW WHAT Y'MEAN!

FROM ALMOST ANY ANGLE THIS LOOKS LIKE JUST AN ALMOST PERPENDICULAR CLIFF, OVERGROWN WITH THICK VINES AND BRAMBLES!

DO YOU HAVE A HOUSE UP HERE?

WELL, CARMEN AND I LIVE UP HERE; IT'S NOT A HOUSE, BUT IT'S OUR HOME AND WE LIKE IT!

WOW! IT'D SURE BE A FUR PIECE DOWN, IF Y'MISSED TH' PATH!

YEP! BUT ONE GETS USED TO IT! WELL, HERE WE ARE ··· CARMEN? I'M HOME!

WOW! A CAVE!

HERE ARE THE FROGS I PROMISED YOU; AND I BROUGHT YOU A SURPRISE, TOO!

WHAT ON EARTH HAPPENED TO THEM?

THE BOG! THEY'VE HAD A ROUGH NIGHT!

WE'RE AWFUL 'SHAMED TO COME INTO YOUR HOME SO SLIMY FILTHY!

FORGET IT, HONEY! YOU TWO JUST COME WITH ME!

NOW, OUT OF THOSE CLOTHES AND INTO THIS TUB OF HOT WATER! AND YOU, FELLA, INTO THAT SHOWER, QUICK!

I'LL BE OUT FRONT, CARMEN!

THAT BOAT CLOSE IN BY THE BOG! WHY? AS WELL TO HAVE A LOOK-SEE!
